of duties necessary. Its enrollment, doubled in the past five years and expected to increase by another 200 by fall, will be about 1,425 in September.

Joseph Spanovich, assistant principal of Rosemore Junior High for the past four years, will become elementary principal of the E. Broad-st building.

Robert Roshon, principal of East Broad, has been assigned as principal of the new 16-room elementary school on the eastern extension of Kae-av, to open in September.

The new elementary will swell the Whitehall School System to five elementaries, one junior high and the high school.

John Steele, dean of boys at the high school, was appointed to the post of assistant principal of Rosemore Junior High.

Pit Stops

Curt Kraft, of Columbus, freah from his win on the 50-lap "Firecracker Championship" for super-modifieds last Thursday at the Columbus Motor Speedway, returned to the Williams-rd oval Sunday night, to make it two-straight.

Despite Kraft's win there were times that Bob Smith, also of Columbus, looked like he might get the checkered-flag himself, as he drove side-by-side with Kraft, for the final 10-laps. Smith was second, trailed by Al Smith, of Dayton, Urbana's Neal Sceva and Columbus' Don Townsend.

THE LATE MODEL headliner was won by Shad Wheeler in his '55 Ford, followed by Don Trees in a '58 Ford convertible and Bob Bower, driving a '60 Plymouth.

This Friday, the flying-stocks will take over for a full program of events and Sunday night, the super-modifieds and late-models will be back for a combined program, including a feature race in each division. Time trials, both nights, are at 7 p.m. with the first race set for 8 p.m.

In the raceway's game of "Total," there'll be $400 in cash, Friday night, waiting for the fan or fans to select the first five finishers, in order in the flying-stock feature.

ON SUNDAY evening, July 21, the Southside track will run its Mid-Season Championship for super-modifieds. There will also be late-model events on the program that will windup with a 50-lap championship feature for the modifieds.

bonding company was told that the contract with North is in jeopardy due to lack of performance by North.

Still unresolved is the question of a $13,773 "back fee" claim filed by the contract hauler against Whitehall. Council had approved legislation to pay the claim, based on the alleged failure by the city to make annual residential unit counts.

Mayor Walter B. Moling vetoed the ordinance, after a requested opinion from Solicitor Paul Haytcher challenged council authority to authorize the payment.

Council action on the veto is expected at the next Council session on Tuesday.

Vol. V, No. 45 | 2465 W. Broad St., Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, July 18, 1963 | Total No. 253

A LONG LOOK into the future of Whitehall is being taken by members of the Citizens Advisory Committee, a group of citizens serving under the appointment of Mayor Walter Moling. Public is invited to attend the monthly meetings and to air their ideas on government affairs in an informal atmosphere before appearing before council. From left are William P. Lewis, attorney, 4306 Kumler-rd; Mrs. Janet Gray, 4610 Morris-av, secretary for the group; George C. Bobb, 345 Country Club-rd, chairman, and Max Graf, 990 S. Yearling-rd. Not present for the photo were committee members Wayne Davis and Don Worstell.

Whitehall Citizens Invited To 'Sound Off' To Officials

A group of Whitehall citizens, quietly at work for the past year on civic betterment projects, is now ready to fulfill its original intention of providing a sympathetic ear to citizens' ideas and wishes in government affairs, and to serve them and council in an advisory capacity.

The non-partisan Whitehall Citizens Advisory Committee, appointed by Mayor Walter B. Moling, was originally intended to be available as a forum for the public, as well as to further city development and to establish good community relations.

Meetings are open to the public and are held the third Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in Whitehall's Municipal Building.

"Here," Chairman George C. Budd explained, "citizens can present their ideas in an informal manner. We listen, advise them of factual material that is needed when the matter is presented to council, and can assist them in gathering this background information."

Recommendations of the committee in matters of Whitehall development are also presented to council through Mayor Moling.

The group has no official capacity, but strives only to stimulate interest in government and community affairs, and to make recommendations to local, governing authorities.

During the past year, the committee has urged that Whitehall become a member of the Franklin County Regional Planning Group, has conducted a salary study of public officials in Whitehall as compared to other Ohio cities, and has concerned itself with the development and extension of the land east of Hamilton-rd.

"Whitehall's population growth in the past 10 years has been enormous," William P. Lewis, committee member, pointed out, "and a projected study indicates that it will probably continue to grow until it reaches 45,000 in the next 10 years.

"Whitehall is well contained. There is no room for territorial expansion, and so planning and development are most important."

The committee, in addition to Budd and Lewis, includes Max Graf, Wayne Davis and Don Worstell.

French River Lyric

Count that day won
Whose low descending sun
Finds not one thing done!

Time for Reflection

Each time I come back to the French River I'm reminded how infinitesimal each of us really is. In terms of time the world has existed, we are somewhat like the ants that scurry across one of those age old rocks I sit upon.

Here giant pine trees, many times older than those who view their beauty, look down on quiet waters contained in a gorge that has been formed over centuries as the waters cut away one grain of sand at a time.

It is satisfying to believe that tomorrow and tomorrow into eternity God will preserve such beauty as a reminder to man of his short allotment of time on earth.

Questions of a Wee One While Fishing

Any Dad who has a seven-year-old wee one who claims she likes to fish has perhaps had the pleasure of answering such questions as these while patiently and hopefully awaiting a tug at his line:

"What's the secret of catching pickerel?"

"Will I own some land up here and come fishing here when I get big?"

"How long could a rock bass live in a bucket of water?"

"Will you play a game of canasta with me when we get back to the cottage?"

"Hey, Daddy, do fish have real good eyes? Are they the best-eyed animals in the world?"

"Can I keep that little pickerel for a pet?"

"Why don't we go to some other fishing hole?"

"You mind if I rest a while? I'm tired!"

"Why don't they bite?"

WHITEHALL TO PAY GARBAGE BILL

Find 'Fee' Figure; Finish Feud

Whitehall's long-standing "back fee" garbage hassle was all but settled during Tuesday night's council session. An administration-backed ordinance authorizing payment of $9,913 in settlement of the North claim was passed as an emergency measure.

Council also passed legislation authorizing relocation of water lines in conjunction with resurfacing of Broad-st from the west to east corporation limits; ordered construction of sidewalks at three locations, and agreed to a project aimed at solving the problem of water accumulation in the low-lying area between Doney-st and Etna-av.

Settlement of the North claim, based on failure by the city to make a required annual count of residential units, followed a meeting with North representatives and city officials on Monday.

Actual payment of the claim seems likely to be delayed for two weeks due to the absence from the city of Treasurer Francis E. Shaeffer. The treasurer, who must sign the check, is vacationing until Aug. 2.

City Solicitor Paul Haytcher and Auditor Walter Heiber, both of whom had voiced objection to the original ordinance passed by council, have said that they will not object to the current legislation.

Council's action authorizing relocation of water lines was prompted by State Highway Department road work programming which calls for resurfacing of E. Broad-st this summer. The lines will be moved behind the curb.

Service Director Robert Mickey was authorized to advertise for bids for the water line relocation project, designed to reduce the hazards of tearing up the roadway in event of needed water line repair.

Three property owners were given 30 days, after being notified of the action, to construct sidewalks on their property.

Locations were the east side of Ross-rd, from Main-st north for 300 feet; south side of Broad-st between Pinewood-dr and Beechwood-rd, and the southeast corner of Mound-st and Pierce-av, with 60 feet on Mound-st and 50 feet on Pierce-av.

In the event construction is not completed in the alloted time, council will have the sidewalks built, and the cost will be assessed upon the property owners.

The accumulation of water along the New York Central Railroad right of way, located at the city's west limits, and the problem of stagnant water between Doney-st and Etna-st prompted Whitehall to enter into an agreement with the railroad to drain the area.

An extension of the storm sewers, now being constructed on Maplewood-av, will be continued west to the problem area.

The railroad will be responsible for construction of the drainage facilities on its property, and they will be maintained by Whitehall.

Livingston Post Office Dedicated

Dedication of the new Columbus Post Office, Livingston Station, 3850 E. Livingston-av, was held Wednesday morning at 10, followed by open house of the new facility.

Speakers were Columbus Mayor W. Ralston Westlake; L. J. Betz, delivery service examiner; Erwin S. Mora, assistant postmaster, and Ralph Thompson, assistant general superintendent of mails.

Walnut Ridge High School Band played the National Anthem and Franklin Post 1, American Legion, raised the flag. Fr. Louis Hoffman, St. Philip the Apostle Church, gave the invocation, and Rev. Olen Peters of Reformation Lutheran, spoke the benediction.

Sponsoring the dedication were Johnson Park, James Road, Liv-Moor, Barnett Heights, Berwick Park and Berwin Civic Associations, and Livingston Business and Professional Men's Association.

Dr. Harold Platt served as master of ceremonies, and

Appeals Court Backs Council Zoning Right

The Tenth District Court of Appeals has ruled in favor of Whitehall Council in two cases involving challenge by property owners of re-zoning ordinances passed by council.

One action, filed by residents of Fairway-blvd, protested council's action in re-zoning the Taylor tract, located on the northeast corner of Fairway-blvd and Main-st. The area was transferred from a residential classification to one permitting construction of a motel, apartments, restaurants and high-rise apartments.

The second court action, filed by Richard F. and Alberta May Oelgoetz, 415 Whitehall-dr, protested re-zoning of the Whitehall Park area on Hamilton-rd from residential to general commercial.

The court opinion, written by presiding Judge John C. Duffy, held that property owners cannot appeal from the legislative action of council.

Whitehall Solicitor Paul Haytcher represented council in the court action.

Four appeals for special permits and variances to the Columbus Zoning Ordinance on the East Side will be aired at a public hearing before the Board of Zoning Adjustment Friday, July 26, 2 p.m. in Room 228, City Hall.

A variance to the height district regulations, to allow construction of a church bell tower at 2875 E. Livingston-av, is requested.

Another variance request asks to expand a non-conforming single family dwelling into apartments at 1763-65 E. Main-st, in a C-4 Commercial District.

A variance is also sought to the use district regulations to construct a twin single dwelling at 854 Mansfield-st in an M-Manufacturing District.

With the intention of establishing a party house at 1349 E. Broad-st, in an AR-O Apartment-Office district, a variance is asked to the use district and to the sign regulations.

GAMES GALORE, and refreshments, too, are all of the homemade variety at the annual Carnival for Cancer Research to be staged by youngsters in Berwick, Bexley and East Columbus Wednesday evening, July 24, 5 to 8 p.m. Bob Shar is a watchful observer as Sharon Feinstein gets in some preliminary practice.

Kids Carnival In Backyard Is Tradition

By BETTY DAFT

For the seventh consecutive year, nearly 50 east area kids are out to prove that backyard projects are the most fun to be found in the summertime and, incidentally, are profitable.

This year's performance of the Carnival for Cancer Research, Wednesday, July 24, 5 to 8 p.m., will be held as always in the backyard of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Quinn, 126 N. Roosevelt-av. The event promises to top preceding affairs and it is hoped that profits will exceed last summer's $160. All proceeds are the youngsters' contribution to cancer research.

Games and refreshments are all homemade, and attractions are limited only by the ingenuity and imagination of the youthful promoters. All the games are devised and made by the youngsters, and stored at the Quinns' home. A few new ones are added each year.

Launched by Mrs. Quinn in 1956 as an antidote for summer boredom for her own three children and a few neighborhood youngsters, the event has grown with the kids until it has become a community tradition.

"Some of those original children are now in college, but they always come back to help with the carnival. There are nearly 50 working on the carnival this year, and, I suppose, a couple of hundred people attend," Mrs. Quinn said happily.

A nickel buys a lot at the carnival — a choice of the wide variety of games, including bowling, beat-the-champ ping pong, and many shooting and skill events. Everyone looks for his old favorites, and for new ones that are added each year.

An exception to the "all homemade" rule will be made this summer with the installation of one hole of miniature golf for a "hole-in-one" attraction.

Refreshments are also of the "do-it-yourself" variety, with punch, popcorn and fudge the traditional favorites.

"It really is wonderful," Mrs. Quinn enthused, "to see youngsters working so hard and really enjoying it. And they do work hard — they even mimeograph fliers publicizing the affair, and pass them out to every home for blocks around for two days before the carnival.

"That first year, it was planned just for fun, to entertain the kids. It was really a surprise to find there was a few dollars profit. My husband's sister, Dorothy Sadoff, had died of cancer in Cleveland the year before, and it was the children's choice to donate the profits to her memorial fund.

"And it's very good," she added thoughtfully, "for children to do their part in aiding a worthwhile cause."

Everything for the affair is donated and Quinn, being in the toy business, supplies all the prizes.

Mrs. Quinn firmly brushes aside the question that there are any problems involved in staging the event. "It's hectic, but a lot of fun. Our biggest concern is rain — we've always been lucky with weather.

"And, the older the children grow, the less we have to do with planning and managing. Storing the games? They do take up a lot of space but it's no problem. The yard? We have a large lot, so it's really no trouble."

The carnival seems definitely a permanent institution in the neighborhood, and as for having fun — it's a pretty good guess that no one enjoys it more than the Quinns.

... a nickel buys a lot of fun at the carnival and is the cost of all games and refreshments. Youngsters devise the games and entertainment, publicize and operate the event. They donate all profits to cancer research. From left are David Quinn, Lorna Shuman and Terry Cohen.

Cancer Films Will Provide Public With Enlightenment

American Cancer Society announced that it is accepting film showing and speaker engagements from clubs and organizations for the 1963 fall season.

The film showings are part of the American Cancer Society's life saving cancer prevention program through public education.

Dr. Wesley Furste, unit public education committee member stated, "We can cure an estimated one-half of the cancers by finding them soon enough and by doing for them what we already know how to do. If someone invented a drug that would cure half the present cases of cancer the excitement would be beyond belief. We have such a thing. It is communication. A vital part of this communication is these life saving film showings."

The non-technical films are designed to be completely understandable by the general public. Almost all of them are in full color to enhance audience interest in their message. There is no cost to the club or organization for the film showings.

When an audience is expected to exceed 40 persons the society will make every effort to have a physician on hand to answer any questions that the members may pose. Most of the films are of about 15 minutes duration.

Reservations can be made by contacting the Franklin County Unit of the American Cancer Society, 2300 W. Mound-st, 276-5134.

Iced Tea And Fruit Kabobs

Next to a dip in the pool or a visit to an air-conditioned movie, a tall glass of iced tea is just about the best summer cooler there is. It's a refresher that really quenches your thirst and, because it's so low in calories and cost, you can drink all you want, all the day long. To make a big family-size pitcheful use this easy open saucepan method.

ICED TEA

Bring one quart of freshly drawn cold water to a full rolling boil in a saucepan. Remove from the heat and immediately add one-third cup loose tea or 15 teabags. Stir and let stand for five minutes uncovered. Stir again and strain into a pitcher holding another quart of cold water. Or use the convenient instant teas, allowing about four tablespoons of the soluble powder to two quarts of cold tap water.

Serve in ice-filled glasses with lemon and sugar to taste. Or serve it tropical style with fruit kabobs made by loading a swizzle stick or sipper with a cube of pineapple, a grape, a quarter slice of orange, a red cherry, a slice of lime and a strawberry.

The oldest trans-oceanic steamship line existing today is the Cunard Line, which was initiated in 1840.

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

The Great Bomb Illusion Still Lives

One of the most pernicious illusions abroad in the world today is the fond hope that if nations will give up testing atomic weapons the threat of an atomic holocaust will vanish.

We can close Pandora's box, but the pests are already out.

Jones

Furthermore, where do the ban-the-tests pickets get the idea that it would be good for humanity if the devilish art of atomic bomb-making were stopped at its present point of development?

For what we have now are dirty bombs. They suck up vast amounts of ground debris into a highly radioactive fireball and then distribute strontium 90 dust along a downwind path. We have heard talk about dirtier bombs — bombs with cobalt or gold cases that will produce even deadlier fallout, So a lot of people have the idea that testing is being conducted with the sole idea of producing bombs that leave more dangerous after-effects.

This isn't necessarily true. From a purely military point of view, clean bombs — that is, bombs with a big wallop but with minimum radiation, could be more valuable. Dirty bombs have heightened terror value, but they invite retaliation. Neither side could profit from an unbreathable atmosphere, and generals breathe, too.

As in World War II, where both sides withheld the use of excellent gases and some rudimentary bacterial weapons, the next war may find both sides limiting their choice of weapons in their own self-interest.

But it would be a mistake to assume that this limitation would extend to all atomic weapons. If anyone can develop a clean atomic bomb it would be a marvelously cheap and efficient killer. And three U.S. administrations have tried to make it plain that if we face the choice between loosing atomic war and watching Russia's vast land armies crunch through to the Channel with conventional weapons we will choose the former.

Atomic war on any scale is a grim prospect. Too bad the bomb works. Too bad that Energy does equal Mass times the squared speed of light, Too bad Einstein and Madame Curie were born.

But this is an age in which those who want survival with liberty are going to have to be tough-minded. We are going to have to contemplate with calmness and courage pretty horrible possibilities.

We have the easy alternative of survival without liberty. If America and the Western nations disbanded their armies and handed all their atomic weapons over to Khrushchev there'd be no war and those of us who survived the firing squads could settle down to life under a Soviet world government.

But the delusion that there must be some happy middle ground between atomic preparedness and complete surrender continues to afflict the Miss Nancys who gather in Trafalgar Square, parade round Holy Loch, and wave banners in front of the White House. "Ban the bomb!" "End the tests!" "Call a conference!"

There persists the quaint belief that the Communists are arming only because they fear our arms, that we must allay their suspicions much as FDR tried to allay the "suspicions" of Stalin at the disastrous Yalta pow-wow.

Let's end the "misunderstanding," wail the wailers. If the Russians won't agree to seven inspection stations for underground blasts let's agree to three, and if they don't want three let's agree to one or none.

Of course, there's no misunderstanding. What we are getting is the Pavlov dog treatment. The Russian scientist, Pavlov, discovered that you could break a dog down mentally by alternately giving it a promise of food and then disappointing it. That is why Khrushchev tries to keep building hopes for disarmament and then wrecking them and then building them again. And we accommodate him by sending, at the insistence of the frightened, teams of negotiators to sit down to endless Panmunjoms.

We've got a new Panmunjom going now. And last month President Kennedy stated hopefully that world peace will be achieved by "a gradual evolution of human institutions and effective agreements which are in the interests of all concerned."

More talk. More one-way concessions?

Communists speak to Communists with considerable frankness. Perhaps someone should remind Mr. Kennedy of Khrushchev's statement in Tirana, Albania, in May, 1959: "We do not negotiate on the basis of 'give and take' We have nothing whatsoever to give. We will not make any concessions because our proposals do not form the basis of a barter deal."

We ought to quit dispatching futile emissaries to face the familiar and bitter choice of frustration or surrender. Instead, we should send Mr. K a simple note in non-diplomatic language:

"Look, Buster, we think tests in the atmosphere aren't even for the birds. We'll quit them if you will, but one more trick like the last time and we won't make this offer again. As to underground tests, we'll have them as often as we like and you are welcome to yours. If you ever want a moratorium on them send us a letter telling us how many monitors you'll allow and if we're interested we'll write you back."

More and more doctors are finding out all over again that applied psychology is a large part of their professional success.

These wiser and more balanced members of the profession, regardless of what school of thought they were graduated from, become eclectic practitioners, which means that if it is in all the books and works, fine. If it is in all of the "orthodox books" and doesn't work, out with it. If it is in no book and works, thank God someone had brains enough and dedication enough to find it out.

To me, my private physician is a saint, whom I would trust with my life. Ditto my dentist, osteopath, minister, because all of them "take an interest in me" every time I have need to go to their private offices.

Modern surgery is nothing less than a miracle. Almost total immunization against unfriendly invading organisms is another miracle. Marvelous advances in psychosomatic medicine and physical therapy are being achieved all over the country and most parts of the world.

Infinite patience, proven professional research, knowledge, dedication — these are the master keys of this progress.

ANCIENT HERITAGE

It was the age of the citizen-sovereigns of the heavens and of the brave and beautiful of earth. Then the greater and lesser gods cast favoring eyes upon the earthly race of the valiant living and bestowed their immortal accolades upon the heroic dead.

The place was Greece; the time, the centuries of the Golden Age before the Christian era. All this is recalled by the recent death at 95 of Edith Hamilton, this century's greatest authority, as this observer and others believe, about ancient Greece.

But, we may well ask, what do the legends and myths and poetry of 25 to 30 centuries ago mean to us who live now under the dark shadows of this fearful nuclear age? The answer calls for a very brief review of history.

Homer, individual or collective legend, lived and wrote the Illiad and Odyssey in the ninth century B.C. They are perhaps the world's greatest collection of folk tales and legends about the gods of the heavens and the great heroes of earth. They are also great poetry. Few modern stories are more interesting, too, as entertainment.

The fifth century B.C. was the age of Plato and the other great philosophers. Then and there the seeds of modern democracy were born. Later centuries passed while they lay dormant, but they lived in race memory to appear two or three centuries ago in a new concept of freedom.

That freedom, even yet, is not entirely secure and will yet be a costly thing. Christianity is the chief spiritual element in the modern idea of freedom. The Greek intellectual tradition is its supplementing implementation.

It says here . . .

Mind and spirit add strength, each to the other.

Sunday Laws Still In Force

What excuse can there now be to further delay full enforcement of state laws governing Sunday operation of businesses?

The Ohio General Assembly officially killed pending legislation on the subject when that body adjourned last Friday. It is safe to assume that legislators were not overly-pressured by the public for a relaxation of present Sunday closing laws.

As a matter of fact, the voters had their say on the matter last November when the so-called Lawson Amendment was on the ballot. The amendment, primarily aimed at making it possible for food stores to operate on Sunday, was defeated by a margin of 422,641 votes.

For months prior to the November decision of the voters there prevailed a general local attitude toward soft-pedaling by both law enforcement agencies and the courts. The excuse then was that the voters would decide the issue.

There was a new excuse used after the November vote against relaxing Sunday closing laws. Lack of enforcement of the law and punishment for violators was withheld pending a hope that state legislators would take local government off the hook. The legislature tossed the issue "back home."

During all this time, local officials representing the law and the courts have followed a course varying from total disregard to only token application of the law.

We have stated on numerous occasions our position against any change in the present law that could lead to operation of all businesses on a seven-day basis.

We recognize that there are those who argue with sincere conviction that the present Sunday closing laws are inadequate and/or outdated. Decisions in this area rest with our state legislators, or in changing our laws by constitutional amendment.

An attempt to change the Ohio Constitution in the Sunday closing area has failed. The legislature has NOT changed the law. And there is no law that reserves to local law enforcement officials and local courts the right to decide if any given state law should be ignored.

We respect the right of anyone to challenge a law. But there is an undeniable responsibility to abide by the law while it exists.

We have said it before, and here it is again for the record: The best interests of the public can be served by our law enforcement officials taking proper recognition of the law and then having a proper backing of the courts in such matters.

Remove the Door—Remove Death

Save A Life!

The screw driver isn't often thought of as a life saving device, but it can be just that if used to remove the door from an abandoned refrigerator.

Three of every four victims of abandoned refrigerators are from three to six years old. Warnings will not outweigh the temptation to play or hide in one of the potential death-traps.

Both state and local laws have been enacted covering abandoned air-tight boxes of all types. Under state statutes, anyone who knowingly abandons such a device without rendering it harmless is subject to a fine up to $200.

A Columbus ordinance covering abandoned refrigerators and ice boxes, enacted in 1954, carries a violation penalty up to 90 days in jail and fines up to $300, or both.

If you are abandoning a refrigerator or ice box, be certain it is rendered harmless. If you see an unsafe, abandoned refrigerator on property other than your own, notify the property owner or the local police.

Don't contribute to a story of children who die because of adult carelessness.

How D'ya Figure It?

The Kennedy Administration advocates a two-fold program of cutting taxes and increasing federal expenditures. This makes about as much sense as asking your employer to cut your salary so you can buy a more expensive home.

Day For Grandparents

Mother's Day and Father's Day are fine, but how about a "day" for grandparents. We propose that a Sunday during the most dependable part of summer be set aside. On the appointed day, all "children" with children would hire a qualified babysitter to tend the kids while they spend a quiet day with Mom and Dad.

Stores Should Fly Flags

To the Editor:

I have two American flags and I use them.

I wish the business people on Broad-st would do the same — not a flag in sight. I gave (a local auto agency) a flag because one of their men said they did not have one, but it was not put up, not even inside.

My son is in the Air Force in Spain, my son-in-law (also in the Air Force) will go to Japan in September. I am a descendant of two grandfathers who were in the Civil War, had six uncles in the Spanish-American War, and many relatives in World War I and II.

So you can see why I feel this way about our flag.

Ad Service Satisfies

To The Editor:

We wish to thank you for the excellent coverage regarding the business which we are now engaged in and that which we propose. We also wish to compliment the Classified Advertising Dept. for a fine job on our three column ad this past week.

A special thanks to your very game photographer, Harley Groom, who veritably leaped a fence in order to take the picture of horses and our buildings at the rental site. Our Greenbrier Apartment location is a bit difficult to find for people who are not completely familiar with that particular neighborhood, therefore we were especially gratified by the results of our advertising over the Fourth of July.

Jaycees Pleased

To The Editor:

We, the Eastern Columbus Jaycees, would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your assistance in making Whitehall's Fourth of July Celebration a tremendous success.

We are looking forward to future celebrations being equally successful.

Repulsed By Book

To the Editor:

I can't understand why adults today are pushing teenagers into reading trash. These are the same adults who scream delinquency at us.

I am referring to the Whitehall School Board's voting to make "Ox Bow Incident" a required book. This book contains 11 parts that aren't fit reading.

This is the reason for the way youth acts. What can you expect? This is what we are being taught in our public schools.

We want the right to read good books. We want the right to select our own material.

This is America.

Reach Out To God For More Meaningful Life

The Apostle James wrote in his general epistle, (Ch. 4; vs. 8) "Draw near to God and He will draw near to you." This is practical counsel.

In these troublesome days many people ignore this Scriptural directive. We deplore present-day conditions. We get concerned about things. We become victim of trying situations. Circumstances crowd in upon us and take control. Illness plagues the body and emotions disturb the mind. Trouble is no uncommon messenger and when it strikes we succumb without a struggle. In all these experiences of life, we easily fall prey to self-pity. We get self-centered and attempt to solve our difficulties on our own.

Rev. Wilson

I read with interest this unusual commentary so characteristic of people:

"We mutter and sputter,
We fume and we spurt;
We mumble and grumble,
Our feelings get hurt.
We can't understand things,
Our vision grows dim;
When all that we need
Is a moment with Him,"

What shall we do? James offers the answer. Turn to God. Reach out to Him. Allow His love, mercy and grace to nurture the soul.

"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee; because he trusteth in Thee. Trust ye the Lord forever: For in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength." This was the Prophet Isaiah's advice to the Hebrew people. When they took it to heart they found reaching out to God was a most rewarding experience. This is pertinent for our day.

It is said that Milton, who wrote "Paradise Lost," never appreciated poetry until he was blind. Some of Fanny Crosby's best work as a songwriter could possibly be traced to her blindness. In these days of uncertainty, when we never know what crisis will strike overnight, what shall we do? Reach out to God. Let Him lead the way. Keep remembering Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth and the life."

Reach out to God in daily spiritual meditation. In such devotions there must first be faith in the reality of God and His Spirit with us. It must be that creative life from which our whole being springs, the very substance of our nature, the indwelling Spirit of the living God.

Reach out to God with a quiet mind and body. Keep well in mind that our very nature was intended to express God's nature. We are made to worship God and that means to continually respond to Him.

Reach out to God with a receptive heart. When one meditates on God with an intense effort, His name is written on the pages of our heart, never to be erased. When the thought and motives of the heart dwell on peace and goodwill, our feelings become so absorbed in love that, we never know fear or hatred.

Reach out to God in hopeful anticipation. We contemplate God, and allow the Spirit of God to do the rest. There is conclusive evidence when people reach out to God, the Divine One meets them and touches them before they make contact. There is security and complete satisfaction in such an experience.

David's determination, as recorded in Psalm 73:28, is stimulating. "It is good for me to draw near to God." As we today arrive at this same decision; as we reach out to God, life will be more meaningful.

Rev. Carl L. Wilson, pastor,
Avondale EUB Church.

Holley was introduced by Lawrence F. Kagels, pastor of the Eastwood Seventh-Day Adventist Church. The meetings are sponsored by the Columbia Union Conference of the denomination.

Music Appreciation

I am not a musician, but as I write this I think back and realize how my taste in music has changed. Early in life, it took only the simplest childhood jingles to please me, then in school I was trained and taught to appreciate more intricate music. All through life I feel that my knowledge of ... and appreciation for music has grown and matured.

Through study and help from others, I have also grown as a Christian and have a better appreciation of my Lord.

My knowledge of, and love for God increases with each church worship service ... This way of life and worship, I would recommend to anyone. Won't you try it ... Start by attending church this Sunday.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH ... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

INSTALLING A NEW PRESIDENT, Judge Robert E. Leach hands the gavel of leadership to Ross L. Glick, 916 S. Remington-rd, newly elected president of the Columbus Chapter of the American Business Club. Ceremonies to install the newly elected officers were conducted Saturday night, July 13, at Ann-Ton's Restaurant.

Business Club Sponsors A Retarded Children's Camp

The Columbus Chapter of the American Business Club (AMBUCS) has completed plans for the sponsorship of a three-week summer camp program for retarded and cerebral palsied children from the Franklin County area at Camp St. Rita, east of Groveport.

This is the first year that a special camp of this type has been sponsored by the local business club.

The Columbus chapter of the organization was chartered Sept. 8, 1962, and since that time has sponsored various projects to attain their goal of helping handicapped children. The group, made up of local business and professional men, now has a membership of 50 men in the Columbus area.

The national project of the American Business Clubs is the awarding of scholarships to deserving young men and women who wish to complete their studies in the field of therapy for the cerebral palsied.

The AMBUCS are now the leading civic organization in this field. In the past five years the organization has awarded over a quarter of a million dollars in scholarships to deserving students in the field of physical therapy for children.

Some Items Not Wanted By Goodwill

With costs of handling and storage rising, Goodwill Industries has announced a list of items which the agency cannot accept.

In addition to paper and magazines which the Fire Department considers a hazard, the list includes gas refrigerators, glass jars, heavy overstuffed furniture, home canned food, hot water tanks, ladders, appliances without motors, pianos, scrap metal and wooden ice boxes.

Rev. George Morey Evans, executive director, expressed his regret at this change of policy, saying he hoped friends of Goodwill Industries will understand the move was a necessary one and will continue to call when they have usable items that can be repaired or cleaned.

More Than $300 Given To 'Confederate' Cash Winners

Within the past several months readers and subscribers of Hartley Newspapers have won more than $300 in "Confederate" cash that can be spent just like real money at any place of business advertising in a Hartley paper.

Any reader in eligible to participate in the contest and any subscriber can win the jackpot by finding the correct "Confederate" emblem in their newspaper.

Each week 20 copies of the more than 74,000 newspapers printed by Hartley Newspapers contain a "1" emblem, similiar to the one printed in this column. It is always hand stamped within an advertisement on the inside pages in a color other than black. By sending the advertisement containing the emblem to Hartley Newspapers, 2465 W. Broad-st, any reader can win $1 in "Confederate" money.

To be eligible to win the jackpot, which is $39 in "Confederate" money this week the reader must be a paid subscriber to a Hartley Newspaper and find a 5' emblem similiar to the one printed in this column. Only one "5" emblem is placed in an entire publication during a given week. It, too, is always printed in a color other than black.

If not a paid subscriber the "5" emblem can be redeemed for $5 in "Confederate" money. To collect the winnings due on a "5" emblem, the reader must bring the entire paper containing the emblem to the Hartley Newspaper office in person.

All "Confederate" money will be accepted just like cash by any merchant advertising in a Hartley Newspaper.

This contest is not open to employes of Hartley Newspapers, including paper carriers, or members of their families.

Survey Shows Increase In Flags Displayed On Patriotic Days

An independent survey by Capitol City Chapter No. 3 of the Disabled American Veterans has indicated "a definite increase in the display of American flags this past Memorial Day, and July 4."

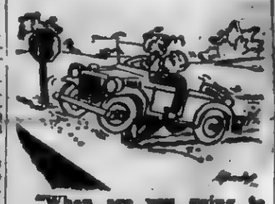
This increase, 25 per cent over last year in the homes of Hartley Newspaper subscribers, has been attributed to the campaign conducted by this paper, according to the organization's adjutant, Robert A. Scott.

This unsolicited report from this DAV chapter has been gratifying to the Hartley Newspapers, which has participated in the campaign to place a flag in every home on patriotic holidays. In promoting the program this paper has made available, at cost, a beautiful 3x5, colorfast, cotton, 50-star American flag. Since the campaign started the original supply has been replenished twice.

Now only a few of these several hundred flags remain for our readers. When these are gone the offer will not be be renewed.

During the remainder of this offer the flag kit, containing the flag, six-foot pole, halyard, top decoration, window socket and book on flag etiquette, and a one-year subscription to a Hartley Newspaper are priced at only $5. Usually the flag kit would sell for $5.98 and the cost of your subscription would be $3 for a total cost of $8.98. This special offer makes both available at a savings of nearly $4.

If you have not already purchased your flag and displayed it for patriotic occasions, you are urged to take advantage of this offer. A 25 per cent increase in flags on display is a good beginning, but should not be the end.



Send your name, address and check or money order for $5 to Hartley Newspapers, 2465 W. Broad-st. Be sure to request your new flag and specify to which paper you are subscribing. If already a subscriber, one year will be added to your present subscription.

Checklist Offered

A safety checklist for the aging and handicapped (and their families) is being offered by the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children.

By answering the "yes or no" questions, the society hopes that potential accident hazards will be recognized and eliminated. Copies are available by writing to the society, P.O. Box 2118, Columbus, Ohio, or by calling 253-5523.

Technician School Open To All Who Qualify For Course

Applications for the new Columbus Area Technician School, scheduled to open Sept. 30, now total 100, according to Clinton E. Tatsch, director.

The new program, sponsored by the Columbus Board of Education in cooperation with Columbus area industries, will train technicians for the fields of electronics technology, business data processing and mechanical technology.

Ninety students, 30 in each of the three training areas, will be accepted by the school, Tatsch said. So far, applicants for the school have come 75 per cent from the Columbus area and the rest from other towns and cities.

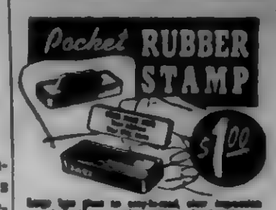
"We are pleased at the interest which students are showing in our school," Tatsch commented. He added that persons still wishing to be accepted into the first classes in the technician school should have their applications in before July 30.

Applications for the technician school can be obtained from the office at 245 W. Broad-st, or by calling 221-3766.

Standards for the school require that an applicant must be a high school graduate, have had a year of algebra and pass a test which is administered by the Board of Education.

Tuition for the two-year program is $90 per quarter for Columbus school district residents and $100 per quarter for all others.

An important aspect of the Columbus Area Technician School is that the curriculum was designed by Columbus businessmen and educators. The close cooperation by the businessmen and educators will assure graduates of the technician school "little difficulty in securing good positions," according to school officials.



The advisory committee for the technician school includes representatives from Battelle Memorial Institute, Thompson Ramo Wooldridge, Inc., Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., Columbus Chamber of Commerce, Columbus Industrial Association, Industrial Nucleonics Corp., Midland-Ross Corp., and Jeffrey Manufacturing Co.

Of course there's no Octopuses (plural of Octopus) in a Medallion Home, because no extension cords are needed. Adequate wiring and sufficient outlets for now and the future makes a Medallion Home "Octopus Proof". Fact is you can rearrange furniture anywhere in a Medallion Home without using a single extension cord.

In a Medallion Home, you'll never run into an Octopus, or Octopuses. See why, when you visit these model Medallion Homes this weekend.

LOSING COUNT long ago of the young people he has had as either elementary or Sunday School students, L. M. Cooper still recalls fondly the boys and girls he worked with for 73 years of his life.

PARADE OF BOYS IN 97-YEAR LIFE

When L. M. Cooper, 2509 E. Livingston-av, retired in 1928, he was only 62 years old, but already had 42 years of working with young people. From the time he was 20 he had taught school in Vinton county.

Coming to Ashville in 1928 to work for his oldest son, now deceased, he did not turn his back on a lifetime of teaching, but merely changed his field.

When his health finally forced him into complete retirement four year ago, he left behind him a parade of young men whom he had instructed in the EUB Sunday School classes for 35 years.

Recently the members of the first class he had begun at a time most men are through with public service met to honor the 97-year-old gentlemen who is now living with his son, L. M. Cooper, Jr.

Future generations will not forget the dignified old gentleman, now frail, but alert as ever. His portrait, painted by Rev. Francis Huber, who was once one of the hundreds of boys whose Christian education was furthered by the beloved teacher, hangs in the classroom, a gift in commemoration of the South Side gentleman who has actively guided youth for 73 years.

Two other sons, Kenneth and Aurice, live in Columbus, while his youngest son Lowell is an Ashville businessman.

Jaycees Set Heart Fund Night At Scioto Downs

Members of the Eastern Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce are participating with other area Jaycee groups in supporting the advance sale of admission tickets for Heart Fund Night at Scioto Downs Wednesday, July 24.

Proceeds will go toward research, in the fight against heart disease.

T. N. Jackson, 3010 Brownlee-rd, is president of Eastern Columbus Jaycees.

Eldon H. Brown, 1273 Broadview-av, and Donald L. Hummer, 1541 Golding-dr, Revnoldsburg, are co-chairmen of the event.

Mrs. Melvin Charpier, 2841 Farleigh-rd, is handling the distribution of tickets to members of neighborhood Heart Beat groups and the Women's Board of the Franklin County Heart Association.

Hummer, vice-president of the Ohio Junior Chamber of Commerce, is coordinating ticket sale among Jaycee groups in Franklin County, London, Plain City and Marysville.

Brown, a former county commisioner, is supervising the sale among local fraternal and civic organizations. He urges East Columbus harness fans to buy tickets in advance for the benefit of the Heart Fund, as those sold at the gate are not included in the project.

Tickets at $1 each may be purchased by contacting Mrs. Charpier at HU. 8-6287, or Brown, HU. 8-1872. Ticket information can also be obtained by calling the Franklin County Heart Association, 3416 High-st, 267-9288.

From The Desk Of
Dr. Burton M. Louis, Optometrist

Memo: Eclipse Of The Sun

To: The General Public

A total eclipse of the sun is due on approximately this Satuday, July 20, 1963.

Please Don't Look Directly At The Eclipse The eclipse will give off infra-red rays which work insidiously and burn the retina of the eye, even after the visible radiation is gone. Children's eyes are especially sensitive.

If you must watch it, use at least two thicknees of photographic film, fully exposed in day light and overdeveloped, as a filter. You can also make a primitive camera and view the eclipse backwards. The best, however is to stay indoors and watch the eclipse on TV. For any further information, call 237-1919.

Whitehall's Troop 373 Hikes The Tarhe Trail, Called One Of Scouting's Most Grinding Tests

By BOB KIEBEL

"The palms of your hand will thicken,
The skin of your cheek will tan,
You'll go ragged and weary and swarthy,
But you'll walk like a man!"

As poet Hamlin Garland wrote, Whitehall's Boy Scout Troop 373, led by Scoutmaster Vernon H. Boetcher, passed the trail requirement of the rugged Chief Tarhe Trail, each boy "walking like a man."

Called by many as one of the most grinding tests in the scouting program, the trail has lured scout troops from all over Ohio and surrounding states as well in a constant challenge to youth.

Beginning and ending at Camp Ki-Y-Ro, located approximately five miles southwest of Lancaster, the boys of Troop 373 followed the 13.1 miles in the footsteps of the Wyandot Indian Chief, Tarhe. Each group took about six hours to make the hike along the trail marked with signs showing the side view of an Indian's head, with his nose pointing in the direction of the trail.

At some points the trail follows two famous Ohio Indian trails, the Coshocton Trail, which starts at Chillicothe and goes through Lancaster to Coshocton, and the Standing Stone Trail, which begins at Portsmouth, leads through the caves in Hocking County and on to Lancaster, and ends at the foot of Mt. Pleasant, the "standing stone," where it meets the Coshocton Trail.

For their effort each scout and leader won the right to wear the Trail Medal. This medal has a yellow and green ribbon and attached is a bronze Indian head inscribed "Tarhe."

The history of Chief Tarhe plays an important part in the history of Ohio. Tarhe, "the Crane," as he was called by the British, was chief of Tarhetown, the Indian village which was located on the north bank of the Hocking River, in the southern part of what is now the city of Lancaster.

In 1790, Tarhetown contained about 100 wigwams and about 500 Wyandot Indians. They were living there when the first white scouts came up from Marietta, but nothing is known, about how long they occupied the Hocking Valley before that time.

On the warpath, the Wyandots were said to be a savage and bloodthirsty people. They frequently attacked the white settlements along the Ohio river, and it was said that probably no other tribe, even those west of the mountains, surpassed the Wyandots in the murder and devastation they wreaked along the Pennsylvania and Virginia frontiers. So far as is know, after the Greenville Treaty, no white person was ever murdered by an Indian within the borders of what is now Fairfield County.

Chief Tarhe is said to have been a "noble" Indian: tall and powerful, tops in physical strength and endurance. He was called terrible in war, but just and faithful in peace.

Tarhe ruled the Wyandot confederacy of seven tribes until his death in 1818. A great funeral was held at his home, near Upper Sandusky. Many great chiefs attended, from many tribes, and a council was held for several days. The most notable chiefs present were Blue Jacket, Tody, Killbuck, Cornstalk, White-Eyes, and Little Turtle. Among the tribes represented were the Delawares, the Mohawks, the Ottawas, the Senecas, and the Shawnees, as well as his own tribe, the Wyandots.

Baseball Future Here To Be Fans' Decision

How badly does Columbus want baseball?

That's the question Jet General Manager Harold Cooper would like to have answered in the next few weeks. Those vacant seats in the stadium are no longer a joke. The preservation of big-time baseball in this community is quickly approaching its biggest crisis since 1954, when the St. Louis chain packed up and trotted off to Omaha.

"WE'RE NOT going with our hat in our hand and we're not looking for gimmicks. We've come to a time when we just have to face the issue," Cooper said last week.

With attendance down better than 40,000 compared to a like number of home games two years ago, the issue is in doubt.

"You can't create something to force people to come to the ball park," Cooper continued. "It's not like a major league set-up where you can hold onto a colorful ball player for four or five years."

SINCE THE purpose of the minor leagues is to develop major league talent, the winning pitcher and the big hitter aren't likely to stay around long. Anyone who would wish to deny them a crack at the big show isn't much of a real baseball fan.

"I still believe baseball has a place in Columbus," Cooper said. "When or if we lose it, I think people will realize it's left quite a hole in the community."

The biggest question for the local fan to answer is: "Is the Jets IL standing directly proportional to a desire to get out to the ball park?"

Too many people have labeled Columbus fandom as a "ride the winner's bandwagon alone" type. This, we believe, is unfair. It's not a good reputation to have tagged on such an avid sporting community as we have in the Columbus area.

AS COOPER points out, International League fans are getting a sneak preview of tomorrow's major leaguers today. But sparse crowds on evenings geared to baseball have left Cooper at a loss.

The Jet general manager is quick to point the finger of low attendance at himself. But the self-accusation tag just doesn't seem to fit well on a man who was highly instrumental in saving baseball here nine years ago.

Cooper has been criticized for the Jets' work toward the Youth Foundation (unique in baseball) and the TV blackout, which is not unique in cities housing minor league ball clubs.

THE JETS ARE currently wrapping up their eighth home stand. After a five-day road trip, they will return to the stadium for a nine-game stand. Following that, only two more home stands remain.

Cooper and the Jet management do not plan to plead with fans to keep minor league baseball in Columbus. Whether International League baseball opens here next April or not has been laid squarely in the laps of fans who will or will not fill the empty seats between now and late next month.

The survival of baseball here has been taken out of the hands of the trustees, directors and management. The decision to sink or swim is up to the fan.

IF YOU DON'T care, then by all means stay home. But if you would like to continue to enjoy minor league baseball in your community, game time is still 8 p.m.

WHO'S GOT THE RIGHT-OF-WAY?

THERE'S A right-of-way policy on the golf course just like on the highways. The quickest way to display your lack of golf etiquette knowledge is to tramp up to play a hook or slice in an adjoining fairway while other golfers are ready to tee off or play their shot. Although this pair of delayed golfers display little more than disgust at our hero's interference, others aren't so patient and might not wait. It makes good golfing sense to "stop, look and listen" before playing that errant tee shot.

Comrade vs. Paschall For State Legion Slot

Whitehall (Comrade Post 490) or Grove City (Paschall Post 164) will be the district representative to the state American Legion tournament in Athens, July 29 to Aug. 4.

The two clubs, winners in the Blue and Gold Divisions, respectively, battled in the first game of a playoff series last night at Grandview but press deadlines prevented coverage.

BOTH TEAMS will play again this evening at 5 on the Grandview field with the third game (if necessary) set for Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the same site.

Whitehall wrapped up its share of the playoff spot with a 3-2 win over Capital City last Wednesday. Joel Brandt flipped a two-hitter at Capital but needed a two-run rally in the sixth frame, capped by a C-C error, to pick up the win.

Dean Ishida scored the winning run Sunday against Scioto Post (St. Charles) when he scored on a passed ball to give Whitehall a 3-2 extra-inning win.

THE LOSERS, who managed five hits off Terry Tedder, led twice, 1-0 and 2-1 but two walks, a single and the passed ball gave Whitehall its 11th win in 12 tries.

Scioto finished in the Blue's runner-up spot despite the loss.

GROVE CITY'S playoff date came a little bit easier as the Gold leaders battered Hilliard, 12-0, Wednesday and handcuffed Worthington, 7-2, Sunday.

Jon Warden silenced the Hilliard batsmen with a two-hitter while Pleasant View teammate Pat Mogan drilled a triple and single, good enough for three RBIs.

Scott Anderson took over the pitching chores Sunday and stopped Worthington on two hits while fanning 11 batsmen. Robin Eyer drove in two runs with a pair of singles while Mel Williams and Dave Beets each collected a two-bagger.

WORTHINGTON bobbles got G-C started each inning it tuned up the scoreboard. An error and singles by Paul Frasure, Pat Mogan and Eddie Harris (two RBIs) provided three markers in the sixth that salted away the win — G-C's 10th in as many tries.

In other Gold League games, Camp Chase, the unseated district champion, finished up with a pair of wins, 16-1, over DeSales and 11-1, over Hilliard.

Jim Workman's five RBIs was the highlight of the former win while Tom Cherubini's three-hitter sparked the latter victory. Chase collected a total of 27 hits in the two games.

OVER IN THE Blue loop, a pair of pitching duels highlighted action in the other two contests. Doug Cromer bested George Maurer as Franklin Post (Eastmoor) blanked Southway Post, 3-0, on Cromer's one-hitter.

Maurer allowed only five hits but Cromer was the master, fanning 11 and walking but one.

Bexley Post (Hartley) used a "charged-up battery" to slip by Groveport, 2-1. Pitcher Jack Diamond limited the Cruisers to four hits while catcher Steve Ortman drove home both runs with a fifth-inning double.

Bobby Williams, who gave Hartley but three hits, took the loss.

PAT SERGIO

Pat Sergio Wins Derby

With his black "Screenlite Special" streaking across the finish line just inches ahead of the runner-up, Pat Sergio, 802 E. Mithoff-st, won the 1963 Columbus Soap Box Derby Saturday and earned the right to shoot for the National title at Akron, Aug. 3.

Eleven-year-old Pat, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Sergio, outdistanced runnerup Jim Humphreys, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Humphreys, 395 Granville-st, Gahanna.

SERGIO, besides winning a plaque and other prizes, took home a $500. savings bond and an all-expense paid ticket to Akron for his pacesetting spin down the 850-ft. Grandview Hill.

The winner of the National Derby will receive a $7500. college scholarship.

Do You Know Your Sports?

(Seventh in a series)

For some people, trying not to roll off a log is easy. The sport of log rolling goes back as far as 1840 when betting lumberjacks, moving on log drives from the New England States to the Northwest, tried their skills of balance on the slippery timber.

Birling, as the sport is properly titled, provides competition for two men on a tree trunk, 13 feet long by 14 to 20 inches thick.

EACH TRIES to throw the other off balance by spinning the log, stopping it suddenly and then reversing the roll. The sport is uniquely American—the first National Championships held in 1898. Last year, over 10,000 spectators watched the competition.

Log rollers wear spiked boots to control the spin, twist and pitch of the timber. The primary rule of the game is to never take your eyes off your opponent's feet.

Matches are conducted on a two-out-of-three or elimination basis. The first man ducked above the waist or who crosses a six-inch center band on the log is the loser.

THE LONGEST recorded battle went on three hours and 15 minutes in 1900 before a fall was scored. Today's competitors include some men employed as log rollers, although the majority are young athletes who train for the sport.

The National Championships will be held for the third straight year at the Historyland Logging Camp at Hayward, Wis., July 26 to 28.

Rain Sunday night halted the races at Columbus Motor Speedway in the second lap of the Super-Modifieds Consi. Five events, however, were run off before the rains came.

Super-Modified event winners for the evening were: Don Townsend, Larry Bruce and Bob Smith who was declared the winner after nine laps of the semi.

THE LATE models ran off two events. The winners were Bob Bower and Keith Weaver.

Friday night at the Southside oval, Quentin Collison not only set a new record of 18.01 seconds, during the flying stock time trials, but also snared the feature, his first of the year. Don Gregory took second place.

Other race winners Friday night were: Sonny Pencil, Bill Powell and L. T. Cornett.

THIS FRIDAY night, the flying stocks will be back for a full program topped with a 25-lap feature. There'll be $500 in the "Total" game jackpot.

On Sunday night, The Columbus Motor Speedway will have the Mid-Season Championship races, for the super-modifieds drivers of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. Thrown in will be some late model events along with flying stock events. There will be a 50-lap feature for the modifieds.

Both Friday and Sunday night time trials begin at 7 and races at 8.

April 1, 1865, Gen. Philip Sheridan's Union Army defeated Confederate veterans in the Battle of Five Oaks, Va., Civil War's most important cavalry engagement.

Fishing Doldrums Here; Try Mornings, Evenings

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROD COCHRAN

Hoover Reservoir is giving up its piscatorial treasures to those anglers living nearby apparently, and is only tantalizing fishermen in this area.

Carl Schott, reporting from Paul's Marine Supply, says that fishing has been rather slow in recent days with the exception of individual catches.

LAURIS BENNETT, Galena, caught a large channel catfish on a soft craw about a week ago. The fish weighed 12 pounds, nine ounces, and was 30 inches in length.

Mrs. Homer Blumlien, Westerville, checked in with a three-pound, two-ounce walleye, caught on a nightcrawler harness.

"What few walleyes that are being caught are falling for live bait," said Schott. "Nightcrawlers are the most popular bait right now, since artificials are not producing."

IF THE WALLEYES are on strike, the bass are offering a little fishing fun for those who know how to catch them. Fishing the stumps and water edges has been paying off for some anglers. They use artificials and wade out from the bank for the most part. Night fishing for catfish is also a possibility.

With a streak of honest-to-goodness hot weather behind us, fishing is reaching its doldrums stage. Reports from Buckeye and Madison lakes have not been encouraging within the week. From now until cool weather, the fish will be taken by anglers who fish hard and who know what they are doing. Going out early in the mornings, in the evenings and at night will be the rule for most successful fishermen.

Fishing slows down in streams and farm ponds too, although a pond with light fishing pressure is a good bet all summer long. Here, where the fish are a might unsophisticated, a worm on a hook will nearly always take a mess of bluegills. A bass or two may also fall for the humble offering.

BLUEGILLS ARE still hitting surface flies when they're in the mood, but worms are more sure-fire. This is the time to take it easy while you recapture the joys of sitting with a cane pole and watching a bouncing bobber. If you ever reminisce about days past, this is a way to return for a couple of hours.

Hawks Firm Milk Bowl Preparations

The Westgate Hawks have completed plans for the first "Midwest Milk Bowl" to be played at West's Magly Field, Saturday, Sept. 7 at 8 p.m.

The Hawks, a member of the Ohio Boys Football Foundation, will host a Chicago team—the North Austin Boys Club—for the game.

THE HAWKS will carry an 43-1-1 mark into the game while the North Austin club will bring a 22-1-2 record to the exhibition tilt.

Hawk officials have announced the possibility that two ex-All American gridders might attend the game, OSU's Chic Harley and Notre Dame's Johnny Lattner.

Tickets for the exhibition game will go on sale in August.

CENTER WRAP-UP

Ties Close AK, YYA Rounds; 'Blues' Lead

Hackman Realty and Seymour Bakery will meet for first round honors after taking the divisional titles in the Jewish Center A. K. League. The winner will play the second round champ for the league title. The second round of league play starts this week.

Hackman bombed Martin's Market, 13-6, on 12 hits and a home run by Pete Rudman, knocking the Marketmen out of contention.

Hal Block and Sig Wasserman led Hackman's attack with three hits. Jerry Weiner and Burton Berk each had three hits for the Marketmen. Leon Marks was the winning hurler.

SEYMOUR BAKERY blasted Outdoor Military in a real slugfest, 21-10, as Jules Vogel stroked two circuit clouts and Marv Grossman hit one four-bagger for Seymour. Bob Skuller hit a round tripper for Outdoor. Irv Goodman had three base hits for the Militarymen.

Wolman's Insurance, led by Stu Newpoff's four hits, defeated Ontario 15-11. Marty Levinson blasted a four-bagger to drive in three runs in the Wolman attack. Henry Grinfelder hit for the circuit and led Ontario with three hits.

Kozy Kitchen kept Muffler King out of the win column with a 7-3 victory. Ben Braff hit a home run for the Kozy team as did Aaron Dachner for the Mufflermen. Ben Weis was the winning pitcher.

AFTER COMPLETION of regularly scheduled first round games, Columbus Steel and Rosati's Market are in a tie for first place in the Jewish Center's Y.Y.A. Slo-Pitch Softball League.

In a duel for first place, Columbus Steel hung on for an 11-6 victory over the Robins team. The victory allowed the Steelmen to hold on to first place along with Rosati's Market.

Columbus Steel broke loose for five runs in the top of the first inning as Jerry Topy and Rusty Frankel hit home runs. Robin's team tried desperately to catch up as they scored in every inning except one.

HOWEVER, THE Steelmen came back in the last two innings to score three runs. Bill Mackin climaxed the scoring with a long two-run homer. Besides his home run, Mackin also had two singles.

Robin's team never quit as it scored two runs in the fifth inning after two men were out. A single by Preston Gurwin, double by Bruce Meyer, and consecutive singles by Gary Cheses and Sandy Solomon sparked the rally. Cheses and Solomon each had three hits for the losers.

IN A STRUGGLE to hold onto first place, Rosati's Market came from behind to hand Tommy's Pizza its third loss, 6-5.

Tommy's scored all of its five runs in the first but could not contain the church hitting of Rosati's Market. Steve Rosenthal led the game off with a home run while singles by Steve Zwelling, Irv Galan, Rick Bender, Steve Lipson and Ron Berman produced four more runs for Tommy's.

With the score tied 5-5 in the last inning, Rosati's Super Market pushed across the winning run as Cliff Marks and Norm Elg singled before Chuck Friedenberg drove in Marks with the winning run.

IN THE OTHER game, Burger Boy took advantage of weakening Gilbert's Shoes, 20-12.

Scoring in every inning, Burger Boy pounded out 17 hits, led by Mark Peppercorn and Bill Hymans. Hymans had two homers and a double, while Peppercorn pounded out a homer, double and single.

Jack Alexander had three hits for the losing Gilbert's while Bruce Green had a perfect four for four.

WINNING TWO GAMES last week, the Blue team took over undisputed possession of first place in the Jewish Center's Slo-Pitch Softball Pony League.

Marv Ballen's Blue team overthrew Capitol Post JWV and Jetcoat Corp. by scores of 12-6 and 15-4 respectively. In other action, Capitol Post JWV broke even last week by defeating the Red Club in a close affair, 9-8. The Gold team dropped out of a tie for first place after losing to an improved Jetcoat Corp. team by a 10-4 score.

The first old-timers softball game this year turned out very well. Another is planned for 6 p.m. Monday, July 22.

In the first game, the teenagers came out the victors 19-14. The oldtimers were led by Jim Ilies' three hits, including a home run, Raleigh Mitchell (two hits), Dick Koelbel (two hits), Terry Kinney (three hits) and Ron Harper (three hits).

The younger athletes were led by Jim Smith (five hits), Denny Nordman (four hits, including two homers, a triple and seven RBI's), Rick Brown (two homers and five RBI's), Steve Wolf (four hits and a key bunt) and Mark Gussler (fine pitching). Clark Snodgrass had two late hits from the teenagers which helped break open the game.

On Friday, July 19, at 7 p.m. Fairmoor goes to Leawood to participate in the drama festival.

In Junior Jet action last Wednesday, Steve Casto and Mark Gussler's Team Two took over first place with a 10-4 victory over Team Three. They were led by the pitching of Eric Ireland, who is undefeated in league play, and the hitting of Steve Russell (three-run homer) and Eric Ireland (two hits including a home run). Tom Levy, John McLain and Mark Vincent starred for Team Three.

In other action, Team One beat Team Four 28-27. Coach Joe Pierce's Team One was led by Mike Curto (three home runs and a triple), Terry Belt (a homer and two triples), Ricky Neff (four hits), and Terry Jones (four hits). Team Four was led by Dave Trout (four hits) and Frank Barton, Ken Sirk, Andy Beckman and Gary Pennington (all with three hits).

On Friday, Team One beat Team Three 17-2 with Jerry Belt (two home runs and a triple), Terry Belt (two homers and two triples), John Van Schepen (three hits), and Tom Goldberg (three hits and fine fielding) leading Joe Pierce's team to victory. Kim McCualsky, Kevin McDaniel, and Steve Veit played excellently in defeat for Team Three.

The game was stopped because of darkness. Pat Curto had two grand-slam homers for Team Two and Gus Bowman and Monty Hannah each had two key hits.

Ken Roush had 4 hits and Buddy Gambill and Tom Crist had 2 each for Team Five. Dan Black's 2-hit, shutout pitching led Team Six to a 4-0 victory over Team Four. George Fulton and Mike Boggs were hitting stars for Team Six while Dan Phalen Charlie Shoemaker, and Phil Mirvis played well for Team Four.

On Thursday, Bob McFerrin's fine pitching coincided with the hitting of Dan Shafer, Jack Belt, and Mike Buckingham to offset the fine relief pitching of Phil Mirvis and lead Tom Findley's Team One to a 16-10 win over Ron Harper's Team Four.

Elsewhere, Ken Mullen tossed a 2 hit shut out to lead Team Two to a 6-0 victory over Dan Fleming's Team Three. Steve Wolf and Jay Tyo's Team Two was fired up by the hitting of Guv Adams (homer and triple), Nick Piermont, and Larry Smith. Bob Lepplen and Tom Stork had the only hits off Mullen.

Jack E. Campbell Has Been Cutting Meat For 37-Years

Jack E. Campbell, associated with the wholesale meat business in the same location since 1925, is now offering wholesale prices on cuts of meat for the home freezer. Campbell, located in the Central Market, is also able to offer a home freezer and food plan to interested customers.

Campbell started in the meat-cutting business at the age of nine, as the youthful employe of a firm then owned by Adam L. Andrix.

For two years following the death of his employer, Campbell operated the business for the Andrix family, and in 1946 purchased control of the meat-cutting firm.

Since that time the organization has grown and progressed until it now includes one son, Terry Campbell, employed as a full-time meat cutter, and two other sons, Eddie and Ricky Campbell, as part-time workers.

"Much of my business comes from the fraternity houses on the Ohio State campus," said Campbell, "so now that they are closed for the summer we are searching for some way to take up the slack. For that reason we are expanding to include the home freezer market, and are selling wholesale meat for this purpose. Restaurants may also take advantage of special prices."

When asked about a new location when the Central Market area is removed for the new urban redevelopment project, the store owner said he was considering several possibilities.

One would be to move closer to the university area to service his college customers. Another would be to move into another centralized market area.

He added he had made no definite plans, but would be sorry to leave the Central Market after his long association with that Center.

Campbell is married and lives with his wife and sons at 315 E. Gates-st. Mrs. Campbell, like her children, also works on a part-time basis at her husband's shop.

PREPARING CUTS OF MEAT for his many home freezer customers, Jack E. Campbell, owner of Campbell Meats in Central Market, places another quarter cut on a shelf in his large walk-in freezer. Campbell now offers wholesale cuts to customers who have their own freezers, as well as to restaurants and organizations.

Harris Opticians Changing Offices

After 28-years in the same location, Harris Opticians, 106 E. Broad, has announced it is moving to new quarters at 199 E. Broad-st.

This move was made necessary, according to Gill Harris, because the building the company is now occupying is to be torn down to make way for a new building project. Change of location is expected to be completed by Aug. 1.

Harris stated the new offices will be larger, and plans call for private individual fitting rooms and the most modern of equipment. The new location is now in the process of being remodeled in preparation for the move.

Harris Opticians was founded in 1890 in the Neil House, and has been closed only one business day since then, stated Gill Harris. This was when his grandfather, founder of the firm, died.

Since that time, the optical center has been operated by members of the family and today is headed by Nick, Joe and Gill Harris, along with other qualified eye specialists.

The firm specializes in eye examinations, fitting of glasses and contact lenses and the preparation of prescriptions for glasses.

Choral Group To Perform

In their first appearance since the international competition at Toronto early in July, Columbus' 75-man chorus of "Singing Buckeyes" will sing at First Community Village, 1800 Riverside-dr, next Sunday, July 21, at 6:30 p.m.

The "Singing Buckeyes" are district champs for the four-state Johnny Appleseed district of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

The chorus's appearance at the Village is part of their program of public service and the Village's summer program of Sunday entertainment open to villagers, their friends and neighbors in the area at no

"Inherit The Wind" Coming To Stadium

A court room drama based upon an actual trial that set all America buzzing in the 1920's, will be given at OSU's Stadium Theatre for five performances beginning Tuesday, July 23. This is "Inherit The Wind," the long-run Broadway success dramatizing the Scopes "monkey trial" that drew world attention in 1925 to the little town of Dayton, Tenn.

Current at OSU's Stadium Theatre through Saturday, July 20, is the comedy "The Chalk Garden." Tickets for both plays are now on sale at the theatre's Gate 10 Drive-In Box Office from noon to 9:30 p.m. every day except Sunday. Phone reservations may be made by calling CY. 3-2295 during these hours.

Dollar Federal Dividends Are Up

The largest dividend in its 56-year history has been distributed by Dollar Federal Savings and Loan Association.

More than $856,000 was paid out to depositors at the close of the first half, according to Harold C. Gockenbach, Jr., president.

Gockenbach said the record dividend reflected the growth of Dollar Federal. He pointed out that the semi-annual dividend in 1956 was $234,000, which means that in seven years Dollar Federal has increased payments to depositors by approximately 360 per cent.

Gockenbach said the anticipated dividend rate for the last half of the year is four per cent compounded semi-annually. All funds deposited by the 10th of the month receive credit from the first of the month.

Dollar Federal has offices at Gay and High-sts, Rome-Hilliard-rd, Olentangy River-rd and W. Third-av.

Naval Air Program Offered Local Boys

REYNOLDSBURG HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS Ronald Zollinger and Bob Kirkbride board plane for a weekend of orientation and indoctrination with the "Weekend Warriors" at Grosse Ile, Mich.

GAHANNA LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL SENIOR Jim Carr prepares to climb the steps into the United States Navy airplane for a weekend in Michigan.

REYNOLDSBURG NATIVE, ADR1 Robert Schultz, Navy Air Reserve recruiter holds the fire extinguisher as the United States Navy's four engine R-5-B transport starts is motors to transport "Weekend Warriors" to Michigan.

Many young men who have reached the age of 18 are aware they now have a military obligation to their country. The manner in which a young man meets this obligation can have a serious effect on youth and on his future.

Many of the country's young blood are now fulfilling this obligation by becoming one of the United States Navy Air Reservist's "Weekend Warriors." These boys are making their military obligation work for them rather than against them by gradually familiarizing themselves with the military service on one weekend a month and earning extra pay, while still living at home and completing their education or retaining their occupation.

Just such a program is being held at the Naval Air Station, Grosse Ile, Mich. Actually, the boy goes only to Port Columbus where he is flown to Michigan for the weekend and returned home each time his unit assembles.

This isn't something unusual. This happens nearly every weekend. If you are of draft age and you are worried or in doubt about your obligation, call or visit ADR1 David Webb, AMSC(AC) Carl S. Musgrave or for a little touch of home, talk to Reynoldsburg's own ADR1 Robert W. Schultz at the Columbus branch of the Naval Air Station, 635 N. Hamilton-rd. You can call any day from Monday through Friday from 8 to 11 a.m., or 1 to 4 p.m. They will even meet with you during the evening if you will call for an appointment.

Webb is continually on duty status from the Grosse Ile Naval Air Station. Musgrave and Schultz are on active duty from the Navy Air Reserve. In civilian life, Musgrave is with the Ohio Highway Patrol and works in the Patrol's Operations Communication Division. Schultz, whose mother resides at 1769 Lancaster-av in Reynoldsburg, is now Fire Chief in Galena.

Three area boys, Ronald Zollinger, 1499 Lancaster-av, Bob Kirkbride, 7323 Lebanon-av, and Jim Carr, 398 James-rd, Gahanna made the Michigan trip Friday for orientation and indoctrination to the Navy's anti-sub squadrons.

Upon their return Sunday, all three boys announced that they plan to go into the recruit training phase in August.

Both Reynoldsburg boys enter their senior year in the high school and play on the Raiders football team. Zollinger is a letter-man and plays defense safety man. Kirkbride, also a returning letterman, plays linebacker. Kirkbride's father, John, is superintendent of the Reynoldsburg Sanitary Department.

Non-prior service men are not the only ones seeking the Navy's reserve program. Veterans from all the services are also being sought out. The "Weekend Warriors" receive four days pay for the weekends attended. In addition, the Reservists will spend two weeks on an annual training cruise at the Michigan base.

Spectator—

our presence and with the knowledge that we are merely guests in their great outdoors, we are afforded a wide variety of entertainment by the rightful owners of this beauty.

From the first ray of morning sunlight a melody of pleasant notes fills the air like perpetual old-time music boxes.

The song sparrow, the Jenny wren, the yellow canaries come down to almost reaching distance as they proudly present their solo parts.

Round the corner of our island a mother mink and three playful wee ones filled with curiosity venture forth as though to remind us they want to share this serenity.

And a muskrat swims toward the island to see if he is missing anything while across the way Old Man Beaver drags a piece of fresh cut cedar to his new home — maybe for a cedar closet for his little lady.

Off shore a fish jumps as though to say, "Come and get me."

All through the day the show goes on. And the calm stillness of the late night presents the most beautiful scene of the show as the huge bright moon focuses the spotlight for the whippoorwill's rendition that goes on till dawn.

Surely man has not lived or learned until he has relaxed and reflected upon these scenes and these performances. Here is a lesson: God surely meant that man should strive for peaceful living.

members of postal organizations' auxiliaries were hostesses.

The new facility is leased to the Post Office Department by George W. Timmons and Sons under the department's plan to obtain facilities that remain under private ownership, paying local taxes to the community.

It gives the department some flexibility in adapting its building program to changes in mail volumes and, at the same time, eliminates the need for large expenditures from the Federal Treasury for construction purposes.

He Steals Show, Is Now In Cast

Sunday was an eventful day for the O'Shaugnessys of Whitehall and the Blackburns of Reynoldsburg.

It marked the 35th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. (Gil) O'Shaugnessy, 746 S. Yearling-rd, and the 37th birthday of O'Shaugnessy's son-in-law, Paul M. Blackburn, 1122 Carosel-dr E.

Blackburn is a Reynoldsburg councilman.

The two families made a day of it by attending the annual picnic of the Shamrock Club, but the three celebrants did not reign for long in the spotlight.

Paul Blackburn, Jr., eight-year-old son of the councilman, broke into the act — the hard way. He broke his left arm in a fall from "monkey bars."

Young Paul was whisked off to Riverside Hospital for X-rays, and a cast applied to the injured arm.

LOCATION MAP

LEGEND
Proposed Project

USING A SCALE OF 2500 feet to the inch, the above location map of the proposed Frank-rd extension is shown as recommended by Alden E. Stilson Associates, consulting engineers. The report advocates three stages of construction. The first, known as Stage One, would extend from the High-st interchange to the Lockbourne-rd interchange. Among the benefits resulting from proceeding in this manner is establishment of the shortest feasible connection between Frank and Refugee-rds, the elimination of the grade intersection at Frank and High, and realization of a more direct and rapid cross-town traffic service than now exists. Stage Two from the Lockbourne interchange would complete the high-speed, high-volume roadway between High and Rt. 33. The final stage from State Rt. 104 to High-st will provide a divided, four-lane highway from the Southwest Freeway to High-st.

Quotable Quote: Fishing is a chance to wash one's soul with pure air, with the rush of the brook, or with the shimmer of the sun on the blue water." — Herbert Hoover.

Soul Wash Day

Today was one of those soul washing days for me — two hours alone in a boat in a back channel of the French River, with a minnow-baited hook dangling over the side into some 20 feet of cold water, blue skies and sunshine overhead—cool breezes caused the water to ripple against the rocks, adding a note to the symphony of pleasant sounds from a wide variety of birds along the shore line.

Nature Has Strange Ways

The ways of nature are no different in Ohio than in Northern Ontario.

Back home during strawberry time a little brown bird had made her nest in the thickest part of the patch and we watched her progress up until two eggs had hatched. Then one day I happened along just as a big Blue Jay was dive bombing the area.

I ran to the house to get a small gun, thinking I would merely scare him away. I was too slow and the marauder picked up one of the baby birds. Later that evening we heard a commotion set up by the mother bird and by the time we reached the garden the second bird had been stolen. Next morning the one unhatched egg was gone.

But, with renewed determination, mother and father set about the building of another nest, this time in a nearby raspberry bush. Again three little eggs were laid and again two babies were hatched. While we were picking berries one day old man Blue Jay appeared on the scene and was so brazen as to start

THREE MORE FIREFIGHTERS, sworn in as members of Whitehall Fire Department July 18, increased the department to 17 men. From left are, Safety Director W. R. East-West Artery Plans Are Now At Dead Stop

No one seriously denies that money talks.

The expenditure of $25,000 by Columbus City Council for a preliminary engineering report on the Frank-Refugee-rds project certainly should be sure-fire evidence that the four-lane divided highway is in the offing.

But when this report was made public last winter, hopes arose for immediate action on the east-west traffic artery.

East Siders for years have felt the need of a cross-town thoroughfare in this area, as none exists north of Rt. 665, which is recognized as too far south to fulfill the need.

But progress has come to a dead stop.

It is not a financial problem that has caused the stand still.

With 25 per cent of the city income tax available for capital improvements, the estimated 8.7 million dollars, which would be the city's share of the improvement, is "only a drop in the bucket," according to Councilman William Fornof.

Franklin County costs are estimated at $967,000 of the $9,688,000 total, with only 0.19 mile of the 4.33-mile project falling outside the city.

Currently the proposed road is listed in the city's five-year capital improvement plan.

This means that the project can get underway this year or in 1968.

While area residents fret and council drags its feet, the bottleneck at S. High-st and Frank-rd, which dead-ends there from the east, continues, and cross-town traffic from the Interstate 71 interchange at Rt. 104 crawls along. The new facility is designed for a speed of 60 miles an hour.

Before this highway improvement can begin to take shape, the plans must be removed from the five-year category and money appropriated for the initial step, that of acquiring right-of-ways.

One of the factors that can lead council to this point is the realization that South Siders are beginning to feel like "poor relations" in the attention given to their traffic needs.

Fornoff pointed out that there are several east-west arteries in the north, contrasted to the total lack of such a thoroughfare in the south.

Councilmen and the executive branch of city government are seldom completely deaf when voters make known their wants clearly enough, long enough and loud enough.

At this stage, it looks to several experienced persons

Schools To Ask Levy Increase In Whitehall

Whitehall residents will face a school levy increase in November, in addition to a request for renewal of a four-mill levy that expires this year.

The need for additional school operating funds highlighted the Wednesday night meeting of the Whitehall Board of Education.

Board members approved a tentative budget for 1964 that is out of balance by $83,000, based upon only anticipated renewal of the current four-mill levy.

In presenting the budget, Superintendent Robert W. Crabbs told board members, "The estimated general fund receipts are based upon incomplete information. The figures now include funds based upon only the renewal of the existing four-mill levy that expires Dec. 31.

"However," Crabbs continued, "the figures do emphasize the fact that additional funds must be obtained in order to maintain the present level of operation."

The estimated general fund figures, as presented by Crabbs, were: estimated receipts of $2,147,919.95, and expenditures for '64, $2,230,948, showing an estimated deficit, as of Jan. 1, 1965, of $83,028.25.

As additional information becomes available during the next few weeks, according to Crabbs, it will be possible to more accurately estimate the amount of additional millage required to maintain the present program.

The 1964 budget estimate calls for an estimated increase of $135,000 over the preceding year's expenditures.

Approximately $119,000, or about 88 per cent of this increase, is required in the area of salaries for instruction. The major portion of this increase is for salaries of 17 additional teachers who will be required during this period, due to continued increase in enrollment.

That's the amount of "Confederate" cash available this week in the Hartley Newspapers' contest which can be won by any paid subscriber.

Twenty "Confederate" ones are also up for grabs this week, along with a five, which can be won by any reader if he follows a few simple rules.

To find the rules and names of last week's winners be sure and look for the "Confederate" Contest story in this edition of your paper. The few minutes it takes could make you a profit of $63 in "Confederate" cash that can be spent just like the real thing at any place of business advertising in your Hartley Newspaper.

Schools Ask Levy Renewal

A decision to seek renewal of its 12-mill operating levy at the polls in November was made by Bexley School Board at its meeting last Thursday.

The levy provides an annual $558,000 revenue, about 45 per cent of the schools' operating funds. The balance of the operating income comes through millage now in force and through state funds.

Final approval of the school budget was also given by board members. Receipts will total about $1,338,000, and expenditures about $1,313,000.

Bexley School Board, regularly meeting on the third Thursday evening of each month, will not convene in August. Next meeting will be held in September.

Bexley Council Hears Protest On Rezoning

Nearly 100 residents appeared before Bexley Council Tuesday night to express an almost unanimous objection to the construction of apartments on E. Broad-st at Gould-rd.

Councilmen, in their last session before their annual August vacation, took the matter under advisement and will inform the developer, Mark Merkle, of their decision on the rezoning request in the near future.

In a second public hearing, John Kerr's request that Delmar-av from Stanwood to Cassady be rezoned for limited commercial use was approved by Council.

In other action, councilmen approved the issuance of bonds to pay for the Gould-rd street improvement pro-social and the Hoot-Mons.

The Merkle Apartments proposed for construction on E. Broad between Merkle and Gould-rd would consist of several Colonial-type buildings on landscaped grounds. Units would rent from $220 to $250 a month.

Protesting residents, while conceding that the apartments would be beautiful, object to any commercial flavor to the

STRAWBERRY BUSH

Wash large strawberries; leave hulls. Insert one end of toothpick into each berry through hull; insert other end of toothpick into large lemon or orange set in a small mug or glass. 1 egg 3¼ cups unsifted flour (about)

Books Suggested To Convert Leisure Time To Pleasure

Summer time is leisure time, and leisure time can be pleasure time with a book from the Columbus Public Library branch at 2185 E. 5th-av.

Recently Dr. Harold Eiobing, superintendent of Columbus Schools, directed a letter to parents urging them to see that their children availed themselves of the opportunity to read good literature this summer, and the Shepard Branch Library has all the books listed in the leaflet, as well as newer releases that are delivered daily.

Among those recommended for kindergarten through third grade are, "Andersen's Fairy Tales," "Do Baby Bears Sit in Chairs," by Kessler, "The Blueberry Pie Elf" by Thayer, and Vance's "Windows for Rosemary"—a deeply moving story about a blind child and her wish for a typewriter.

For the youngsters in fourth, fifth and sixth grades, the Good Books Committee has chosen biographies, science, sports and fiction, among them "The Story of Helen Keller" by Hickok, "Your Wonderful World of Science" by Freeman, "Basketball Sparkplug" by Christopher and "Homer Price," McCloskey.

For discriminating adult readers the committee suggests "Silent Spring" by Carson—the highly controversial book about the deleterious effect of modern insecticides; "The Pyramid Climbers," by V. Packard, "Grapes of Wrath" by Steinbeck, "The Hemingway Reader," "The Lord of the Flies" by Golding, "The Razor's Edge" by Maugham, "The Heartland" by Havighurst and the magnificent story of the life of Michelangelo, "The Agony and the Ecstasy," by Irving Stone.

Project 33 Wins Nod

The Rural Zoning Board put its stamp of approval—with some reservations — on the proposal of Project 33, Inc., when it met Monday night.

The wholly-owned subsidiary of the First National Investment Company had applied for AR 8-18 classification for about 10 acres owned on the southeast corner of Refugee-rd and Rt. 33. The approval was given with the stipulation that apartments conforming to AR 14-26 be built instead. The acreage is part of a larger tract of land where residential construction is planned by the corporation.

At the hearing held the latter part of June, the company's legal representative presented his clients' viewpoint that with a nearby shopping center, filling station and drive-in, it was only feasible to use the part of the land nearest the neighboring commercial ventures as a buffer zone between them and the proposed single family dwellings.

Property owners objected strenuously to this contention, evincing the belief such a move was not only unnecessary, but would depreciate the value of their nearby homes.

Although the developers had stated the rental units would range in price from $110 to $160, there was obvious skepticism as to whether these figures would remain firm.

Under the zoning regulation approved by the board, 1,400 to 2,600 square feet of land would be required for each housing unit, depending upon the number of rooms in each unit.

Mrs. Thelma Hardy, zoning clerk, explained that the standards for this classification are the highest set for any apartment buildings.

Lowell Fletcher, officer of the corporation, stated that he and his associates are very pleased with the board's decision and are now awaiting the opinion of the county commission.

Although a simple majority is required to ratify the board's stand, the commissioners cannot reverse it without a unanimous vote.

Fletcher stressed that the change in requirements would call for a re-design of the entire project, and it is impossible to say at this time when construction will begin.

Only two of those who had protested the corporation's request could be contacted before press time. Their opinions seemed similar — that although no kind of apartment building would be exactly to their liking, the more spacious requirements of the AR 14-26 are at least more acceptable than the AR 8-18.

COLOR GUARD from American Legion, Franklin Post 1, raised the flag that had flown over the nation's Capitol and over the post office in Washington, D. C. Members of postal organizations' auxiliaries served as hostesses.

SUCH A SAVING!
Actually, the smart woman who goes regularly to a beauty salon such as ours, saves more money than the home-treatment neighbor. By the time a do-it-yourselfer gets to the shop, she's apt to require a great deal of extra conditioning treatments. It's a luckier lady who listened the first time we suggested a rinse for better hair health. She corrected the trouble before it doubled and saved both her good looks and her good cash! Let us show you . . . this week!
WHERE DOES HAIR START?
Realistically speaking, hair is a fibrous growth extending from our scalp. Remember that funny little Irish-face planter folks used to have, with green "hair" growing all over it? This grass-like plant came from seeds inside, as does the hair on your head. It is deeply rooted below your scalp, in a protective "follicle", with glands and natural chemicals to nourish it. Let us take care of it for you.
SETS IN A BREEZE! . . .
We've a new aid for our nimble fingers . . . a specially-formulated beauty salon hair setting lotion that saves you one-third the regular drying time! This breezy new time-saver contains four fabulous hair-conditioning oils. You came away from your combing with a lustrous new sparkle in your hair . . . more body and more manageability. Call for an appointment and then come in, let us show you!

Lantern Parade Big Playground Attraction This Week

Handmade lanterns of many sizes, shapes and colors will be paraded by boys and girls from 11 area playgrounds at dusk Friday, July 26, at Franklin and Schiller Parks. All playgrounds will close at 5:30 on this day.

The Lantern Parade is an annual mid-summer event of the Columbus Recreation Department program.

Playgrounds participating in the event at Franklin Park are Fairmoor, Shepard, Krumm, Franklin, Pinecrest and Main. Those parading at Schiller are James Road, Courtright, Willis Park, Leawood and Scottwood.

Sectional tennis tournaments got under way July 22, with the east area event, held at Franklin Park, and will be concluded this week. Finals will be held next week at a site still to be determined.

The new all-weather track at Whetstone High School will be the scene of the Junior Olympics Saturday, Aug. 3, rather than Ohio State University Stadium as previously announced.

No spikes will be allowed by the trackmen. Soft-soled shoes must be used.

Boys and girls interested in entering any division must fill out entry forms with their playground supervisor before Thursday, Aug. 1.

There are 73 different track and field events for boys and girls 17 and under. Age divisions are: 11 and under, 12 and 13, 14 and 15, and 16 and 17. This year WBNS-TV is sponsoring the Junior Olympics and will provide medals and ribbons for winners.

The event is open to all boys and girls residing in Central Ohio.

In the future are the Junior Olympics Swimming Meet, Aug 8 and 9, to be held at Maryland School, and softball tournament finals, Aug. 12 and 13.

Participants for the swimming meet may sign up now. To be eligible, youngsters must have an amateur standing and possess a card, available through the Columbus Recreation Department.

Playground leaders can supply more information.

News from individual playgrounds follows:

Shepard . . .

This week, Shepard School intermediate boys' baseball team clinched a tie for league championship by defeating Maryland Park 10-3. This brought Shepard's record to 4-0.

A win next week against Beatty Center would give them the undisputed championship. A loss will throw them into a tie with Beatty.

Junior boys didn't fare as well, losing a close 22-16 decision to Beatty. Good fielding by Gary Mixon, Duane Clark, Mark Ballard and Kiyoshi O'Bannon highlighted the Seniors effort.

The girls team defeated Maryland 22-3 to bring its record to 2 wins and 2 losses.

Anyone wanting to attend the Lantern Parade Friday at Franklin Park, can ask Miss Holloway for information.

Those wanting to enter the Junior Olympics must pick up an entry blank at Shepard School.

Entry blanks must be turned in by 9, Aug. 1.

Playground hours will change July 29, to noon to 8 p.m.

Courtright . . .

Courtright players presented "An Adventure in Jewel City" at the annual drama festival at Pinecrest on July 19.

Courtright playground will be closed during the lantern parade July 26.

Starting July 29, Courtright playground will be open from noon to 8 p.m.

Courtright will participate in Junior Olympics at Whetstone High School instead of OSU on Aug. 3.

At the recent playground horseshoe tournament, Chuck Grubb was victorious with 42 points out of 50 shoes.

The intermediate boys are in first place with a record of 3 wins and 1 loss in the Southeastern sectional softball league.

Courtright will be represented by Terry Card and George Sims in the Junior Division and Steve Grubb and John Johnson in the intermediate division in the coming City Four Square Tournament Aug. 23, at Windsor Terrace Recreation Center.

Willis Park . . .

Willis Park, participating in the lantern parade to be held at Schiller Park, is making lanterns around the theme, Humpty Dumpty. The playground will close at 5:30 for the event.

Anyone interested in the Aug. 3 Junior Olympics Track and Field meet, to be held at Whetstone High School, should contact Don Davis.

Drama festival was held at Pinecrest last Friday.

Featured this week in arts and crafts are lanterns for the lantern parade, lanyards from gimp, and working with wooden craft sticks to make jewelry boxes and fruit bowls. Classes are held weekdays from 1 to 3.

In softball last week, the best accomplishment was a 9 to 9 tie with Leawood in the intermediate boys game. Paul Gillespie and Bob Hausen had three hits each for Willis Park. Lou Robbins pitched fine ball allowing only four hits.

Junior girls lost their game at Fairmoor by 23-13. Intermediate girls also lost to Fairmoor, 12-9.

Junior Jet scores last week were: Team four 1, Team one 0; Team three beat Team two, 11-6; Team three beat Team one; 9 to 4, and Team four beat Team two, 15-6.

Next week games are as follows: Monday, Team two vs. Team three; Wednesday, Team one vs. Team three, and Friday, Team four vs. Team two.

Beginning July 29, playground hours will change from noon until 8 for the remainder of the season.

Leawood . . .

Leawood's lanterns have been completed for the parade to be held tomorrow evening, at Schiller Recreation Center. Special project is a dragon. The playground will be closed for the event at 5:30 p.m.

Preparations for the pageant have already begun at Leawood. This year's theme is a circus-fair, and the playground will be represented by a merry-go-round.

Junior Olympics meet will be held Aug. 3 at Whetstone High School, with both leaders and many children from Leawood attending. Registration for the event must be made with John Seeds.

Starting July 29, the playground will be open from noon until 8 p.m. for the remainder of the summer. Time change is due to the earlier darkness in the evenings.

In Junior Jet baseball this week, Team 1 is still in first place with a record of 5 wins and 2 losses. Team III received 4 innings of no hit pitching by Mike Burgoon.

Team IV was led by the fine hitting of Butch Hallam and Bob Held. Team II had some very good defensive work and hitting by David Kerster, and Team I was led in hitting by Richard Solsberry.

In softball this past week, Leawood Junior Girls lost to Scottwood 17 to 12, Junior Boys lost to Pinecrest 21 to 11, and the Intermediate boys tied Willis Park 9 to 9. Intermediate boys received fine hitting and fielding from Tom White and Dick Stein.

Those who passed their physical fitness tests this past week were, Joe Scott, Loyal Thompson, Danny Fox, Marc Schon, Bob Held, Dan Marburger, Greg Held, Butch Hallam and Richard Trein.

Scottwood . . .

Scottwood's theme will be "Around the World in Twenty Lanterns," in the lantern parade Friday at Schiller.

Plans are now being made for the Pageant to be held Aug. 21, and interested children are invited to participate.

During the week of July 29, 14 children from Scottwood playground will attend Indian Village Day Camp. They are George Fauris, Kenny Green, Mary Beth Ortman, David Fazio, Teresa Koehler, Chris Ortman, Nancy Schilling, Corinne Shaevitz, Billy Kood, Linda Fauris, Bob Traphagan, Steve Stoops Dennis Green and Mike Fauris.

Junior Girls softball team defeated Leawood Tuesday, July 16, 18-12. The Scotties' record is now a league-leading 3-0.

Also on Tuesday, Scottwood's Junior Boys softball team defeated Willis Park 7-4.

Krumm . . .

Krumm Park entries in the Junior Olympics are, so far, for the Junior Girls' Division in the 50-yard dash, softball throw, and running broad jump.

In the Boys' Intermediate Division, there are representatives in the high jump, 220-yard high hurdles, 120-yard low hurdles, 100-yard dash, running broad jump and the eight-pound shot put. The Senior Division has added the running hop, step and jump to the above-listed activities.

Rosita Gaines has returned to the playground. She has been collecting many autographs, and is looking forward to the day when the cast will be sawed off her leg, fractured in a home accident.

Doug Young says he is going to collect more than three points for Krumm Park when he goes to the Junior Olympics. This will better his past record.

Tommie Harkless recently had his tonsils removed — on his birthday. Friends gave him a new wristwatch.

Debbie Harkless has made a coal garden for the playground.

Mike Roddy won the parachute contest held on the grounds. He had the only homemade parachute. It was carried by the wind nearly one-eighth mile. Ervin Johnston came in for second place with his parachute.

David Roddy and Randy Urban start the week as horseshoe champions and promise to meet all players.

Krumm Park play is titled "The Little Boy Who Learned His Lesson." The cast includes Bobby, Debra Harkless; Mother, Joe Cicero; Little Boy, Mike Cicero; Little Girl, Gwyn Cicero; Three Ladies, Carmen Huckiby, Lyn Cicero, Teresa Kuckowski; Flower Man, Junior Aldredge; Crew, Janice Roach and Ramona Roach.

Director is Miss Dottie Priest. Mrs. Huckiby helped with transportation.

The time for starting to day camp is 8:15 instead of 8:30. Campers will return daily at 5:30.

Pinecrest . . .

The children from Pinecrest will take part in the South Sectional Lantern Parade at Schiller Park on Friday, July 26.

The parade will start at 8 p.m.

The softball season is half over. Intermediate boys have won three and lost two; Junior boys won one, lost three; Intermediate girls won three, lost none; Junior girls won none, lost three. The total record for the softball teams is won seven and lost seven.

The leading teams for Junior Jet baseball are major league team with a 6-0 record. Minor league record is 6-2.

Junior Olympics track and field meet entry forms are available at Pinecrest Playground.

James Road . . .

James Road's presentation at the Drama Festival was entitled, "Joe and Funny in Search of Money". Those participating were Mary Korenberg, Larry French, Doug Stammler, Brad Stammler, Jeff Izeman, Bruce Friedman, Mark Friedman and Steve Mercer.

Action in the softball leagues was carried on last week. James Road Junior Boys won from Courtright. After falling behind 3 to 0, they came back with six runs in the third inning and went on to win 10 to 5. This gives them a record of 3 wins and 1 loss with one game to play.

Intermediate boys won over Fairmoor by a score of 20 to 14, for a record of 2 wins and 1 loss. They have one game to play on the regular schedule.

Junior Jet baseball programs are now over the halfway mark of the schedule. In the National League (8 and 9 years old) each team has a percentage standing of .500. The American League is led by the Twins with a record of 5 won and 1 lost.

In the lantern parade, to be held July 26, at Schiller Park, James Road's theme will be built around rockets and space.

The Ox Roast proceeds will be used to benefit the Eagles' Christmas Charity Program which helps to brighten the yuletide season for many a youngster.

who are vitally interested in South Side development that the powers that be are going to require a healthy amount of public urging before this ball gets rolling.

Not only those concerned with the matter of ease and safety of personal transportation have a stake in the completion of these plans.

Much of the proposed right-of-way adjoins vacant property zoned industrial and commercial.

The report pointed out that it is anticipated that future development of such installations will be accelerated with the highway construction a reality.

"The entire community will share in the benefits reaped from development of this area," Fornoff emphasized.

Some elements of the administration do not seem particularly concerned with South Side development. However, there are thousands of citizens who are.

As Mike Mileusnich, president of the Council of South Side Organizations, suggested "Maybe if the people get stirred up about this, something will be done."

single-family residence zone. They ask that this standard be maintained.

Those in favor of the apartments pointed to a service station now on the southeast corner of Broad and Gould; and the fact that the northeast corner, being in Columbus, is beyond control of Bexley Council. They expressed the feeling that the Merkle Apartments would be an excellent buffer and that Bexley needs a high quality, apartment development.

The fire marshal's report on Jeffrey Mansion listed faulty electric wiring in the basement, fire extinquishers in insufficient number with existing ones unchecked since 1959, and exit doors opening inward as fire hazards.

He also cited overcrowded conditions of as many as 500 on party nights, being double the recommended 250 maximum.

The report suggested that the wiring be brought up to approved specifications, four more fire extinquishers be added and that existing ones be checked and refilled, and that doors be re-hung to swing outward. Council was given 60 days to comply with the conditions.

Bonds were issued, starting Sept. 1, to cover Bexley's expense for street improvements completed on Gould-rd. Bonds will be paid by assessment.

Candelight Service At Agudas Achim Planned By Youth

The youth of Agudas Achim Congregation, 2787 E. Broad-st, will conduct a special service for the first time in Columbus Jewish history, commemorating the destruction of the two Holy Temples of ancient Israel. The religious worship will take place Monday, July 29, at 8 p.m.

Participants will observe the Fast of the 9th of Av (Tisha B'Av). A minimum of light will be used to illustrate the gloom one is to experience on this day. Text for the service will come from Jeremiah's Book of Lamentations, written as he witnessed the destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem by the Babylonians in the year 586 B.C.E.

Rabbi Samuel W. Rubenstein, who will lead the service, said the observance is of special significance to Columbus people. On the 9th of Av, 1492, the Jews were expelled from Spain. It is believed that five Jews were among Christopher Columbus', crew the next day when he set sail on his famous voyage. "They preferred the risk of the unknown to the anguish of exile," Rubenstein said.

Rubenstein added that the theme of the day will be: "Man should take courage even during moments of darkness."

12-Year-Old Is Victim Of Drowning

Requiem mass for Stewart Payne, 12, of 351 Linwood-av, was offered Wednesday morning at Holy Rosary Church. He drowned in Alum Creek Sunday when he stepped into a deep hole while wading after a baby pigeon.

He was pronounced dead on arrival at University Hospital after firefighters' efforts to revive him with artifical respiration and external heart massage had failed.

The sixth-grade student at Holy Rosary Grade School is survived by his mother, Ion Payne; sister, Linda; two brothers, William and Bryan, and grandmother, Mrs. Jessie Payne.

He was the son of Melvin Payne, murdered four years ago. His convicted killer is now serving life in prison.

Burial was at St. Joseph Cemetery by Williams and McNabb Funeral Home.

Funeral Held For Mrs. Kohn Last Friday

Final service for Mrs. Mollie Kohn, 71 of 3191 E. Broad-st, was held Friday at the Snider Funeral Home. She died Thursday at Grant Hospital.

Eternal Vigil...

Salt air, the beating of heavy waves, and rains... these are just a few of the elements that a ship must face constantly. With all of these things, it is little wonder that the crew must be alert, looking for rust and other damage. New paint to protect the ship must be applied regularly.

An individual faces many things in this world, that would rust and corrupt his life, therefore it is good to begin each week with a renewing of spirit, that can be obtained only through worship in the Lord's house.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

RACE.... 'SOMEDAY'S YOU JUST CAN'T WIN' ....ARGUMENT

PASCHALL GAINS ATHENS BERTH

Warden, Anderson Hurl G-C Into State Legion Tournament

A pair of stingy pitching performances by Scott Anderson and Jon Warden earned Grove City's Paschall Post 164 a ticket to the state Legion tournament in Athens next Monday as the G-C entry downed Whitehall's Comrade Post with back-to-back wins in the district playoff last week.

Anderson limited the Whitehall nine to four scattered hits Wednesday evening at Grandview as Paschall picked up a 3-0 win. Scott, who collected two of G-C's five bingles off Bill Dildine, aided his own cause by driving in the only run he needed to win with a fourth inning single.

DILDINE BESTED Anderson in the strikeout department, fanning nine to Scott's six batsmen. All three runs off Dildine were unearned. Catcher Ralph Reeves drove in the other G-C run with a double.

Warden was the master Thursday in Paschall's 5-2 clincher victory. The Pleasant View hurler fired a two-hitter and blanked Comrade Post after the first frame.

Grove City went ahead in the first frame on a pair of unearned runs but the margin didn't hold up long as Jay Ketzmier tied the count in the bottom of the inning with a long home run over the centerfielder's head, scoring singling Dean Ishida before him.

BUT THAT was the last hit and run the Whitehall club got the rest of the afternoon as Warden slammed the door and collected 10 strikeouts along with his sixth victory without defeat.

Luckless Joel Brandt, (4-2) took the loss, despite the fact that he hadn't allowed a single earned run when he departed in the third.

In that frame, when G-C scored its three winning runs, Dave Beets singled, Pat Mogan was safe on an error and Mel Williams was hit by a pitch to load the sacks.

BEETS AND MOGAN tallied on the second Comrade bobble of the frame and then Williams trotted home on Robin Eyer's sacrifice fly.

Jay Ketzmeier was Comrade's bright spot, plating both runs with his homer Thursday and collecting two of the losers' four hits the day before.

Dick Gray, who relieved Brandt in the third, hurled shutout ball the rest of the way but Comrade could not get to Warden for any more runs after Ketzmier's first-frame blast.

DAVE BEETS, Ed Harris and Scott Anderson each had two hits apiece in the two-game series for G-C.

Paschall Post, who replaces Camp Chase as the district representative, now carries local hopes to Athens for the state tournament, which opens Monday and progresses through eliminations until Aug. 4.

Seymour Cops Round In Center's AK Loop

Seymour Bakery scored the game's lone run in the third inning on a dropped ball at home plate to win the first round title of the Jewish Center A. K. League from Hackman Realty.

Ike Cohen won his most important game of the season as he limited Hackman to five hits. Seymour got only eight hits but, picked up the win when Saul Milenthal crossed the plate.

SEYMOUR THREATENED but couldn't score in the second inning as back to back singles by Larry Staudt and Ike Cohen put two men on with one out.

Milenthal led off the third inning with a single, moved to third on a fielder choice and single by Jules Vogel. He then scored on the error.

Hackman's Ivan Lubash and Pete Rudman got on bases in the second inning but couldn't score.

The game featured the pitching of both teams, the fine fielding of Seymour left fielder Irv Flox and the Hackman shortstop Herschel Haus-

THE START of the second round saw Kozy Kitchen nip Martin's Market 5-4. Ben Braff led Kozy Kitchen with two hits and Marty Friedman of Martin's led all hitters with three hits. Ben Weis was the winning pitcher.

Martin's outhit the Kozy team, 13-11. Howard Banchefsky hit a circuit blow in the fifth to score two runs.

WOLMAN'S Insurance kept hard luck Muffler King out of the win column by going extra innings for a 5-4 victory.

Larry Lawrence hit a four-bagger in a four-run first inning for Wolman's. The winners did not score again until the bottom of the eighth as Lawrence applied the clincher with a two-bagger to score Bob Grad with the winning run.

Jonas Rosenthal had two hits including a triple for Muffler King. Milt Glas was the winning hurler.

OUTDOOR Military blasted Ontario 11-1 as Julius Margulies reverted back to his winning form allowing three hits. This was Margulies' second three-hitter of the season.

Dave Zinader, Bob Skuller and Harold Eisenstein all had two hits for Outdoor. Al Kaufman picked up two safeties for Ontario.

PLAYING THE first set of games in the second round, Robins, Burger Boy and Tommy's Pizza all were victorious in the Jewish Center Y.Y.A. Slo-Pitch Softball League.

In the only rout of the night, Tommy's Pizza walked over Gilbert Shoes, 13-4. Singles by Irv Galan, Steve Rosenthal, and Marv Katz started Tommy's Pizza off to a four run first inning.

Irv Galan led the winners with three singles and a triple. Steve Lipson, while pitching an excellent game, also collected three singles. Steve Rosenthal hit a home-run for Tommy's. For the losers, Dale Raffeid had two hits, including a double and a single.

In a tight battle, Robins edged Rosati's Market, 12-10.

ROBINS SCORED four runs in the first inning on singles by Gary Cheses and Sandy Solomon followed by Milt Lewis's triple. Stan Robins then scored Lewin with a sacrifice fly to left field.

Rosati's erased a 6-1 deficit in the fourth frame and took the lead momentarily by scoring seven times.

But Robins was too strong, scoring four runs in the fifth inning as Lewin clobbered a homerun with Cheses on board.

Wes Rosenthal, Rosati's captain, had three singles for the losers.

IN THE OTHER game, Burger Boy held off a rally by Columbus Steel in the last inning to defeat the Steelmen, 16-15.

Columbus Steel's three-run last inning rally fell short. Bill Hymans sparked Burger Boy with a home run and single. Ron Cohen hit safely three times for the Steelmen.

Kilmer 'Trees' Forest Is Outdoor Paradise

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROD COCHRAN

When the weather is hot and sticky I often wish that I could escape to a wooded glen in the Joyce Kilmer Memorial Forest, where a splashing brook tumbles down from the rocky heights and nature's air conditioner is turned on.

Located in the Great Smokies, near Robbinsville, North Carolina, this stand of great trees — tulip poplars, hemlocks and oaks — is a fitting place for the bronze marker carrying the poem "Trees."

It is quiet and serene in the heart of this ageless forest where the Cheoah and Snowbird Mountains join the impressive Unicoi range. In this setting it seems obvious that "Only God can make a tree."

VISITING THIS FOREST is one of the great experiences to be found east of the Mississippi for outdoor enthusiasts. The words "virgin forest" have been over-used, but here truly are trees as the Indians saw them. Many of the trees are hundreds of years old. Some are 20 feet in circumference and more than a hundred feet high. It is not easy to identify some, for their leaves are almost hidden from sight in the upper vastness of the forest.

This is a true wilderness that is left undisturbed. If a tree falls, then the trail goes around it or over it. Great rhododendron jungles are still jungles except for a path that traverses some of them. The birds, warblers and vireos can be heard, but they are up so high they can't be seen.

The memorial forest, 3,800 acres in the center of the Nantahala National Forest, was preserved by accident and not by any grand plan conceived by man. A lumber company owned the land and was cutting on the easier locations. Before they got to what is now the memorial forest, a dam flooded their railroad, making the trees inaccessible. Then the U.S. Forest Service came into possession of the property where "the trees couldn't be cut."

FINALLY, IN 1934, at the Louisville encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, a petition was sent to the government to set aside a fitting area of trees to stand for all time as a living memorial to Joyce Kilmer, who had been killed in World War I.

After a long and careful study of millions of acres of national forests from New England to Florida and the West Coast, this area in the Snowbirds was selected. It was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies on July 30, 1936, the 19th anniversary of the day on which Sergeant Kilmer died in France.

There are a number of trails in the forest and you can walk through as much or as little as you like. Nearby are famous vacation areas around Fontana and Santeetlah Lakes, where fishing and other activities are available. The memorial forest is only a day's drive from here if you get up early in the morning. It's an experience that I can wholeheartedly recommend.

TUNING IN TROUBLE

THAT OLD saying about silence being golden is most applicable to the golf course. Since concentration is such an important part of the game, it's necessary to have peace and quiet at teeoff. You probably don't go to the extremes of carrying a radio around with your golf sticks but careless chatter can be just about as distracting when someone is teeing off.

Sonny-Floyd Re-run Serves As Appetizer

Those of us who were wondering whether Sonny Liston is that good or Floyd Patterson is that bad are still wondering after Monday night's selected short subject at Vegas's Convention Center, via the Palace Theater.

People who didn't believe lightning could strike twice in the same round got converted as Sonny Boy decked the ex-champion faster than most of the ringside spectators could assault a slot machine.

IT MIGHT BE most accurate to state that Liston is an above par slugger and Patterson always was in hot water when he fought anyone with legitimate contending possibilities.

But the folks who came to see the big giant fall off boxing's bean stalk had to take their solace in the up-stage performance of Liston's next victim.

Brash Cass formally and finally broke off diplomatic relations with his September stuck out his finger toward opponent when he merely Liston after shaking hands with a then clear-eyed Patterson.

IN HIS POST fight comments, Sonny wondered aloud if Clay was around when asked when he thought he'd fight the outspoken contender who moved up a notch when Patterson sat down the third time in the opening round.

Young Cassius stormed into the ring and up to the microphone after Liston had departed a safe distance away in an effort to sell a few tickets to his September spectacular with Liston.

With a lean and hungry look, Cassius came surely not to praise Liston but rather to bury him under some more of his sometimes less than eloquent oratory.

TEARING UP A newspaper with Liston's picture in it and throwing it into the air, Clay admitted that after talkin' for five years, he was tired of talkin' and "ready."

Liston, whom Cassius affectionately refers to as a "bum," is "too big, too flat-footed and too slow—and I'm cuttin' my prediction to five."

We hate to be cynical, but the whole post-mortem ceremony reminded us of the old wrestling show pitch. Villain wins. Young challenger rushes into ring, denounces villain and promises revenge for the faithful.

CLAY DID MAKE one statement that made some sense. "I'll beat Liston 'cause he doesn't have enough experience." With less than two rounds of actual ring competition inside a year, Liston will go into the September fight at a disadvantage.

But at the rate that Liston is sending the fans home early now, it's doubtful if he'll ever get to be an experienced boxer. Probably just a rich one.

Monday night's re-run accomplished just what it intended—to whet the appetite for the main course to be served in Phillie in two months.

We would suggest getting your tickets early for this one. Who knows, one of these times you're liable to see a real fight.

Groveport Mission Home To St. Vincentian Brothers

AGAINST THE stately pines stands the shrine of Christ of the Bleeding Heart on the mission grounds. Equally lovely is a replica of the Grotto of Lourdes, the original of which stands near the birthplace of St. Vincent in France.

Today charity is a far-flung and highly organized effort to give aid wherever the need may lie.

It is difficult to realize that the seeds of our modern hospitals, orphanages, welfare agencies and asylums were planted by one individual, St. Vincent de Paul.

PIRATES and potentates, beggars and bishops, foundlings and lepers, cardinals and kings — all were woven into the life of St. Vincent de Paul.

When the French peasant boy was ordained in 1600, Europe was a land of the very rich and the very poor. In Paris alone were 80,000 professional beggars who enjoyed the largesse of the wealthy, but the poor went unnoticed and without care.

Before his death 60 years later, he had founded hospitals, homes for unwed mothers, refuges for the mentally ill, "soup kitchens" for the starving, employment agencies for the destitute able to work, and a band of priests known as the Vincentian Fathers.

Three centuries later this religious family fathered by St. Vincent, known as the brother of the Congregation of the Mission, are perpetuating the work of God begun so long ago.

At the St. Vincent Mission in Groveport live seven priests of this order, in poverty, obedience and chastity and with the fourth vow of stability which binds them to the works of the congregation for life.

St. Vincent's efforts were actually three-fold — charity, training priests, and exercise of missions.

The little group south of Columbus, headed by Father Francis Hinton, C.M., largely devote their lives to the last of these. They hold retreats and missions throughout the Midwest to inspire and instruct the laity toward the better use of their lives.

As Superior of the House, Father Hinton is confined to the area and he serves as pastor of St. Mary's Church, and Father Paul J. Husking, C.M., is the chaplain to the County Home and the Ben Franklin Hospital. Fathers John Henry, Timothy Shanahan, John Cody, Vincent Lawler and Thomas Corrigan of the Congregation of the Mission are the true "missionaries."

When one contemplates the orphanages, the hospitals, the seminars, the universities (St. John in New York is a St. Vincentian institution) of the St. Vincent's brothers and their sister order, the "Daughters of Charity," it is obvious that the 16th century priest is not "dead and forgotten."

After him have come an army of clergy (though without his hair shirts and self scourging) who dedicate their lives to the example set by St. Vincent de Paul.

Asked by the queen of France what the aging priest would have accomplished to feel that he had led a fruitful life, St. Vincent replied, very simply, "More."

This attitude earned for him the title of "The Father of Charity" and for those carrying out his work through the centuries, the respect of all nationalities, races and creeds.

IN THE CENTER of the circular drive before the massive doors of the mission is the statue of St. Vincent de Paul, the sociologist priest who was canonized.

SILHOUETTED AGAINST THE MISSION, Father Francis Hinton, C.M., watches a bird, one of many taking sanctuary in the trees surrounding St. Vincent's Mission. The fathers living there are willing hosts to the children who come to wander through the beautifully landscaped grounds, unquestionably the show-spot of Groveport. Mighty oaks, weeping willows, slender poplars, gay holly and the traditional mulberry are but a few of the plantings. An entire grove of black walnut stands to the left of the picture, a forest only a stone's throw from the village.

PATTERNED AFTER the Spanish missions of the West, St. Vincent's, which was built in 1932, is a home of both beauty and grandeur, an anachronism among the surrounding nearby "ranch-styles."

Housing Problem Acute At Capital

A record freshman class is causing a housing shortage on the Capital University campus, according to John A. Kirker, dean of men.

"We'll need housing in private homes near the university for male students," Kirker added. "We have used private homes for years for upperclass men but this is the first time we will have to house our first-year male students outside campus dorms.

Residents in the vicinity of Capital University who have available housing for male students are asked to contact Dean Kirker's office (235-8611, Ext. 25).

Capital is expecting a freshman class of about 490. A year ago, the university opened the first of four additional men's residence halls on College-av. Ground will be broken this summer for another women's residence hall.

New Apple Crop Estimates Point To Decline

By ESTELLE B. FRANKS

Fruits — Peaches, plums, seedless grapes, summer apples, melons.

Vegetables — Sweet corn, green beans, cabbage, potatoes, peppers, squash.

Meats and Poultry — Fryers, turkeys, hams and picnics, ground beef, chucks and rounds of beef, medium eggs.

Other — Canned tuna, frozen fish, ice cream.

The first estimates of the new apple crop have been released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and the forecast is that apple production in the commercial growing areas of the U.S. will be seven per cent less than last year and four per cent less than 1957-61 average.

Mrs. Franks

Of the five leading apple states—Washington, New York, Michigan, Virginia and California — which normally account for about 62 per cent of total production—only Washington has prospects for a larger crop than last year (up to 23.8 per cent).

In Ohio, the prospects now are for 40 per cent fewer apples than last year, largely as a result of the freeze in late May. Frosts also contributed to an unusually heavy June drop. Expect many of the early summer apples to be smaller than usual, due to the dry weather in June and July.

Summer varieties available now include Yellow Transparent, Lodi, Williams Red, Dutchess and Wealthy. From now until mid-August is the best time to enjoy these summer apples; most of them are better for cooking than eating raw. And, good cooks agree they are best for cooking before they get too ripe, a little too firm to eat raw.

Local Vegetables

Harvest of mid-summer varieties of sweet corn will start next week in local fields. Luckily, much acreage devoted to this crop is under irrigation, so the ears are well-filled and the kernels tender and sweet.

In general, local vegetable supplies are less abundant than normal for the season because needed rains did not come at the right time. Field-grown tomatoes are still on the scarce side and many of them are smaller than usual. However, the cool nights have been ideal for lettuce growing, and harvest of a good crop of Cobbler potatoes is under way in southern Ohio.

Beef Supplies Drop From High Levels

Beef cattle marketings have dropped sharply from spring levels since early July. The decline in beef volume, which has been more abrupt and earlier than expected, has boosted farm and wholesale prices around three cents a pound. Some increases at retail with fewer and less attractive specials can be expected, at least by late summer. However, beef volume will continue above last year, and further price increases aren't likely for now. But if your freezer needs replenishing don't wait too long, specially if you are interested in the forequarter cuts that are such good values at present.

You Can Win 'Confederate' Cash In Newspaper Contest

Hartley Newspapers "Confederate" cash jackpot continues to build up again after being emptied completely three weeks ago by an East Side family.

This week's jackpot could be worth $63 in "Confederate" cash to some luckly subscriber. However, even if you are not a subscriber you could win one of 20 "Confederate" ones or even a "Confederate" five.

You begin by searching through the advertisements of your newspaper for the "Confederate" money emblem. They're always printed in a color other than black and will appear in the white space within an advertisement.

If you find an emblem like the one in this column, you can mail it to Hartley Newspapers, 2465 W. Broad - st, and you will receive $1 in "Confederate" cash in return. Only 20 of these emblems are included in the more than 70,000 newspapers published this week.

The single winner of $1 in "Confederate" cash in last week's contest was John Szabo, 40 E. Rockwell-rd.

An emblem like the one found in this paragraph is good for the entire amount of the jackpot only if the finder is a paid subscriber to a Hartley Newspaper. If not the emblem can be redeemed for $5 in "Confederate" money if the finder will bring the entire paper containing the emblem to the Hartley Newspaper office, in person, to claim his money.

All money not claimed in each week's contest is added to the following week's jackpot.

"Confederate" money will be accepted just like real cash in any place of business advertising in a Hartley Newspaper during the week the finder discovers the emblem.

All entries must be received by Hartley Newspapers not later than noon on the Monday following the contest. This contest is closed to all employes, including carriers, of Hartley Newspapers and their families.

State Fair To Offer $3.5 Million Spectacle

During an informal luncheon conference at the Ohio Expositions Youth Center, the Ohio Exposition Commission announced that all major plans have been completed for the late August staging of the biggest and most diversified 11-day program in Ohio's proud State Fair history. This year's 110th Ohio State Fair will open Friday, Aug. 23, with Youth Day and continue through Labor Day, Sept. 2.

Speaking for the commission, State Fair Manager E. J. Keirns said, "This year fairgoers will have the opportunity to see and thoroughly enjoy a complete Ohio State Fair on the last day of the big exposition, as well as on opening day.

"This assurance is made possible by several schedule and program innovations this year, the most recent of which was finalized late last week with our acceptance of contracts from several of television's top performers.

"The Beverly Hillbillies, Johnny Mathis, the Real McCoys, the All-Girl Auto Thrill Show, Sally Flowers and Flippo the Clown are certain to offer fairgoers the type of fun-filled, laugh-a-minute type of entertainment they expect to see and enjoy at the Ohio State Fair . . . a tremendous 3½ million dollar spectacle."

Senior Citizens Center

275 McDowell-st

Senior Citizens are grateful to the Columbus Transit Co. for the service they have provided for the recreation center. They are providing a tripper service from the auditorium door of the center to High-st on Wednesday and Friday night, when the center is always open.

The bus will make two trips, the first one at 9:20 and the next at 9:50 p.m. This should be a great convenience to those who have had difficulty in coming to the center on these evenings. It is our hope that it will be well patronized so that this service to our members will be continued.

The new Sunshine Terrace apartments are occupied by 277 men and women over 65 year of age. Over 100 of these people are now members of the Senior Center and have found many of the center's activities a great addition to their life.

The patio area that joins the two areas is being used more and more by the people of both units. Last week a [illegible] supper with outdoor cooking was a new program feature. It is also much cooler to have the square dance program and evening dance in the outside area and many of the neighbors living in the apartments enjoyed watching the dancers under the night lights. When weather permits, this outside recreation will continue.

The Jet Baseball Management in cooperation with the Columbus Recreation Dept. has worked out a fine offer for our members. Any member of the Senior Citizen's Recreation Center can attend the home baseball games at half price by just showing his Senior Citizen membership card. Take advantage of this generous offer.

Recreation Is Vital Thing

Summer recreation programs in Columbus and surrounding communities serve a much higher purpose than the term "recreation" would imply.

A statement of objectives from the Columbus Recreation Department defines its program as an effort "to provide wholesome opportunities for creative use of one's leisure time, for socializing experiences, for the development of good recreational habits and attitudes, and for the learning of skills which will carry across the entire life span."

The emphasis on sports is aimed at developing physical fitness, "which will prove to be one of the most important assets of the individual and society."

The Columbus program includes 81 supervised playgrounds, 15 year-round recreation centers, 37 tennis courts, 23 baseball and 22 softball diamonds, Raymond Memorial Golf Course, Indian Village Camp, and Maryland Park Swimming Pool. Program leadership is provided by university-trained staff members.

Advancement of the 1963 Columbus recreation program includes: Construction of the year-round recreation center at Westgate Park; hard-surfacing of tennis courts at Franklin and Westgate parks; completion of plans for a year-round recreation center in Lincoln Park and North Linden area; and acquisition of land for a new recreation center on the far East Side of the city. Many other improvements and modernizations will be accomplished.

Similar recreation programs are provided by most communities in the Greater Columbus area.

The importance of healthy, progressive recreation programs for all communities cannot be minimized. These programs serve as the "ounce of prevention" for an untold number of youngsters who might otherwise become the victims of too much free time without constructive guidance.

Those who have chosen to work in the field of recreation have compiled an enviable record of faithfulness to one of the highest public trusts — the development of young bodies and minds.

Success of area recreation programs, however, is due in no small part to a general public attitude of interest, participation and appreciation. Our hats are off to the professionals and volunteers in recreation activities, and to the public at large for a job being done well.

Home Ownership Creates Stability

Considering the general healthy condition of the nation's economy, and particularly that of Central Ohio, it would appear from a money standpoint that now is an ideal time to pick out a home.

The purchase of a home is, for the vast majority, the greatest single investment in a lifetime. But the rewards of home ownership far outweigh the material factors involved.

We can readily associate with home ownership such terms as stability, maturity, roots, security and achievement. It is true that these attributes are not necessarily inherent with ownership of a home, nor unattainable by those who rent. But, generally speaking, the home owner is the backbone of the community.

He represents a direct source of revenue through local government taxation. His potential for permanency within the community makes for a sharper awareness of neighborhood and community needs.

In short, the home owner, by virtue of his direct material investment, is more likely to participate in the task of advancing enlightened social progress and responsible government. And, he will find the task more rewarding than arduous.

The climate for home ownership is excellent. A survey of local finance institutions shows that home buyers in 1963 will have a plentiful supply of features available to them at moderate rates.

Today's editions of Hartley Newspapers include two "Homes of Tomorrow" sections. Local developers and builders have been active in the past several months in the featuring of a wide array of designs and arrangements in new homes of every price range to suit every family's needs. Many of these are advertised and shown in today's special sections.

We are in an unprecedented era of availability and variety in the area of labor savers and general home comforts. These features, available in new homes and through remodeling programs, come at a cost greatly reduced from costs when the items first made their appearance on the market.

Home location is less a problem than it was in the past. New communities have opened up. Some of them are along the line of the genuine "suburbia" in outlying areas, possibly near your present neighbors.

Home builders for the most part have endeavored to anticipate family needs such as accessibility to shops, schools, churches, transportation and recreational facilities.

Home ownership is an achievement with many beneficial side effects. An employer equates home ownership with maturity and permanence. The community looks to the home owner for stability and progress.

But home ownership reserves to the immediate family the greatest beneficial effects. It is security to the wife and mother, pride of accomplishment for the husband and father, and a solid foundation for preparing children (by example) to meet the more important responsibilities of life.

No greater satisfaction can come to a family than in the knowledge that "This is our Home."

Family, Not Laws, Will Set Course For Youth

Family worship is the strongest weapon against indifference among juveniles toward God and their responsibilities to their fellow men.

In this age of expediency, many would rather see a good example than be one. In a competitive world, setting a good example is not always convenient or advantageous. Thus, bad examples flourish. Rudeness is excused as haste. Lying and hypocrisy are masqueraded as diplomacy. Tough talk proves manhood and as for cheating at school, well, "everybody does it."

Mr. Crites

Deteriorating morals have been described under the heading of a psychological safety valve, and there is a lack of emphasis placed upon Christian principles. It has been said, "You may not be totally worthless — you could serve as a bad example."

The purpose for setting a good example is for others to copy. Dr. Angelo Patri, in his book "How to Help Your Child Grow Up," said: "Parents have to discipline themselves, make good models, set good patterns for children. You cannot teach religion to a child unless you possess it in your mind and soul and practice it while you live out your days.

"If you have not kept faith with your religion, it is idle for you to send your child for religious instruction. What you are, he knows; what you do, he registers as his pattern. Would you lead your children in the love of God? Love Him and do His will and they will go along with you. What you would be, express in your daily example."

Family worship is more than taking your children to church—or worse, sending them. It is a matter of each family member understanding and appreciating a proper relationship with God and how it can be maintained.

Good discipline is teaching a child what is expected of him. Children need a clear-cut, unconfused picture of the rules you expect them to keep. It is necessary that these rules have a strong foundation, such as the Bible.

Stronger laws and tougher enforcement are not the answer to juvenile delinquency. Delinquency is the result of the breakdown in morals among adults. Look at the changing views the world has adopted on moral values.

Strong discipline, based on mutual love and respect, harmonizes with the Bible where it states in Proverbs 22:6: "Train up a boy according to the way for him; even when he grows old he will not turn aside from it."

Frosting On The Cake

By
"UNCLE DOC", ROSS — U.S.A.

In memoriam to a great lady who left this life three years ago this month at age 94: Our nationally known and most beloved Mother Anna Andrus, who joined our faculty at Capitol College in the fall of 1946 when she was 80.

This gifted and brilliant musical artist was born a queen. She remained a queen in mind and spirit until the last day of her life. For 10 years she taught piano for us and made her last concert tour all over Ohio at age 82, filling 46 engagements in 54 days on the road. She was the life of the party after every concert appearance.

Once, shortly after the start of this final tour, a car door banged her ankle badly. She never missed a performance—just got some local physician to tape it up and the next night she was on stage and with no limp and no pain. They just don't make 'em like that any more."

Twice a year for 10 years, she played all the accompaniments for our student recitals, and afterwards, sat like the artist she was in her big queen's chair, presented to her by the late "Uncle Fred" Hertel, back in 1947.

I shall remember for the rest of my life the last recital in March, 1956. She was losing her sight, but still could memorize any piece instantly after hearing it once and played it with never a wrong note.

When one has known such a great person as I did, and knew that she loved me like a son, that association is really "frosting on the cake." She was witty, patient, gracious.

Such great souls never die; they just go on to some greater and everlasting glory.

Crushed By Bike Theft . .

To the Editor:

It was only a bicycle. But it was his first bicycle. He is 12 years old. He worked, saved, denied himself many pleasures in order to buy his very own bicycle.

But the bicycle is gone now. When he awoke this morning it was gone. His new bicycle had been stolen. It was a real beauty — black, lightweight, three-speed shift.

The thief picked it up, lock and all. "Why would anyone want MY bike?" he asked, bravely trying to hold back the tears.

I tried to reason with him that some people steal bikes in front of a minister's house the same as other people's. He wanted to disbelieve but the evidence was too great. His prized bicycle was gone.

"I wish people wouldn't steal bicycles," he said. "Yes, that would be fine," I said.

If you know someone who "found" a bicycle, why not try to persuade him to take it back to its owner. It would make a boy mighty happy.

Boosts Little Leagues

To the Editor:

Kindly permit me to suggest an addition to the sports section of your newspaper.

Little League baseball teams in the West area should be included in your news. Much enthusiasm and good sportsmanship can be stressed, and the lesson of racial equality can be well served through this kind of news. The children (and parents) participating in these games will find even greater interest in doing their best as the news of their exploits become public.

We all know the devil finds plenty of mischief for idle hands, so let's help our young children to find interest in good sportsmanship — instead of forming gangs bent on devilry.

Thank you for the West Side News. You have many interesting editorials which make sense, and I enjoy reading them.

Mrs. B. M. Thompson

Ed. Note — We make every effort to obtain news of the many Little Leagues in areas covered by our seven newspapers. The organizations are complex, however, and we must depend on cooperative parents and officials to supply us with the news before sports deadlines on Monday.

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Fast Bucks 'Fever' Could Poison Us

A couple of weeks ago Life magazine told the story of the Montgomery, Ala., man who had $43,000 dropped in his lap through a bank error. The citizen, whose real balance was $342, took the $43,000 in cash, disappeared for an afternoon, and when harrassed bankers and police caught up with him blandly announced that he couldn't remember what he had done with the money.

Jones

So far this was amusing. But much less amusing was the decision of the Alabama Court of Appeals which turned the windfall-receiver loose on the grounds that there was no evidence he intended to commit a crime. If this decision holds, heaven help all businesses with non-infallible electronic check writers.

Life captioned the story "Boo-boo at the Bank," and it showed a picture of the happy citizen emerging from jail with a smirk. "He has become," said Life, "a sort of folk hero in Montgomery."

Well, perhaps that's the big trouble. For no boo-boo by a bank can compare to the boo-boo committed by a people who lose their sense of smell. And the jolly jape of the citizen in Montgomery smells.

A little over a year ago a handy-man in Los Angeles came across a bundle of negotiable bonds worth many thousands. He called the police, turned in his find, and pocketed a modest reward.

Nice little story? Worthy of a bit of applause? That's what YOU think. His phone rang for days with calls from angry Angelenos: "You stupid square—," "You idiotic [illegible]—."

Personal bankruptcies in America rose from 28,331 in 1952 to 135,125 in 1962. Was business worse? Were people poorer? On the contrary. But a lot of them discovered a gimmick. If you were in the deep the smart thing was to go in way over your head. Stretch your credit to the limit. Buy four or five thousand bucks worth of stuff in a hurry. Then get yourself declared bankrupt and laugh at the suckers who trusted you.

If we have a lot of citizens trying to weasel out of their solemn promises and their just obligations, maybe they are only imitating Uncle. While the U.S. Government urges citizens both as a patriotic duty and a wise investment to purchase U.S. Savings Bonds, it persists in inflationary debt accumulations that will cheapen the value of the dollar. Uncle Sam took in good dollars and paid out half-baloney dollars, and now he is taking in half-baloney dollars and will pay out, unless present policies are changed, all-baloney dollars.

This is legal, just as the coup of the gentleman in Montgomery has been declared legal. And it is just about as honest.

It is true that America never passed through what might be termed a "Golden Age of Honesty." Many of our Revolutionary heroes were outrageous land speculators. We went through the Indian-cheating era and the Civil War supply-swindles and the watered railroad stocks and the patent medicine hoaxes, and there may have been more crooked congressmen and more purchasable state legislators 80 years ago than you can find now.

But we hadn't lost our sense of smell. There were always plenty of people trying to throw the rascals out, even though they wound up just voting new rascals in. The preachers thundered and the editorialists moralized, and gradually the girls quit rapping on the Front-st windows and the soothing syrup manufacturers had to take out the poisonous opiates and land swindling became risky and packers were forced to quit hiding rotten meat in spiced sausages. The capacity for righteous indignation kept our seething society on the rails in spite of feverish wealth-seeking by a largely-immigrant population pouring into empty lands.

It would be a gross error to underrate the innate honesty of the American people today. A nation of cheats couldn't support a credit-card civilization. The sly and the devious don't produce the proper climate for charge accounts and money-back guarantees.

For, morals aside, America has discovered what many of the eastern and Latin nations have yet to learn, and that is that crooked business is poor business. The light-hearted cheating in the caravanseral and the cavaet emptor of the South American market place invoke the demons of low volume, distrust and poor living. If you want a roaring economy, you've got to hold the swindlers down.

That's why nothing was done for America by the geese who thought Al Capone was a celebrity, or by the Hollywood luminaries who like to get themselves photographed with known gangsters, or by the loyal disc jockey fans who rally to their payola-laden heroes, or by those labor leaders, made ruthless by raw power, who protect the racketeers within their ranks.

To survive, this country needs to keep alight the fires of righteous indignation. Our self-preservation demands that we applaud the squares and raise hell with the sly and the slick. More dangerous than Khrushchev's frown was the grin of the gentleman in Montgomery who bounded happily out of jail into the arms of his admirers.

MEN OF PRAYER

Some fly the skies, some sail the seas,
Some probe earth's rocks and soil.
But most of all, men walk the earth
And share its common toil.
With heart and hand and mind and soul,
In shop and desk and field,
They labor in a common cause
To reap earth's gracious yield.
And yet, a few illumined souls,
Earth's saints by special grace,
By never-ending, humble prayer,
Have seen God's mirrored face.
They share a vision of an earth
To Heaven reconciled,
And men, like angels, timelessly
Redeemed and undefiled.

Most of us, by necessity, some by choice, are busy doing the things that have to be done, an almost infinite variety of tasks. There are more specialized occupations than ever before. More time and effort must be spent by the young to gain the knowledge and skills they will need to find their places and opportunities in a society more complex and competitive than ever before. They have little time left for learning and thinking about things beyond the immediate necessities.

Yet, there are a few, as always, who have a vision of things beyond the necessary routines that most of us must follow. Sometimes, perhaps too often, we are inclined to think of them as impractical, visionary dreamers. But are they? Think about it.

It says here. . . .
A whole person needs food for body, mind and spirit.

Hertz Rent A Truck Can Save Truckers Cash By Leasing Them A Needed Vehicle

If you need a truck but don't have the money to buy it or if your need for a truck is only for a few hours or days, then the answer to your problem might be to rent or lease one of the big vehicles from Hertz Rent A Truck, 73 W. Main-st.

Trucks of nearly any size, from pick-ups to large moving vans, are made available by the Columbus branch of this nationwide organization for travel to any point in the United States. Manager Albert VanGundy told of trucks from his garage which had been on the road for two or three weeks and had rolled up several thousand miles before being returned.

In nearly every case, VanGundy, who helps the customer fill out application, will personally select the truck that will best fill that customer's particular needs. A skilled mechanic, Harry Carney, who has been with the local Hertz agency for the past 13 years, sees that each truck is serviced and is in good mechanical repair before it goes on the road.

VanGundy adds to this his own experience in providing the proper type and amount of insurance to see that the customer is protected in case of an accident.

All of these services are provided for the customer, who has a valid driver's license, by the Hertz firm. Extras including dollys, padding and driving accessories can also be obtained at a small additional cost.

The truck rental agency, which is connected with Hertz Rent A Car, offers late model Chevrolet and GMC trucks equipped with panel, stake and van bodies in one-half, one, one and a half, two and a half ton and larger sizes.

For the best service, according to VanGundy, the potential customer should call in advance to make arrangements to use a truck and specify the type and size truck he wishes to rent so that such a truck can be reserved. VanGundy added that in some cases trucks are reserved several days in advance and he cannot always provide the exact equipment needed to do a certain job without prior notice.

A call to Hertz Rent A Truck can be one of the best investments of time a person in need of a truck will ever make.

Civil War Fans To Hold 'Skirmish' At Dar-Lee Range

The North-South Skirmish Association (NSSA) has announced plans to hold a regional "skirmish" at the Dar-Lee Shooting Club, 388 N. Taylor-rd, Sunday, July 28. The public is invited to attend.

The event, sponsored by the First Ohio Sharpshooters and the Second OVI, will feature teams representing actual Civil War units, both North and South, in authentic uniforms. Using either actual or reproduction weapons, each team will compete for shooting honors.

Teams, with muzzle-loading muskets and firing in unison, will simulate "skirmish" lines as they would have appeared in actual battle. In this case, however, both sides will be firing from the same direction at identical targets.

Spectators will be able to watch the "skirmish," see the authentic uniforms and rifles and enjoy a display at the club house during the exhibition. A reproduction of the Remington "Zouave" musket will be available for any visitor wishing to test his skill with a muzzle loader.

The NSSA is a non-profit, self - sustaining organization with Civil War buffs and riflemen as members. Sponsoring "skirmishes" for exhibition is one of the main projects of the group.

Wives and children of the 200 participants in the "skirmish" will be dressed in clothing of the Civil War era.

Nationwide Has Higher Coverage For Seat Belts

The Nationwide Insurance Co., one the nation's largest car insurers has liberalized its auto policy to encourage wide use of safety belts. Added benefits include 50 per cent extra medical coverage, greater "confinement" benefits to those protected by Family Compensation auto benefits to those wearing seat belts.

The company also unveiled a broadened auto liability provision to protect policy holders who are required to have additional protection while traveling in states other than Ohio and in the Canadian provinces.

In discussing the additional coverage being offered Howard Hutchinson, vice-president, stated, "We feel these extra benefits will encourage more people to use seat belts." He added that "research and actual experience have shown clearly that seat belts do save lives and help prevent serious injudy."

his dive bombing with two of us right in the patch as witnesses of his crime.

He had located the nest and in one swoop picked up his first victim. A few minutes later, while we were momentarily out of the garden, he completed the job.

Yesterday we saw the same kind of kidnaper swoop down on a baby yellow canary while attempting his solo flight. Four adult canaries and two brown wrens joined in the chase and collectively we were able to chase him off the island.

Next winter as I remember these scenes I'll be tempted to cut off the rations for Mr. Jay. But, by that time, his beauty will remind me again that the laws of nature may be strange but they are made by God and man has been unable to improve upon them.

Observations

Fishing is like salesmanship—if you make the calls, you'll make the sales. . . It really is an ill wind that blows no good: Just now a heavy breeze turned my boat completely around off my pickerel hole and a two-pounder was on the receiving line in the new spot. And, when the boat returned to its original spot, there was another finny friend waiting for his lunch, but he turned out to be my dinner. . . Our lady school teacher friends from Oklahoma, on opening their cottage here this summer, found that a porcupine had visited their outhouse and proceeded to chew up the seat. Now the girls have a two holer! . . . At 10:30 Tuesday night we had callers. A Dr. and Mrs. Williams and very small baby had run out of gas at the head of Twilight Bay and Doc had rowed the nearly two miles to our place where we did our good deed for the day by providing a full tank. . . A pleasant visit this afternoon with Kib Roberts and son and Paul Hazelbaker from Greenfield, Ohio, over at Sandy Haven Camp. . . The Paul Luggers of the Hilltop area are at Keystone Camp about three miles from our island.

SEVEN PREHISTORIC SKELETONS were uncovered in these two small areas of land which is part of an Hopewellian Indian mound now being excavated near Grove City. Archeologists from Ohio State University have found relics that suggest there may be remains of a village nearby.

Seven Skeletons Unearthed In Indian Mound Near G-C

By PATTY HARTLEY

Seven perfectly - preserved skeletons and many articles of pottery and pre-historic artifacts have been uncovered by archeologists in an Indian mound located on the property of O. C. Voss, 3155 Harrisburg-Georgesville-rd, Grove City.

Dr. Raymond Baby, curator of archeology at the Ohio State Museum, estimates that the bones are those of the late Woodland tribes — Hopewell and Ft. Ancient Indians, who were buried around 1100 AD, in the great mound-building era.

Baby (pronounced "Bobby") reports that because of the sand and gravel in the area, drainage is excellent and the skeletons have been found nearly perfectly preserved. The bones were of one female, one boy about nine or ten, one teenager and four male adults. All were buried in a "semi-flex" position, with knees drawn up to the chest.

Baby speculates that there may be the remains of a village in the field near the mound, as the diggings have produced village trash—broken clay pottery, charcoal fire-cracked stones, clam shells and other broken articles. After study of the mound has been completed, the archeologists will send out a series of traces for a village.

Dr. Baby reported that discoveries made from this mound will fill in gaps in history of this area. He said he has dug villages before, but never a Hopewellian burial place of this type. He added that the mound probably took several years to build.

The Voss family has owned the property on which the mound is situated since 1925. It had been passed down to them as legend that there was a mound in the valley field. Mrs. Voss had not wanted it to be dug up, but shortly before her death she learned of the Big Darby Reservoir that will be constructed in a year and will flood the field where the mound is located. She consented to the exploration and work began June 12.

Dr. Baby said that the material taken from the mound will become known as the Voss Collection at the museum.

The team of archeologists, composed primarily of students from Ohio State University, digs in five-foot sections across a 60-foot wide area. Dr. Baby said that some article is discovered in just about every other shovelful of dirt. Disc-shaped shell beads, a highly-polished bone hair pin and two clay pipes, one of which still contained tobacco, were among artifacts found in perfect condition.

Six of the skeletons were found in one sub-layer of soil, buried one on top of another, while the seventh lay in the next lower level of soil.

Dr. Baby expects to be on the project five more weeks and hopes to have positive knowledge of what they have found within a week and a half. The digging is being financed by a River Basin Grant from the Federal Government under the National Park Service.

Baby said this is one of 13 mounds in the Columbus area. There is another one on the hill overlooking the area now under excavation, but it will not be flooded by the new dam. It has already been dug into, but Baby said his team will do work there when the current project is completed. Last year they excavated a Hopewell dwelling on the Sidnor Farms south of West Jefferson.

$2.5 MILLION "CITY"

Lutheran Project Provides Homes For Independent Retired Persons

A MAZE OF MORTAR, lumber, bricks and roofing all add up to a $2.5 million project. The 25 per cent completed Lutheran Senior City overlooks St. Mary of the Springs to the Northwest, and borders Alum Creek. Due to be completed sometime in February, the "city" will house 285 residents. Rev. Arthur Rismiller, of the Lutheran Welfare League, says, " . . . calls have been coming in daily and we expect some persons from out of state to make their residence here." Tibbals, Crumbly and Musson, 965 E. Broad-st, are the architects.

By Janet Michael

A whole new life of comfort, beauty and activity is beginning to replace the tired outlook on life, the idleness and boredom that so often become commonplace in the lives of retired folks.

Imagine — beautiful living units, in a community of interesting people, modern conviences and unlimited activities, all combined with spiritual fulfillment.

The Lutheran Welfare League has organized just such a place.

Lutheran Senior City is now being built on Parkview-av off Johnstown-rd, overlooking Alum Creek and spacious acreage of trees and greenery. When completed the project will house 285 residents with rooms for couples and individuals. Complete privacy will be offered to the resident, while at the same time there will also be opportunity for neighborhood, or family type living.

A central dining area will be built with easy access to and from all units. Tray service will be provided for those unable to participate in the family style dining.

The "city" is designed with small "neighborhoods" around

A SKYSCRAPER, symbolic of the Jewish Center's water show theme, "Neptune Of Broadway," is formed during rehearsal by a portion of the cast. They are in the middle, Ann Kegelmeyeer, Shelly Kaufher and Anna Lou Schumick, and on the sides, Ellen Gruber, Susan Mock, Kathy Mackin, Lenora Friday, Louise Friday, Kristine Stephens, Roseanne Kramer, Suzanne, Sharon and Jean Eberle.

Cast Of 350 To Stage 'Neptune of Broadway' At Center Aug. 10, 11

"Neptune Of Broadway," 12th annual water show of the Jewish Center's Swim Department, will be staged in the outdoor pool of the center, 1125 College-av, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 10 and 11, 7 p.m.

Public is invited to both performances. Tickets are available at the door.

A cast of 300 children and 50 adults will perform in a program of water ballet, synchronized canoeing, diving, trampoline and gymnastic exhibitions, and acrobatic ballet dancing.

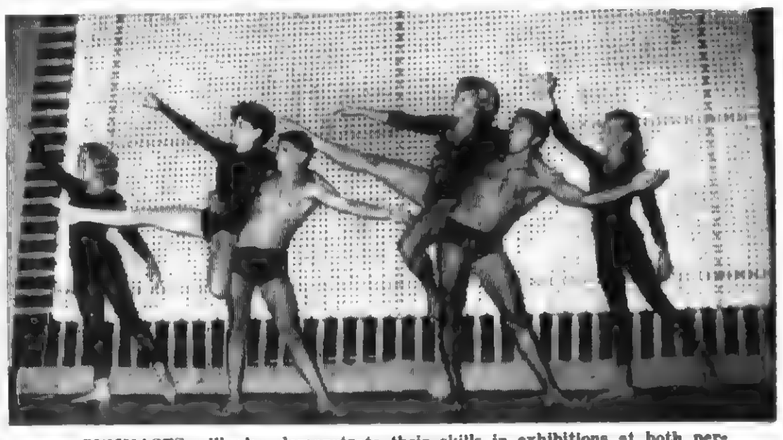
The show, in its entirety or by portions, will be repeated many times during the year for charity benefits and exhibitions, in the community, at other Jewish Centers and at the Veterans Hospitals in Dayton and Chillicothe.

Attended each year by more than 1,000 persons, the annual productions each represent a year of practice and planning, and are directed by Peggy Pierce, head of the swim department.

Key groups in the cast are the Nereides, skilled girls from eight to 17, and the Torpedoes, a group of 30 boys now under the leadership Lynda Bayliss.

Although produced and coordinated under the direction of Peggy Pierce, most of the choreography and costuming for the water numbers is done by the Nereides, part of the club's purpose of developing the girls' creativity.

A lot of know-how and experience go into the productions, with some of the older girls and boys incorporating eight or nine years of instruction, experience and practice into the show.



Howard Banchefsky is director of the center's health and physical education department, and Stuart Greenberg, former member of Ohio State University's gymnastic team, is in charge of diving and gymnastic instruction. Greenberg will present a trampoline and diving exhibition during the show, and his group will perform in a free exercise period.

Nineteen classes in water skills are conducted at the center throughout the year for all age groups, from three and a half years through the Senior Citizens groups

The center has a fleet of sailboats and canoes at Hoover Dam, and canoeing instruction is given there by Lynda Bayliss and Sissy Schwartz. Alan Ross and Sissy Schwartz conduct sailboat classes.

COSTUMED and ready for their part in the water spectacular are, from top, Lenora Friday, Suzanne Barbee, Sue Gurevitz and Roseanne Kramer.

Tribute to County 4-H Clubs

This past week it was our pleasure to hear Tom McNutt, new county extension agent in charge of 4-H club work, address the local Kiwanis Club. At this time he presented Miss Carol Norris, a member of the New Albany Stylettes.

Carol presented her speech as it would be given this past Saturday at the district contest at Waverly and we feel this area was well represented.

She spoke on safety including the following points:
S—Speed
A—Alertness
F—Fun
E—Eagerness
T—Thoughtfulness
Y—You

All those present agreed emphatically that this program was a real tribute to the fine work being done by many 4-H leaders in assisting the youth of our various communities.

Recall Anxiety

After two weeks away from the office and the grind of business it is sometimes difficult to get back in the groove. However, I find that I am quite relaxed and "recharged."

A friend who read my last two columns reminded me this past week he had seen a local man who one time many years ago took much of the joy out of my vacation trip into the north woods.

This particular year three of my business associates and myself were staying in a camp at Loring, Ontario and had traveled some six miles up river by boat, portaged far up a rocky hillside carrying luggage and euipment where we took another small boat across a large lake to a cottage on an island apparently out of reach of any of the disturbing elements that might come from telephone calls, etc.

East Expressway Construction Set

The $19 million Columbus East Expressway moved a step closer to the construction stage Tuesday with opening bids by the Ohio Department of Highways for the initial demolition contract.

Apparent low bid of $37,970 was submitted by Ace Wrecking Co., Columbus. The contract calls for demolition of 143 structures in the path of the route between Parsons and Ohio-avs.

The East Expressway (Interstate Route 70) is a relocation of USR 40 between Parsons-av and Alum Creek, and will link the Columbus Innerbelt and Outerbelt. Alignment for the three-and-one-half mile route is about midway between Main-st and Livingston-av

Construction will be divided into three sections. Scheduled for contract-letting in December is the section from the interbelt to a point just west of Ohio-av. Ohio Highway Department plans call for letting of construction contracts for the second and third sections during the first six months of 1964.

The contract to be let this year for the Parsons-av to Ohio-av section will include connecting ramps with the interbelt for both eastbound and westbound traffic, and a grade separation carrying 18th-st over the expressway. The .72 of a mile project will cost an estimated $4.2 million, including right-of-way and engineering costs.

The middle section of the route will extend from Ohio-av to just east of Nelson-rd, and will include an interchange complex with Miller and Kelton-avs. The interchange will provide traffic with an "off" ramp to Miller-av and an "on" ramp at Kelton. Westbound traffic will enter the expressway at Miller-av and leave at Kelton-av.

The project will include seven grade separations, including one that will carry the expressway over the N&W Railroad and Nelson-rd. Other separations will carry Ohio, Champion, Linwood, Miller and Kelton-avs over the freeway, and the freeway over Fairwood-av. Total cost of the project is estimated at $8.9

Whitehall Asks County For Fees

County commissioners' decision on the payment of fees to Whitehall for felony and misdemeanor cases the city's solicitor prosecutes in Columbus Municipal Court, will establish a precedent in Franklin County.

Although municipalities are entitled to payment for prosecuting these cases in Columbus court, Whitehall Solicitor Paul H. Haytcher is the first to inquire into the matter. The fees, therefore, have never been paid to neighboring cities.

Under state statute, felony and misdemeanor cases must be tried in Columbus Municipal Court rather than in Whitehall Mayor's Court. Haytcher appeared before commissioners last week to obtain payment to Whitehall for the time he spends on these cases.

Commissioners said they have no funds for this purpose in 1963, but took the matter under advisement, and will arrive at an amount for 1964. They tentatively agreed on an annual flat fee plus an additional sum for each case to cover Haytcher's traveling and parking expenses on his trips to municipal court.

Sawvel Water Study Findings Will Undergo Further Study

Present indications point to modification of some of the recommendations contained in the controversial Sawvel water rate study. The study was prepared for Columbus by J. S. Sawvel, Findlay public utility and management consultant

The general trend of negotiations toward a settlement acceptable to both proponents and opponents of oasic Sawvel recommendations indicates probable changes in the following areas:

1. An adjustment of commodity rates that would include at least token increases on an across-the-board basis.

2. Re-appraisal of capacity and system capacity charges. (The claim has been raised that 98 per cent of the revenue gained through the system capacity charge would be levied against two per cent of the users — industrial-commercial consumers.)

3. The inclusion of cost-of-service data as a constant administrative procedure.

4. Reconsideration of proposed rates for areas outside Columbus.

As a preliminary step to the re-evaluation of the Sawvel report, Council approved a motion to table the pending water rate increase ordinance. The Council action concluded the pre-recess session that ended at 1:15 a.m. Tuesday.

But the groundwork for expected basic changes in the ordinance was laid during a

The victory clinched the league championship, enabling Shepard to advance to the city softball championships.

Down 5-1 after four innings, Shepard tied the game up in the fifth and went on to build up the final winning margin, while relief pitcher William Small shut out Beatty.

Turning point in the game was when left fielder Dwight Cartier made a spectacular catch with the bases loaded and two out. Had the ball gone past him, it probably would have been a grand slam.

Championship team members are Stanley Shepherd, Larry Gooleaby, Richard Tucker, Bobby Filand, William Small, Donald Johnston, Ken Brown, Bill Davis, Dwight Cartier, Larry Burke, Ed McClane and Raymond Muse.

Theme for Shepard Playground was "The Wizard of Oz" in the lantern parade Friday at Franklin Park.

Willis Park . . .

Thirty-three children from Willis Park are attending day camp this week at Indian Village on the Scioto River.

Junior boys' softball team won the season's final from Leawood 12 to 7, which left the team with a 5 and 2 record for the season. Joe Walker homered and pitched a three-hitter in the win for Willis Park.

Junior Jet schedule was over last week. Team three won by forfeit over team four. Team four beat team one, 10 to 9, and one game had to be postponed to a later date.

Next week's games are: Tuesday — team one vs. team two, Wednesday — team three vs. team four, and Friday — team one vs. team two.

James . . .

James Road's Junior Softball team closed out its season with a 3 won 2 lost record.

In its last game, it was beaten by Scottwood by a score of 9 to 1. The game was tied at 1 to 1 going into the bottom of the sixth inning, when Scottwood scored eight times to put the game out of reach

Boys and girls at James Road are working on their "Wild Animal Act," which they will present at Schiller Park Aug. 20.

The Junior Jet program will be completed Aug. 13. Team 4 is leading the American League with a record of 7 won, 2 lost.

In the National League, all four teams are closely bunched.

Teams are reminded of Junior Jet Night at Jet Stadium Aug. 12 and 13. All Junior Jet players will be admitted free to Jet Stadium. It will be necessary to wear their T-shirts for admittance.

NEW ATLAS PLYCRON TIRE embodies the greatest advance in tread design since the advent of low-pressure tires!

UP TO 25% MORE MILEAGE!
Road tests show the new Atlas Plycron tire can deliver up to 25% more mileage! Two great advances make this greatly improved mileage possible. One is a new tread design that puts more rubber to work on the road to distribute the wear over a greater area. The other is a new rubber formula containing a new super-tough synthetic.
Compare the two tires above. The one on the left is a new Atlas Plycron that has never been driven. On the right is an Atlas Plycron that has been driven 22,001 miles. More than half the tread is still left!
STOPS FASTER! The new Atlas Plycron gives faster stops due to more rubber at work on the road. Up to 20% more skid resistance, too!
RIDES SMOOTHER! Due to a new tread design and a larger air chamber, the new Atlas Plycron Tire gives a softer, smoother ride . . . minimizes road noise!
BACKED BY THE GREAT SOHIO GUARANTEE! Gives you a choice of adjustment on time or tread wear! Ask about details. Honored on the spot at over 50,000 service stations in the United States! Get Liberal Credit on all Atlas Tires at Sohio.

DICK RUTTER, Blacklick Park's newly-appointed park custodian, looks as if he is drinking paint, according to the sign, but he was just caught performing a little preventive maintenance with a paint brush for the Columbus Metropolitan Park Board. Rutter lives on the old Joe Ashton farm, just east of the park.

Gas Co. Plans Another Rate Cut

A one-cent decrease for each 1,000 cubic-feet of natural gas used from Sept. 1 to Dec. 1 has been announced for Columbus and certain neighboring municipalities by the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.

This latest cut will bring the overall reduction to five cents since Sept. 1, 1962, an average savings of 82 cents per month, according to a gas company spokesman. However, the gas company will end the total rate reduction after Dec. 1 and the rates will go back up two and one-half cents.

These rate reductions were the result of refunds from a gas supplier to the local gas company.

Areas affected by the decrease will be Columbus, Bexley, Gahanna, Grandview Heights, Grove City, Marble Cliff, Reynoldsburg, Riverlea, Upper Arlington, Valley View, Worthington and Whitehall.

DON'T BE Penny-Wise, Fire Foolish

With two fires on the South Side Sunday caused by the use of a penny in place of a fuse, the public is again given an object lesson against the dangerous practice.

The loss in the home of John Days, 1320 Mooberry-st, reached $1,500. Prompt cutting of the wires in the C. W. Cade home, 1210 Wager-st, prevented structural damage.

"Misuse and abuse" of electricity, of which penny-fusing is a common means, ranks as one of the five major causes of fires throughout the country, according to Chief Elmer J. Brophy of the Public Information office of the Fire Prevention Division.

With the solid copper of a penny bearing a current heavier on a circuit than is even brought into many houses on the main line, the department pointed out that anyone using this fusing method leaves himself without any protection whatsoever.

A fuse will blow either because of a short or an overload, and this short or overload can start the fire anywhere between the appliance and the fuse box when the fuse or "safety valve" is circumvented.

Brophy pointed out that while often a penny is used as a stop-gap measure, too many householders promptly forget about it and a regular fuse is not again thought of until it is too late.

Any fuse larger than 15 amperes is designed to be used with the heavier wiring of major appliances.

Using big fuses for lighting circuits is another dangerous practice.

One would be wise to check his fuses now to learn whether someone, either through ignorance or neglect, has allowed a penny to take up permanent residence behind a regular fuse.

It doesn't even take a thin dime to buy a fuse, a form of insurance against the loss of one's home or possibly one's life.

Franklin Park Floral Displays In Full Bloom

In spite of the drouth, the floral displays at Franklin Park are in full bloom.

In the displays are many kinds and types of flowers which can be used in home gardens, according to Foster Franks, Division of Parks horticulturist.

All of the plants in the exhibit were grown in the park greenhouse by the staff. During the past winter, 25,000 plants were grown for the garden and city hall and floral displays at the zoo.

The Franklin Park displays feature large beds of cannas, petunias, marigolds, spider plants and salvia. These have had to be watered heavily to bring them into bloom and are continually weeded and cultivated by park gardeners.

Strike Threat Halted At WE Plant

Agreement on a new contract has probably averted a possible strike by members of International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW), Local 2020, against Western Electric. Union spokesmen attributed the last minute agreement to work done by Federal Mediator Edward McManus.

Although the negotiating committee has accepted the Western Electric contract offer, the union meeting scheduled earlier will still be held at Eastmoor High School this afternoon to consider the new contract offer. Union by-laws require the meeting be conducted.

A union spokesman said a no-strike vote would be recommended by the Negotiation Committee to the 2,400 union workers. Western Electric employs 3,300.

The new contract offered by Western Electric includes a 3½ per cent wage hike, 25 per cent company-paid hospitalization and increased job security benefits. The first two items were considered major issues in the negotiations. Original union demands called for a four per cent wage increase.

Federal Mediator Edward McManus, who joined the talks Wednesday morning, was mentioned as instrumental in the agreement. One spokesman stated he felt that without his assistance a strike would have been called.

As yet, no date has been set for ratification of the agreement. The contract proposal includes two wage opener clauses and pay increases of six to 12 cents per hour.

Kennedy Letter Asks Help For Civil Rights

A plea for help in solving civil rights problems was directed to Whitehall Board of Education members in a letter from President John F. Kennedy.

The letter, addressed to Lawrence M. Robinson, school board chairman, was read at the July 24 meeting of board members.

"The leadership that you and your colleagues show in extending equal educational opportunity today will influence American life for decades to come," the Kennedy letter said.

The President urged board participation in a nation-wide effort this summer to persuade young people to return to school in September.

"As you well know," the President wrote, "this is a problem which affects both white and Negro students and their families. It is of particular significance because of the lack of job opportunities for inadequately trained youth and the explosive situation in many of our great cities."

President Kennedy stressed the importance of education in making "equal opportunity" a meaningful phrase. He cited the need for general and vocational education for the disadvantaged.

Congress has been asked to expend federal support in these areas, the President said. But he cautioned that the main task rests with state and local educational systems, and with public and private institutions.

"I have also urged," the Kennedy letter said, "that there be established across the country bi-racial commissions to aid in solving problems . . . in the area with which we are so concerned. I hope that you and your colleagues will work actively with these commissions and urge their establishment where they are not yet in existence."

A DAY AT THE WHITEHALL TRACK-FIELD MEET

TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS – BUT REWARDS BEFORE HEADING HOME

IT WAS A DAY of both trial and tribulation last week as the Whitehall Recreation Department conducted its third annual Track and Field Meet with over 400 youngsters competing in the activity. At far left, nine-year-old Dave Fowle displays the form that won him the first-place ribbon in the high jump event in the Boys' Midget Division with a leap of 4'6". Accidents do happen, however, even at track meets. Second picture shows March Robe receiving some simple first aid from Whitehall squadmen after taking a spill in one of the running events. Rewards for a job well done are enjoyed in next picture as Ronnie Knapp (left) and Robin Runck collect third-place ribbons for their efforts in the boys' relay event from officials at the awards booth. Maybe a little weary rom the day's activities, young competitors (right) leave the field of action for the "Parking lot" and a ride home to tell of their big day at welcome supper table.

GOLF ETIQUETTE--6

DON'T BE AN "ADD NOW – PLAY LATER"

IF YOU'VE ever played behind a slow foursome who seem ignorant of your desire to play through, you know that this gesture could be titled the last straw. The true test of patience comes when the mathematical genius of the foursome remains on the green after putting to record scores. Actually a bogie doesn't improve or a birdie disappear while walking to the next tee to figure a scorecard. Remember, greens are for putting, not addition.

Professionalism Harms Little League Purpose

The formation of Little Leagues to promote kids' baseball in this country was received with open arms at its introduction. The boys were having fun; Pop caught a glimpse of his yesteryears while watching that 'chip off the old block' and community spirit reached an all-time peak. Everybody was happy.

But as the system grew and multiplied, the opinion on Little League baseball became sharply divided. Today, there are people who will not allow their boys to don the pint-sized pin-stripes.

THE FINGER of suspicion has been distinctly and unquestionably pointed at professionalism — the cancer of amateur athletics which isn't satisfied until it's eaten the fun right out of the game.

"My boy isn't ready to be a 'Big Leaguer,' "is the way one parent puts it. "When they give the game back to the kids, I'll let him play," remarked another.

We do not intend a blanket condemnation of Little League baseball. LL organizations that put fun, sportsmanship, teamwork and skill development on the line as their selling points are to be heartily commended.

AS FAR AS we have been able to discern, the local setup is based on solid foundations. But the old saying about the shoe and its ability to fit the foot still goes.

One of the best setups we've heard about is practiced in Kettering, O. No spectators are allowed on the practice fields. There are no stands behind the backstop, and dugouts have been located where they are not easily accessible to interfering spectators.

One of the biggest points in question is the so-called "point system" by which Little Leaguers can be "bought, sold and traded."

ACCORDING TO the system, each coach is given a certain number of points at the outset of the season, which he may spend (as a major league team might with cash) to set up a top-notch ball club. Each boy is rated with the "All-Stars" costing more points than the kid who has a hard time getting the bat off his shoulder.

The coach must decide whether to empty his point-purse on three or four established 'stars' or take a chance on six or seven 'low-pointers' who might develop into stars once they reach 'big league maturity.'

The rationalization of the system seems to revolve around the argument that point systems make for more balanced leagues.

IT SEEMS TO us that maybe the cart has been placed before the horse again with this train of backward logic.

Case in point — John Doe, one of this area's most talented young players who moved to St. Louis. It seems that another team was interested in acquiring Johnny's services and so Johnny was 'sold.'

Unfortunately, his new team was located 30 miles from his home. Johnny quit playing baseball.

HOW ABOUT a fair evaluation? If plain, old-fashioned fun is disappearing from the game at even the pint-sized level, let's go all-out and get the neighborhood nine on the bubble gum cards.

Ridiculous? Maybe not, when you stop to consider that winning ball games was meant to be just a segment of the purpose of playing the game at this age level.

It's bad enough to expose the high school crop to the overwhelming pressures of 'win-win-win.' But when you serve that kind of cocktail to an eight-year-old, you're buying trouble on the installment plan. And putting Junior on the block for that curve-ball specialist two blocks over isn't exactly a remedy.

A BIG PAT on the back to those coaches and parents who have been untainted by the symptoms of professionalism. They may not necessarily be filling trophy cases or building future major leaguers, but they are providing stepping stones to physical, mental and emotional maturity.

Maybe that's corny and doesn't win many ball games, but maybe the guy with the best record isn't always the winner.

SIX QUESTIONS FOR COACHES AND PARENTS

Is the coach really prejudiced playing Billy at your Jimmy's position?

O.K. So Jimmy struck out. So did Harmon Killebrew — 142 times last season — and he's a major leaguer! Is it really that bad?

That easy grounder went right through Tommy's legs. Before you open your mouth, did you make any errors today?

Billy only played one inning tonight. But, did HE have a good time?

A good manager would have had him bunt. Why aren't you coaching a team?

That's 22 wins in a row. Do my players respect me as a coach?

Trailer Camping Adds Comfort To Outdoors

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROD COCHRAN

You become expert in the matter of hitches, lights and the like when you go trailer camping. But it all seems worthwhile once you are under way. You are not really camping, for you have the conveniences of a portable vacation cabin hooked on to your car.

We made our first trailer jaunt to East Harbor State Park in a Maclean, made by the J. S. Maclean Co., 470 S. Front-st. After making numerous trips in a tent trailer, the move to a hardtop was not difficult after we got hooked up. The extra load was noticeable, of course, but after a few miles towing was no problem.

THE TREND to trailers is booming. You see many of them on the roads these days, and park officials verify the grounds. At first, old-time campers scoffed at those who took a home away from home into the outdoors with them. observation that more trailers are showing up in camp- But now it's the accepted thing to have a trailer of some kind, either tent or hardtop.

I first became interested in trying such a rig myself when I saw the Maclean trailers being built last winter. At that time Hayden Maclean offered to lend us one for a few days to get our reaction.

We discovered nothing startling. They are certainly handy and convenient. In a long stretch of really drenching weather, they would spell the difference between a successful vacation and no fun at all. Weighted against the trailers is the extra load you carry and resulting loss of gas mileage.

CAMPERS ARE a friendly lot, and since we were quartered in the trailer area at East Harbor we talked about trailers with our neighbors. One family across the way was from Cleveland and had rented a trailer for their first trip. Everything was going well and they were enthusiastic about trailer camping. It seemed as if a trailer of some kind would be squeezed into their budget next year.

Another man from Ontario, not far from Niagara Falls, had built his own trailer, and his suspension system was not a complete success. He and his wife were confined to low road speeds, but they were enjoying a camping tour as much as anyone else.

The number and types of trailers on the market are great, but there is one constant rule—the more features you have the more they cost. In a park the size of East Harbor you can see a fair sampling of the rigs in use today, and they range from fairly crude home-made "sleepers" to the ultra jobs with air conditioning and television. Some even have picture windows.

OUR DECISION was that trailer camping is fun, but it's not camping. With its foam mattresses and screen door, it's more like staying in a vacation cottage. But it has the real advantage over a cottage of being mobile, and you can spend your vacations and weekends in different locations. The people we talked to liked this, and it seems certain that you will see more and more hardtops on the road.

Robins Leads YYA; Seymour, Military Win

Robins took over undisputed possession of first place in the Jewish Center YYA Slo-Pitch Softball League last week.

Exploding for eight runs in the fifth inning, Robins blasted Tommy's Pizza, 14-5. The eight-run inning was climaxed by Ron Elkins' homer. Herb Wasserstrom collected two singles during the same inning, as Robins sent twelve men to the plate.

In addition to his home run, Erkis also had two singles. Milt Lewin had a triple and two singles for the victors. Irv Galan, Alan Weinberg, Ron Berman, Steve Lipson and Jerry Goodman all had two hits for the losers.

WITH THE SCORE tied 3-3 going into the top of the sixth inning, Rosati's Market scored five times to defeat Burger Boy, 8-3. Consecutive hits by Pete Blue, Len Greenwald and Jay Rips started the big inning. Then with Rips on second and Norm Eig on first, Arnie Hendon hit a long home run to put the game out of reach.

Homeruns by Mark Peppercorn. Herb Grodner and Lee Siegel were not enough for Burger Boy, as all of them were hit with the sacks empty.

IN THE OTHER game Columbus Steel pounded out 21 hits to bombard Gilbert Shoes, 22-8.

Bill Mackin led the Steelmen as he demonstrated amazing hitting ability blasting two home runs, a triple and a single. Mark Levine also had four hits, while Jerry Topy and Dick Siegel each had three hits. Mel Finke homered for the losers.

SEYMOUR BAKERY in the K Division and Outdoor Military in the A Division forged into leads for second round honors with five weeks left to play.

Seymour took a hard fought 6-3 victory from winless Muffler King as Ike Cohen bested Jonas Rosenthal in an eight-hit pitcher's battle.

Cohen, Marv Grossman and Irv Flox led the Seymour attack with two hits each. Jonas Rosenthal had two hits as did Leon Beck to lead the Mufflermen's attack.

OUTDOOR MILITARY took a 5-3 thriller from Kozy Kitchen. Bob Skuller blasted a triple for two RBI's to lead the Outdoor attack.

Marty Alder led Kozy Kitchen with two hits as they picked up five hits in all. Julius Margulies picked up his second straight win as he limited Kozy to the five hits.

Hackman Realty kept pace with Outdoor Military keeping one-half game behind by blasting Wolman's Insurance 12-3. Hal Block, Hershel Hausman and Leon Marks had three hits each for for Hackmen.

Bob Grad hit a four bagger and a double to lead Wolman's six-hit attack. Marks was the winning pitcher.

MARTIN'S MARKET nipped Ontario 8-4 to keep in contention for Division K honors.

Dr. Burton Berk smashed a round tripper as did Marty Friedman to lead a 14-hit assault on Ontario. Sam Baker's three hits, including a home run, kept Ontario in the game. Bernie Shapiro launched a three bagger in a 13-hit Ontario attack.

Teens Tour Canada On Camping Trip

A group of 20 teenagers from the Jewish Center are due home tomorrow, Aug. 22, after a once-in-a-lifetime experience. They embarked July 22 on a 12-day visit to Canada. Their journey took them to Niagara Falls, Toronto, Algonquin Park, Detroit and Ortonville, Mich.

This program is part of the Jewish Center's Tween Camp program for junior high schoolers.

The oldest group, mostly 14-year-olds, spend one month in preparation for the experience by learning camping skill, passing survival swim tests, learning to handle a canoe and researching the areas they are to visit.

The teenagers travel in a specially equipped school bus, the first in Ohio to have both seat belts and a safety running light, Richard Neustadt, chairman of the Tween Camp Committee, said that the committee was concerned that every possible precaution was taken to insure the safety of the trip.

Adults supervising the program are Joseph White, 675 Eastmoor-blvd, and Carole Thall, 724 S. Roosevelt-av.

The teenagers have camped in tents and cooked their own meals. They have been hosted by the Toronto YMHA, the Detroit Jewish Community Center, and Camp Tamarack of Detroit.

Part of the trip included a two-day canoe trip in Algonquin Park, Northern Ontario. Another highlight was a tour of the Ford Plant in Dearborn, Mich.

Taking part in the program are Larence Blazar, 394 S. Harding; Leonore Moser, 1749 Gaynor-rdd; Debra Gorenstein, 1580 Kenwick Myron Kaufher, 685 Montrose; Randy Davis, 266 S. Stanwood; Eric Zitron, 4934 Justin; Kenneth Ruben, 255 S. Roosevelt; Steven Jay, 139 S. Remington.

Lois Schecter, 1713 Newfield; Lynn Gundersheimer, 2671 Bryden; Sandra Robinson, 2559 Fair; Judy Schacter, 1584 S. Roosevelt; Joseph Tauber, 1585 S. Roosevelt; Anita Shapiro 1483 Cunard; Karen Pilzer, 71 Napoleon; Charles Derrow, 1714 Spartan; Kalman Dworkin, 220 S. Ashburton; Bruce Roth, 2775 Elm, and Pete Freed, 179 N. Roosevelt.

Four Arrested For Violating Sunday Law

Four construction workers, cited by Whitehall police for violation of the "common law" section of the Sunday Closing Law, will be prosecuted by Solicitor Paul Haytcher, who said he would file affidavits in Columbus Municipal Court within 10 days.

The four were arrested Sunday at two construction locations in Town and Country Shopping Center.

Enforcement of the Sunday Closing Law in Whitehall was resumed last Sunday. Mayor Walter Moling said the city had made no arrests for "blue law" violations since early in the year, expecting that the Ohio General Assembly would change the law.

Since the law did remain in force, Whitehall will start cracking down on offenders.

To Vacation In California

Selma Turner, 148 Parklawn-blvd, manager of Penney's Town and Country Alteration Department, will leave Sunday, Aug. 28, for a vacation in California.

While there, she will visit former Columbusites, Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall in Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford in Glendora, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Anderson in Long Beach.

Handicapped Kids Guests Of Explorers

Twelve Explorer Scouts of Post 271 played "big brothers" to a group of handicapped youngsters from the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children Wednesday, July 31, when they took the children on a day's outing to the Columbus Zoo.

The Scouts, sponsored by Eastminster Presbyterian Church, arranged for round-trip bus transportation, Zoo admission and a train ride for the children who attend the Society's Treatment Center.

After touring the Zoo attractions, the group had a picnic lunch.

Explorer Post advisor is William Henkle, Gahanna; associate post advisor is Craig Bush, 1489 Millerdale-rd, and post president is Wayne Ballantyne, 109 N. Virginia Lee-rd.

Mrs. Robert Childers, group room teacher at the Treatment Center, accompanied the children.

The outing celebrated the final day of classes for the children, as the center will be closed for therapies and classes during August.

A STUDY OF ENVIRONMENT

WHEN PURCHASING a bottle of catsup or a pack of tomatoes, few realise the study behind the continued efforts to improve the works of mother nature. However, Karen Anne Gerdeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gerdeman, 1676 Parkinson-dr, is one of 40 academically talented high school students selected to take part in a biological sciences summer institute being held at Ohio State University. A student at Bishop Hartley High School, Karen is shown assisting Dr. Walter N. Brown, professor of horticulture, in a study of environmental effects upon pure line tomatoes. The program, sponsored by the College of Agriculture and Home Economics and the National Science Foundation, allows students to work on actual research projects under the supervision of individual faculty members. The program will continue through Aug. 16.

emblems do not appear in every newspaper and are always printed in a color other than black and placed in the white space surrounding an advertisement on the inside pages.

To claim $1 in "Confederate" cash from Hartley Newspapers, the reader must find an emblem like the one in this column and send the entire advertisement, containing the emblem, to Hartley Newspapers, 2465 W. Broad-st, before the deadline at noon on the Monday following publication of the paper. The "Confederate" cash will be mailed back to the winner.

If the reader finds a "5" emblem, like the one found in this column, printed in a color other than black on the inside pages of his paper, he can claim $5 in "Confederate" cash by bringing the entire paper containing the winning emblem into the Hartley Newspaper office in person.

If the finder of the "5" emblem is a paid subscriber to a Hartley Newspaper, then he can claim the entire jackpot which contains $88 in "Confederate" money this week.

This contest is open to anyone reading a Hartley Newspaper. Each week 20 emblems containing the number "1" are placed in 20 different copies of the more than 74,000 copies of Hartley Newspapers. Only one "5" emblem is placed in the entire edition each week.

The contest is not open to employes of Hartley Newspapers, including carriers, or their families.

Spectator—

But, imagine the anxiety when a small boat comes up to where we are fishing one day to advise that I am to make a telephone call immediately to the long distance operator in Columbus.

With every conceivable tragedy that might enter my life passing in review in my mind the next two and a half hours were spent in getting back to the main camp to make the telephone call.

Well do I remember my fury and even some of the words in my expressions when the call turned out to be from an obnoxious local attorney who was merely seeking to pressure my local editor into the use of a story which had been turned down in our Columbus office.

Needless to say he accomplished nothing with his call except my then severe ill will.

When I was reminded of this incident this past week I could not help but remember the tensions of that ride across the lake. Yet, I am also reminded that time heals all ills.

Names are so deceptive,
In numbers we'll trust.
Ashes to ashes,
And dust to dust,

Booklet Of Flag Etiquette Included In Newspaper Offer

What is the proper way to raise and lower your American flag? When should the flag be displayed and what are the exceptions? What is the proper way to hoist your flag when planning to fly it at half staff?

These are just a few questions answered by the pamphlet on flag etiquette included in every flag kit purchased during the special offer being made by this Hartley Newspaper.

The pamphlet also gives tips for preserving and cleaning your flag as well as describing the proper way to dispose of it when your flag is no longer a fitting emblem for display.

During the special limited offer by Hartley Newspapers, the flag kit — containing a new 3x5 cotton American flag, six-foot wooden pole, halyard, top decoration, window socket and pamphlet on flag etiquette, along with a one-year subscription to any Hartley Newspaper — is priced at just $5.

Separately the flag kit is usually priced at $5.98 and the cost of a one-year subscription is $3. This means an overall savings of $3.98 to readers of Hartley Newspapers during the limited offer.

Since this combination offer was first made several weeks ago, nearly 400 readers have taken advantage of it by making their purchase of a new flag.

If you have not yet purchased your new 50-star flag for coming patriotic holidays, be sure to take advantage of this offer while the limited supply is available. When the remaining flags are sold there will be no more ordered.

Send your name and address, along with a check or money order for $5 for your new flag, to Hartley Newspapers, 2465 W. Broad-st. Be sure to mention the newspaper to which you wish to subscribe. If already a subscriber, one year will be added to the expiration date of your current subscription.

Divi-Chek is just one month old, yet it has already captured the fancy of hundreds of Central Ohio savers. These people were amazed to find that they could invest in a Divi-Chek account in July and receive the first monthly portion of their earnings in advance on Aug. 1 . . . and . . . a check regularly each month thereafter. You can get your first Divi-Chek on Sept. 1, if you open a Divi-Chek account by Aug. 10.

• JUST LIKE A PAYCHECK • NO COST TO SAVERS • FIRST TIME IN OHIO

• WHAT IS DIVI-CHEK?

With a DIVI-CHEK account you earn at the same high rate of dividend (4%) but you receive a check EVERY MONTH instead of only twice a year! This is the first time such an arrangement has been available to savers in Ohio! There is no charge to you for this service. Example: If you deposit $10,500 in a DIVI-CHEK account and do not add to or withdraw from the account until the end of the earning period, your monthly DIVI-CHEK will amount to $35.00. DIVI-CHEKS are actually advances secured by the recipient's savings account and are repaid automatically from regularly distributed earnings.

• WHO IS ELIGIBLE?

Anyone may open a DIVI-CHEK account with a minimum deposit of $5000. This includes individuals, partnerships, corporations, trusts, organizations and associations.

• ADDITIONS OR WITHDRAWALS?

Once your DIVI-CHEK account is opened, additions or withdrawals can be made (in multiples of $100) provided your balance remains at least $4000.

• WHO BENEFITS MOST FROM REGULAR MONTHLY DIVI-CHEKS?

Anyone who needs or prefers a planned periodic income instead of a lump sum payment of earnings. DIVI-CHEK accounts are particularly beneficial to those who are using their savings to support themselves — widows, retired people. People with seasonal occupations will realize the value of regular monthy checks in the off-season months. A planned periodic income can serve nearly anyone better than a lump sum payment.

Guard Your Credit Cards

Loss or theft of a credit card can cost you money. But the credit card holder does have protection if he acts promptly in reporting such loss.

Some credit cards bind the holder to all charges against the card until such time as it is returned to the issuing company. But in the event of loss or theft, there is a reasonable degree of protection afforded to the person to whom the card is issued.

The courts have ruled that the issuing company must make reasonable effort at the time of each sale to see that the proper person is using the card. Under the law, credit card holders must not mislead the concern issuing the card and must guard against use of the card by any unauthorized person. In return, the firm must also take measures to avoid honoring the card when presented by a wrongful user.

Issuance of a credit card may impose on the holder an unconditional promise to pay for any purchases made on the card. This, however, does not relieve the businessman or firm from using good faith in charging purchases to the card.

Each merchant or credit company may extend credit on different terms. Only if the terms are unfair, or if the customer is in an unequal bargaining position, or bound to unreasonable terms, will the agreement not be enforced.

Don't take chances with a lost credit card. If yours is lost or stolen report the loss to the issuing authority immediately.

Jets In 1964 -- Yes Or No?

After a disastrous start, the Columbus Jets have taken on the look of a pennant contender. Whether they can close the gap between their present standing and the top position is still an unanswered question.

There's one question you can answer now. When was the last time you were out to the stadium? A ball team's home advantage encompasses more than just the physical layout of the stadium.

The large local crowd vigorously pulling for its team has probably helped more ball games than a friendly right field fence.

Jet GM Harold Cooper has wondered aloud lately if Columbus really wants baseball. The challenge to local fans is just as great as the one facing the Jets in these final five weeks of the season.

If you can't remember how much fun it was going out to the ball game, then you've been away too long. The Jets have two more home stands—Aug. 8-15 and Aug. 20-25.

Let them know Columbus wants baseball!

Boosts Editorial Page

To The Editor:

I consider your Editorial Page a source of interesting, informative and constructive reading. In my opinion the page in the July 25 edition excelled all past efforts.

Article No. 1—"Recreation Is Vital Thing" worthwhile reading for all ages.

Article No. 2—"Home Ownership Creates Stability" no one should have missed reading this, it meant so much.

Article No. 3—"Family, Not Laws, Will Set Course For Youth." Nelson A. Crites so aptly sets forth the need for family togetherness and the fruits to be obtained therefrom. Often it is said, a family that prays together, stays together.

Article No. 4—"Fast Bucks' Fever Could Poison Us," by Jenkin Lloyd Jones. Mr. Jones brings out the fact that although many people are always looking for ways to make a fast buck, the great majority of people prefer to get their bucks by the sweat of their brow.

Thanks for wonderful reading.

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

'Tremendous Tinkerer' Changed World

One hundred years ago Tuesday Henry Ford was born.

He was born in the light of a kerosene lamp. The dynamo was still a laboratory curiosity. The Otto gas engine was six years away. When Baby Henry opened his eyes, wind still drove 90 per cent of the world's ships and falling water powered most of its machines, steam pushed the locomotives. Otherwise man found a horse or walked.

Jones

Henry was a tinkerer. His disgusted farmer-father said he had "wheels in his head." At school he learned little except the McGuffey maxims, corny but uplifting. While the kids played One Old Cat, Henry squatted by the brook making little waterwheels and turbines.

You might say Henry never became anything else but a tinkerer. He was a wrench-and-pliers man. He never read or wrote easily. He could have used a slide rule only to pick his teeth. But he had a sense of machinery.

When he was 12 his parents gave him a watch. He took it apart and reassembled it immediately. The foreman fired him from his first mechanic's job because he fixed in 10 minutes a babbit box on which the foreman and four skilled workers had been laboring for hours. On Christmas Eve, 1893, when he was the 29-year-old superintendent of the Detroit Edison Electric Co., he lugged into the kitchen a contraption consisting of a gas pipe cylinder, a homemade piston and a flywheel off an old lathe. While his nervous wife poured raw gasoline through a hole he spun the flywheel. In the roar and flames that followed, his life's ambition became clear.

He would build an automobile—the cheapest practical automobile on earth. An automobile for nearly everyone. "The Universal Car."

By 1903, the year the Ford Motor Co. was incorporated with $28,000 capital, there was an estimated 1,200 "motor companies" in America, most of them in barns. When Ford's first Model A rolled out the door, the company bank balance was down to $223.65. Fortunately, the cars sold well from the start, and the Ford Motor company never went to the lenders. It grew from nothing to a giant on its own earnings.

There were squabbles in the board of directors. Alexander Malcomson, the biggest stockholder besides Ford, wanted to make luxury cars. He left in bitterness. One-by-one other shareholders sold out to Ford and James Couzens for what they considered handsome profits. Albert Stretlow sold his five per cent of the company for $25,000. He blew it all on a mining venture.

Then in 1908 Ford brought out the Model T and what had been a vein of gold turned into a Golconda.

For 20 years everybody laughed about the Model T. Every vaudevillian had his Ford gags. "What time is it when two Fords go down the street?" (Tin after tin). A tin barn roof is rolled up in a tornado. As a joke the farmer sends it to the Ford factory. The reply: "It will cost you $43.50 to fix your Ford. What hit you?" The Ford company delightedly collected and published hundreds of them.

But the Model T was the most carefully researched car that had ever been produced. For three years in a corner of the factory, Ford, a couple of draftsmen, a young metallurgist, and a few trusted artisans put the first Model T together.

What will give strength with lightness? The new vanadium steel. How do you get a hot spark without a battery? A magneto system. How to shift gears most simply and cheaply? A planetary transmission. It was a car stripped to the bare essentials. But the Tin Lizzie bounded over the rutted roads of America, splashed through the creeks, rode high through the gumbo. There were other cheap cars, but the Model T was the only good cheap car.

It caught on like wildfire. Within a few months the embarrassed company had to quit taking orders. So the moving assembly line was born. The man no longer went to the job. The job moved past the man. Ford made the industrial world furious when he established the $5 wage at a time when $2.50 a day was standard for skilled labor.

Cars demanded roads, first graded, then graveled, then paved. Rural life lost its isolation and the shock was felt everywhere. The crossroads "general store" languished. The newborn interurban died quickly. "Milk" trains vanished. Blacksmiths became garage men.

As Ford grew fabulously rich and famous his blind spots became apparent. He saw little use in colleges. He hadn't gone. He couldn't understand why people bought paintings when photographs were more accurate. With kind conceit he tried to stop World War I by financing a "peace ship." He took a brief fling at anti-Semitism as publisher of the peculiar "Dearborn Independent." He mulishly overrode the protests of his bright son, Edsel, and held on to the Model T until General Motors took his measure with the snappier Chevrolet.

He was not a great mind — only a narrowly-clever man. But he believed in machines. He thought they would make the world happy. He wanted to straighten the bent back and remove the drudgery of labor. And he did.

Henry Ford, not Karl Marx, was the modern revolutionist. The masses under Communist rule all dream wistfully of the day when they can have a car.

Frosting On The Cake

By "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

The biggest successes are those people who save their own soul on the way up the ladder of life. Others have some degree of success by being rough and tough and threatening with their fellow humans, but it is an ersatz success, and they wind up with no ability to unwind their record.

Millions of people live out their lives in sad-sack slavery to drudgery, only because they know nothing of the dynamics of real achievement. They hate to get up in the morning, and they hate to go to work, and they hate the boss, and they wind up hating themselves.

Success, without finding the secret of happiness, is too often a hollow sham. By failing to take care of the "out-put" as well as the "in-take," they are wide open to the charge of ingratitude, and the ingrate is always the most miserable of beings.

No one ever begins to become "somebody" until he has learned to respect folks who have already become "somebody." Just be sure you pick the right models to admire.

Honest sweat, coupled with honest minds, activated by healthy ambition to amount to something, make up an unbeatable formula for happy and contented living with one's self.

The everlasting will to be kind and considerate costs nothing except a high type of social intelligence.

THE SECOND BATTLE

On a quiet Sunday morning in July, 1913, this writer stood in the front yard of a Southern Ohio rural church and heard an old soldier tell of his experiences of a few days before in "The Second Battle of Gettysburg." A reunion had been held there on the 50th anniversary of the battle.

The 50,000 who came were welcomed by Governor Tener of Pennsylvania. The U. S. Army Quartermaster Corps bedded them in tents and fed them from field kitchens. War Secretary Garrison spoke: "The passions of yesteryear have become a comradeship under one flag."

A woman sang the National Anthem while a Confederate old soldier waved the flag of the Union beside her. The crowd cheered.

Men were still coming in on July 2. But already 6000 had gone home because of the 90 degree heat. The oldest was Micajah Weiss, age 92.

By July 3, 10,000 had gone home, seven had been injured, and eight had died. But Pickett's charge was reenacted 50 years to the hour after the original. When the Confederates reached the grove of trees (still there) and the stone wall, the Bloody Angle, they were greeted by handclasps instead of the hot fire of muskets and the cruel steel of bayonets.

On July 4, President Woodrow Wilson spoke of "the high recklessness of utter devotion that does not count the cost."

So ended the reunion of Gettysburg, the greatest up to that time, perhaps of all time.

The Call To Prayer Applies In Space Age

Two years ago as I first entered the Arab World in Cairo, Egypt, there came the unforgettable experience of hearing the Moslem Call to Prayer. How weird the musical call sounded in its minor key! Notwithstanding the differences I felt with this ancient system, I could not help but be impressed as faithful Moslems bowed to the ground in response to their call to prayer.

Rev. Perkins

We of the Christian world likewise have a call to prayer. In an age which is jet-propelled it is increasingly difficult to heed that call which the Prophet long ago gave with such meaningful emphasis: "If my people, which are called by My name, shall humble themselves and pray, and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from Heaven, and will forgive their sin, and heal their land." (2 Chr. 7:14).

Long ago the disciples had wisdom to ask for guidance in prayer. "Lord, teach us to pray" was their petition. We need to be reminded again of the words recorded by the prophet: "In quietness and in confidence shall be your strength." (Is. 30:15). The Psalmist spoke words of comfort to a troubled world: "Be still, and know that I am God." (Ps. 46:10)

As a boy I recall our little rural congregation singing certain Sunday School songs almost every Sunday. One of them was:

What a friend we have in Jesus,
All our sins and griefs to bear;
What a privilege to carry
Everything to God in prayer!

O what peace we often forfeit,
O what needless pain we bear,
All because we do not carry
Everything to God in prayer.

Paul admonished the followers of Christ to "pray without ceasing." "In everything give thanks." "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." The example of the early church was that the members "continued steadfastly in the Apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers." (Acts 2:42).

Great men of God have always prayed. Noah prayed and God showed him how to build the Ark of Deliverance. Moses prayed and God directed him and the children of Israel through the wilderness. Daniel prayed and the mouths of lions were closed. Elijah prayed and God did what Baal could not do for 400 of his prophets on Mt. Carmel in consuming with fire the sacrifice.

Jesus often prayed through the night and has left us in the Word great examples of praying: "Nevertheless, not my will but thine be done." On the Cross: "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do;" and the Lord's Prayer. The disciples prayed and were filled with the Holy Spirit. The result was that 3000 souls were added to the church. So today the Christian with power and the church with a message are those who pray.

In the home of John Wesley there is a little prayer room, perhaps a key secret to his greatness. Would that we could have more prayer rooms in our homes today! "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

Christian friend, pray!

Pray at the times of need, lest you become fearful and despondent. Pray at the times of blessing, lest you become self-reliant and proud. Prayer is the unfathomed dimension of space our present generation would do well to explore.

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

Vegetables, Melons Top List Of Plentifuls

By ESTELLE B. FRANKS

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruits—cantaloupe, watermelon, peaches, plums.

Vegetables—sweet corn, tomatoes, green beans, potatoes, lettuce, cucumbers.

Meat and Poultry—fryers, forequarter cuts of beef, ground beef, hams, medium eggs.

Other—canned tuna, dairy foods.

It's August again . . . with prospects for the usual peak supply of summer vegetables. It's also the large supply month of two summer favorite fruits—cantaloupe and watermelon.

You can serve a different colorful vegetable every day with the variety expected this month. Sweet corn harvest is in full swing now, bringing the best eating varieties of the season to market. Quality is good. Vine-ripened tomatoes come from nearby fields from now until early frost; prices are lowest in August and early September. Look, also, for attractive prices on lima beans, beets, snap beans, cabbage and lettuce.

Mrs. Franks

This year's cantaloupe supplies are slightly above average, and it's in August that peak supplies come to our markets from many regions. If you like the homegrown cantaloupe best, harvest of a good-sized crop begins early this month. The quality of the Ohio crop is reported to be very good as a result of the bright sun and hot weather for many weeks.

Watermelons have been placed on the plentiful food list by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, so expect prices to stay reasonable. Only a few watermelons are grown in Ohio. Peaches and many varieties of plums are available. Bartlett pears start this month but the total U.S. crop will be small this year.

Meats and Poultry

You can keep the outdoor grill hot, because there will be plenty of top grade beef coming to market. The prediction that cattle marketings will taper off late this summer and into the fall still stands.

Mid-summer beefsteaks for the grill will likely be more costly than a few weeks ago; other cuts will not vary much from July prices. You can expect retail prices on fresh pork to remain at present levels through August. Bacon prices continue to edge up; cured hams have declined a little.

Meat men say lamb and veal supplies will increase slightly during the next two months and that bargain prices on fryers will continue.

Sawvel—

July 23 meeting between Council members and representatives of the Development Committee for Greater Columbus.

It is expected that a subsequent meeting will be scheduled with Mayor W. Ralston Westlake and administrative personnel, including C. Wayne Freeman, finance director; Ernest Stork, public service director, and Frank Wright, water superintendent. The meeting with Westlake administration officials would then be followed by scheduling of a third public hearing, according to present general plans.

Sources close to the water rate hike proposal have indicated that a final disposition by Council might not be reached until after the November elections. This possibility is attributed to the length of time required to give adequate attention to a complete review of the ordinance.

When asked about the July meeting, Mayor Westlake said he was not aware that such a meeting was held. He also said he had not received a copy of a Development Committee statement reportedly distributed to Council members.

Finance Director Freeman also reported that he had no knowledge of or information concerning the July 23 meeting.

Council President Mrs. Golda May Edmonston confirmed that the meeting was held. She said she was given copies of the Development Committee report to forward to the two councilmen who were not in attendance at the meeting.

Mrs. Edmonston stressed that the July 23 meeting was not a public meeting, and that Council members did not commit themselves to any specific course of action. "We said we would study their problems," Mrs. Edmonston stated.

She said the meeting included discussion of the proposed $300 water tap charge. It was pointed out, she said, that this charge would work against developers who would be required to include the charge as an added initial investment.

Mrs. Edmonston said tabling of the current water rate ordinance would allow time to determine savings to the water department as the result of ordinances passed during the Monday night session.

The ordinances to which she referred would transfer 58 employes from the Division of Water to the Division of Parks and Forestry.

The ordinances transfer to the Division of Parks and Forestry the responsibility for maintenance and construction of park lands and facilities. The work was previously charged to the water division payroll.

Finance Director Freeman reported that the change would decrease Division of Water operating funds for the balance of 1963 by an estimated $129,000. He estimated a $304,000 operating decrease for 1964.

Mrs. Edmonston said there is "no use discussing the Sawvel report now" until results are known on savings to be effected by the streamlining ordinances. "I would have no idea when that will be," she added.

The currently planned revision of the water rate ordinance is scheduled to be completed within a few days, but will not necessarily represent the final draft of the rate increase measure.

A prime purpose in revising the ordinance will be to eliminate extraneous material and focus attention on areas including the basic rate structure, capacity and system capacity charges, fire protection service and overall consideration of rates inside and outside Columbus.

million for the 1.44 mile section.

Final section of the route will extend from just east of Nelson-rd to the outerbelt. A ramp from Main-st will permit access for westbound traffic.

The project includes a relocation of Alum Creek-dr between Main-st and a point about one-half mile south of Livingston-av. The construction contract will also call for an interchange complex with Livingston-av and relocated Alum Creek-dr. The 1.28 mile project will cost an estimated $5.9 million, including right-of-way and engineering costs.

Highway department officials said completion of roadwork will require two construction seasons for each project. It is currently estimated that the full route could bear traffic in late 1966 or early 1967.

WHAT MAKES TOP-FLIGHT BOARD MEN?

Terms of four of the seven Columbus City School Board members expire this year. They include those of President Paul Langdon, Vice-President Homer Trantham, Donald E. Calhoun, Jr., and Daniel D. Hayes.

By 5 p.m. August 7, candidates to fill these vacancies must file their petitions in order that their names may appear on the ballot in November.

Philip Drake, president of the Ohio School Boards Association, recently published a list of qualities important in the citizens who will be chosen to govern the public schools.

He suggests a study of these qualifications by candidates before declaring themselves in the running, and by the citizens who may be influential in urging a potential candidate to file.

He first brought out the point that an overall interest in students and public education is essential, lamenting the fact that too often a candidate is motivated to run because of a primary interest in one facet of the total program such as the budget or a particular policy he may disagree with.

Coupled with that was his contention that a board member should be willing to subordinate his personal interests to objective action for the interests of his entire community. He extended this latter point to include a loyalty to the democratic process which allows bowing to the will of the majority and a realization that the lay board must work closely with the professional administrators they appoint.

Drake feels that only past participation in community affairs can give the candidate the knowledge of his district's past and enable him to make forsighted plans for the future.

Emphasizing that "board membership is not for the faint-hearted," the OSBA president declared a potential board member must not only have the courage of his convictions and be able to resist intimidation by pressure groups, but be willing to accept the responsibility of his mistakes.

Believing that poor judgments can be made with the best of intentions, Drake asks only that such errors not be "covered-up," but rectified.

As public faith in the body which spends hundreds of thousands and sometimes millions of the taxpayers' money is deemed important, Drake states that an earned reputation for integrity and good judgment is of essence, and past activities in community affairs should be made a matter of public record.

Finally, it was pointed out that long hours and stamina are required by the man or woman who fulfills his responsibilities as a school board member.

"School board membership is not an honorary office," he stated, with the contention that the candidate must devote much of his free time to board affairs, and it is not a post for one who is out of the community for extended periods or does not have time and energy to devote to school problems.

Drake concluded with the admonition that there are no perfect school boards, no more than there are perfect people.

His plea was only that those whose qualifications most nearly approximated the high standards needed for the important posts be selected.

It takes a Good Eye...

TO THREAD A NEEDLE

Did you ever thread a needle? ...Most everyone has, it takes a good eye, for the opening is small. Did you ever try to thread one while someone else held the needle? ...This is almost impossible. All this brings us to the point that... there are some things that we must do ourselves. We can not send someone else to church for us, we can not have someone else worship the Lord for us. These things are strictly on an individual basis. ATTEND CHURCH THIS SUNDAY ...YOU'LL BE GLAD THAT YOU DID.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH ... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

BUSINESS REVIEW

Instant Auto Wash Has Reputation Based On Ten Years Of Service

After 10 years in the same location, Instant Auto Wash, 3943 E. Broad-st, has built a fine reputation for quality and service in the field of cleaning cars. In many cases, customers keep coming back to the Town and Country Shopping Center location from as far away as Grove City, Gahanna and Reynoldsburg, as well as Eastern Columbus.

Now under the leadership of owner-manager Joseph MacKinnon, the firm is continuing to offer quality work and MacKinnon says soon he will announce the opening of another branch of Instant Auto Wash in a new location.

The fact that some members of the crew at the popular auto wash have been with the organization for five or six years, and that one man has been on the job since the washing center opened its doors, testifies to the reliability and quality of service furnished to customers.

Instant Auto Wash specializes only in the washing business and, accordng to MacKinnon, will continue to do so, at least until the new operation is open for business. "At present we concentrate on washing cars, our one and only business," said the manager.

The washing of a car by Instant Auto Wash involves seven steps to insure the auto is clean inside and out. First the car is vacuumed inside, then the bumpers, wheels and grill are steam cleaned, followed by a hand application of detergent and wax. The car is then thoroughly rinsed and dried by 80-horsepower blowers. The final process is cleaning of windows inside and out with a sponge, damp towel and dry towel.

Regular customers have told MacKinnon that after a few trips to the auto wash they find their cars have taken on the appearance of having a wax job, due to the wax added during the wash jobs.

MacKinnon is a native of Columbus and graduate of St. Charles High School and Ohio State University. He lives with his wife and five children in Bexley, and is also associated with Lincoln Lanes on W. Broad-st.

BUCKEYE FEDERAL TO BUILD BRANCH

CONSTRUCTION IS SCHEDULED to begin within the next several weeks on the new Buckeye Federal Savings and Loan Association's East Side branch, at the corner of Livingston and Harlow-avs. The above architectural sketch of the new office shows how the three-story structure will appear when completed. William S. Guthrie, company president, said the new location was chosen because many of Buckeye Federal's present eastern branch customers now live in that area.

Retired—

an open court, rather than the usual tall and crowded apartment building. Since most people are used to small get-togethers, each neighborhood has social rooms and kitchenettes where residents may be in the company of their own choosing.

In the centralized area there will be a facility for larger social gatherings and planned events. Facilities and trained personnel will be available to assist residents in learning such skills as painting, weaving, ceramics and various hobbies.

Although the "city" is not a convalescent home, it does provide a clinic and infirmary for persons needing special care and treatment. A staff physician will co-ordinate a general health program, and will be on hand in case of emergency or when the resident's own physician cannot be reached.

A beauty shop and barber shop will be established to provide service for the residents.

The laundering of linens, towels and personal garments will be done within the facility. Garments requiring special treatment are to be the personal responsibility of the resident. Laundry stations for self service will also be available.

Worship services will be held in the chapel and discussion groups, pastoral care and counseling will be conducted by the chaplain.

Requirements for residency are: 62 years of age and over, prior consultation, filling in admission forms, medical examination, initial fee of $350 and ability to make monthly rate payments.

A double room will be available for $160 a month, per person and private rooms, $190 a month. Both include private bathing facilities. A few have central bathing facilities to give service to those requiring supervision in daily living.

The infirmary section will be available for $235 a month. Sheltered living will be available for those who require continuing nursing services, staffed by qualified nurses and aides.

WRFD Again To Carry Browns

WRFD-AM and WRFD-FM will again carry the complete schedule of the Cleveland Browns Football games, starting with the Browns' exhibition game with Detroit, Saturday, Aug. 10, at 8:25 p.m. (FM game). Gib Shanley will be the play-by-play announcer for all the Cleveland Browns games.

Each game will be preceeded by the "Blanton Collier Show" and "Sideline Interview." At the conclusion of all the Browns NFL games, 'Scoreboard Roundup," a 15-minute program which switches to various games still in progress for scores, will be featured.

In addition to the "Blanton Collier Show" preceeding each game, the coach of the Cleveland Browns will also be heard on WRFD Monday through Friday at 5:45 p.m., beginning Monday, Aug. 5.

The August exhibition games include: Cleveland vs. Detroit, Aug. 10, at 8:25 p.m., a double-header between the Lions and Giants and Browns and Colts, on Aug. 17, at 5:20 p.m., San Francisco and the Browns at 3:25 p.m., Aug. 28 and Los Angeles and the Browns at 10:10 p.m., Aug. 31.

Town And Country Shopping Center Prepares For Horseless Carriages

Memories of the day of the horseless carriage, when the tire pump and mud rut were common, will be recaptured during the third annual "Antique Auto Show," Saturday, Aug. 10, at the Town and Country Shopping Center, E. Broad-st.

The all-day affair, sponsored by the shopping center's Merchants' Association, will feature displays of treasured antique autos, starting at 10 a.m.

Entries will arrive from all over Ohio, including Cincinnati, Wilmington, Washington C. H., Newark and Coshocton. Others are expected to arrive from West Virginia and Kentucky. Columbus area clubs will also be represented among the 75 old autos.

Each of the cars entered in the show will receive an engraved plaque, a certificate for gasoline and participate in the "Grand Parade." Free prizes will be awarded to visitors following the parade.

The growing interest in antique and classic autos has done much to produce one of the country's most enthusiastic hobbies. Proud owners have invested much in time and money to restore these priceless antiques, many more than 50 years old.

The thrill of seeing the old cars, driven by motorists dressed in period costumes, is available to anyone, at no cost, who attends the "Antique Car Show," Saturday, Aug. 10, at Town and Country Shopping Center.

JUST A FEW of the 75 restored antique cars which are expected to attend the "Antique Auto Show" at the Town and Country Shopping Center are shown in this picture. The event, set for Saturday, Aug. 10, is expected to draw cars and fans from all over Ohio and surrounding states.

BUSINESS REVIEW

THE FINAL STEP in preparing a car for a customer is carried out by the crew at Instant Auto Wash, 3943 E. Broad-st, under the supervision of owner-manager Joseph MacKinnon, left. The car goes through seven cleaning steps before MacKinnon gives the finished auto a final check to insure the customer a thoroughly cleaned, and read-to-go car.

Instant Auto Wash Has Reputation Based On Ten Years Of Service

After 10 years in the same location, Instant Auto Wash, 3943 E. Broad-st, has built a fine reputation for quality and service in the field of cleaning cars. In many cases, customers keep coming back to the Town and Country Shopping Center location from as far away as Grove City, Gahanna and Reynoldsburg, as well as Eastern Columbus.

Now under the leadership of owner-manager Joseph MacKinnon, the firm is continuing to offer quality work and MacKinnon says soon he will announce the opening of another branch of Instant Auto Wash in a new location.

The fact that some members of the crew at the popular auto wash have been with the organization for five or six years, and that one man has been on the job since the washing center opened its doors, testifies to the reliability and quality of service furnished to customers.

Instant Auto Wash specializes only in the washing business and, accordng to MacKinnon, will continue to do so, at least until the new operation is open for business. "At present we concentrate on washing cars, our one and only business," said the manager.

The washing of a car by Instant Auto Wash involves seven steps to insure the auto is clean inside and out. First the car is vacuumed inside, then the bumpers, wheels and grill are steam cleaned, followed by a hand application of detergent and wax. The car is then thoroughly rinsed and dried by 80-horsepower blowers. The final process is cleaning of windows inside and out with a sponge, damp towel and dry towel.

Regular customers have told MacKinnon that after a few trips to the auto wash they find their cars have taken on the appearance of having a wax job, due to the wax added during the wash jobs.

MacKinnon is a native of Columbus and graduate of St. Charles High School and Ohio State University. He lives with his wife and five children in Bexley, and is also associated with Lincoln Lanes on W. Broad-st.

DRIVE-IN BANKING NOW FAMILIAR

CUSTOMERS AT THE DRIVE-IN window have become a familar sight as the new Franklin Federal East, 3780 E. Livingston-av, moves into its sixth week of operation. This is the concluding week of the office's Grand Opening Celebration, which features a weekly drawing for TV sets, bikes, and fishing rod and reels. Free yardsticks are given to all visitors, and a 95-page road atlas is presented for each new account of $25 or more.

Local Man Accepted Into Professional Group

William C. Dollenmayer, 196 S. Kellner-rd, has been elected to membership in the National Association of Accountants.

BUCKEYE FEDERAL TO BUILD BRANCH

CONSTRUCTION IS SCHEDULED to begin within the next several weeks on the new Buckeye Federal Savings and Loan Association's East Side branch, at the corner of Livingston and Harlow-avs. The above architectural sketch of the new office shows how the three-story structure will appear when completed. William S. Guthrie, company president, said the new location was chosen because many of Buckeye Federal's present eastern branch customers now live in that area.

Retired—

an open court, rather than the usual tall and crowded apartment building. Since most people are used to small get-togethers, each neighborhood has social rooms and kitchenettes where residents may be in the company of their own choosing.

In the centralized area there will be a facility for larger social gatherings and planned events. Facilities and trained personnel will be available to assist residents in learning such skills as painting, weaving, ceramics and various hobbies.

Although the "city" is not a convalescent home, it does provide a clinic and infirmary for persons needing special care and treatment. A staff physician will co-ordinate a general health program, and will be on hand in case of emergency or when the resident's own physician cannot be reached.

A beauty shop and barber shop will be established to provide service for the residents.

The laundering of linens, towels and personal garments will be done within the facility. Garments requiring special treatment are to be the personal responsibility of the resident. Laundry stations for self service will also be available.

Worship services will be held in the chapel and discussion groups, pastoral care and counseling will be conducted by the chaplain.

Requirements for residency are: 62 years of age and over, prior consultation, filling in admission forms, medical examination, initial fee of $350 and ability to make monthly rate payments.

A double room will be available for $160 a month, per person and private rooms, $190 a month. Both include private bathing facilities. A few have central bathing facilities to give service to those requiring supervision in daily living.

The infirmary section will be available for $235 a month. Sheltered living will be available for those who require continuing nursing services, staffed by qualified nurses and aides.

Brochures and information may be obtained by writing: Lutheran Welfare League of Central Ohio, Lutheran Senior City Department, 106 S. Gift-st, Columbus 22, O., or by calling CA. 8-5209.

WRFD Again To Carry Browns

WRFD-AM and WRFD-FM will again carry the complete schedule of the Cleveland Browns Football games, starting with the Browns' exhibition game with Detroit, Saturday, Aug. 10, at 8:25 p.m. (FM game). Gib Shanley will be the play-by-play announcer for all the Cleveland Browns games.

Each game will be preceded by the "Blanton Collier Show" and "Sideline Interview." At the conclusion of all the Browns NFL games, "Scoreboard Roundup," a 15-minute program which switches to various games still in progress for scores, will be featured.

In addition to the "Blanton Collier Show" preceeding each game, the coach of the Cleveland Browns will also be heard on WRFD Monday through Friday at 5:45 p.m., beginning Monday, Aug. 5.

The August exhibition games include: Cleveland vs. Detroit, Aug. 10, at 8:25 p.m., a double-header between the Lions and Giants and Browns and Colts, on Aug. 17, at 5:20 p.m., San Francisco and the Browns at 3:25 p.m., Aug. 28 and Los Angeles and the Browns at 10:10 p.m., Aug. 31.

Town And Country Shopping Center Prepares For Horseless Carriages

Memories of the day of the horseless carriage, when the tire pump and mud rut were common, will be recaptured during the third annual "Antique Auto Show," Saturday, Aug. 10, at the Town and Country Shopping Center, E. Broad-st.

The all-day affair, sponsored by the shopping center's Merchants' Association, will feature displays of treasured antique autos, starting at 10 a.m.

Entries will arrive from all over Ohio, including Cincinnati, Wilmington, Washington C. H., Newark and Coshocton. Others are expected to arrive from West Virginia and Kentucky. Columbus area clubs will also be represented among the 75 old autos.

Each of the cars entered in the show will receive an engraved plaque, a certificate for gasoline and participate in the "Grand Parade." Free prizes will be awarded to visitors following the parade.

The growing interest in antique and classic autos has done much to produce one of the country's most enthusiastic hobbies. Proud owners have invested much in time and money to restore these priceless antiques, many more than 50 years old.

The thrill of seeing the old cars, driven by motorists dressed in period costumes, is available to anyone, at no cost, who attends the "Antique Car Show," Saturday, Aug. 10, at Town and Country Shopping Center.

JUST A FEW of the 75 restored antique cars which are expected to attend the "Antique Auto Show" at the Town and Country Shopping Center are shown in this picture. The event, set for Saturday, Aug. 10, is expected to draw cars and fans from all over Ohio and surrounding states.

Schiller Lantern Event Winners Announced

Last Friday night Schiller Park was the scene of the annual South Sectional Lantern Parade, sponsored by the Columbus Recreation Department.

Three hundred eleven boys and girls from 17 playgrounds in the southeast part of the city assembled with lanterns made on the playgrounds, and marched around the lake and through the park past the judges' stand.

The creations took various shapes and sizes, such as the 15-ft. "Puff The Magic Dragon," an eight-foot submarine, six-foot housefly, an open book and many other small lanterns.

Winners of the best project were: first, Leawood Gardens, with the theme taken from the song "Puff, the Magic Dragon"; second, Smith Road for the theme of "World Peace," and third, Courtright, depicting the "Wild West" complete with a chuck wagon.

Ribbons were presented to the following playgrounds for these prize winners: prettiest, Karns, Schiller and Deshler; cleverest, Smith Road, Scottwood and Scioto Trail; most unusual, James Road, Schiller-Leawood, Smith Road and Scioto Trail; original, Scottwood, Lincoln, Smith Road and Willis Park; best design, Scioto Trail, Helmandale and Schiller; showiest, Schiller, Smith Road and James Road; funniest, Willis, Scottwood, Lincoln; most grotesque, Scioto Trail, Smith Road and Willis Park; special award, Southeast Lions, Pinecrest and Livingston.

Junior Jet teams received their shirts last Thursday and Friday. Team Two are the White Sox, Team Three the Red Sox, Team Four the Twins, and Team Five the Yankees.

Team One (Yankees) is still in first place with a record of seven wins and two losses.

Scottwood . . .

Scottwood Junior girls' softball team defeated Pinecrest last Thursday 13-0, making them league champs. They will play teams from other sections for the city championship. Their record is 4-0.

Urban Renewal Starts On 'Grass Roots' Level

By Betty Daft

Urban renewal, a problem challenging big cities everywhere, is being met on Columbus' Eastside with a "right in our own backyard" approach.

Their immediate neighborhood—the house next door and the one across the street, is the concern of Block Clubs, strong central core of the East Central Area Council, operating generally in the area between E. Broad-st and Livington-av, and from Parsons-av east to Nelson-rd. Block Clubs, specifically, are most active in the area between Bryden-rd and Livingston, and from Ohio-av east.

The Council, serving as a channel for cooperative action, is an effective liaison between Block Clubs and the proper public service and social agencies.

And in its entirety, the organization strives to meet neighborhood needs, and to promote public understanding of the problems of a rapidly deteriorating area, highly transient, with mixed cultural patterns and racial backgrounds.

Solving their community ills starts with diagnosing neighborhood symptoms, and treatment follows in simple, direct action . . .

A meeting with a rental agency whose properties need painting, one with health department officials for advice and help on rat control, another with the Recreation department for more city-operated playgrounds, and still another with Parks and Forestry Division for improvements in street parks.

East Central Area Council will meet tonight, Aug. 8, 7:30 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church, Bryden-rd at Ohio-av. All interested residents are urged to attend.

Further information on the Council's activities or on membership is available from Rev. William Yuelll, assistant pastor of First Presbyterian, 252-2237, or Central Community House, 252-3157.

City officials are needled for permitting conditions to deteriorate by relaxing services. Increased garbage and trash pickup, general street and parks unkeep are emphatically urged.

Lack of enforcement of rooming house regulations in the area is a major problem. Council officers point to the resulting increase in population, the taxing of school facilities, and the added number of transients.

Also under fire is the tendency of real estate companies to sell older houses at excessive prices. The buyers, Council explains, resort to roomers to assist in paying for the house, and have no funds for general upkeep.

The impact of these conditions in a changing community are startling, emphasized by the rapid increase in crime.

"The situation can be helped," Council insists. "It has been helped everywhere a Block Club is operating.

"These interested, responsible residents have proven with their own constructive action, that the level of their neighborhoods are maintained; deteriorating houses and streets are upgraded."

Block Clubs also spur interest in improvements with their concentrated, well-advertised clean-up campaigns, garden and yard parades, and Christmas lighting contests.

Organized in 1961, the East Central Area Council was formed by a small group of interested people, aware of the community's changing pattern and of the need to preserve housing conditions.

They include Chester Jones, Columbus Urban League; Jack Gibbs, assistant principal, East High School; Miss Florence Suzuki, director Central Community House; Rev. Leopold Bernhardt, pastor First Eng-

These Block Clubs, Captains Core Of East Central Council

Neighborhood resident clubs, termed Block Clubs, are most important in the Council structure. The six now in existence, and their captains, are:

Rich Street Block Club, bounded by Wilson, Bryden, Main and Ohio, Donald Baker, 1188 Rich-st, captain; North Wilson Club, on Wilson from Mount to Mooberry, Miss Cecil Miller, 500 Wilson, captain; South Wilson Club, on Wilson from Mooberry to Newton, David Willis, 659 Wilson, captain.

North Linwood, Linwood from Bryden to Main, William Yuelll, 307 Linwood, temporary chairman; South Linwood, on Linwood from Mound to Mooberry, Paul Allen, 514 Linwood, chairman, and Blackburn Club, bounded by Bryden, Ohio, Main and 18th-st.

STRONG NEIGHBORHOODS, and the preservation of living and housing conditions in their changing community is the aim and shared interest of members of the East Central Area Council. Standing are Linwood Walker, 1436 Bryden-rd, chairman of the Council, at left, and Rev. William Yuelll, assistant pastor of First Presbyterian Church, assigned by the National Missions of the Presbyterian denomination to assist with the work. From left are, seated, front row, Mrs. Ursula White Lewis, Wilson Block Club; Mrs. Phillip Callender, Blackburn Club; Miss Cecil Miller, Wilson Club captain; Mrs. Elonzo Trout, Wilson Club; Mrs. Harold Watts, Wilson Club; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baker, Rich Club, and in back, David L. Willis, Wilson Club; Howard Early, Rich Club, and Paul A. Allen, captain Linwood Club.

Lazy Days Ramblings

The over 90 degree heat of this past Saturday and Sunday gave a lot of people something to complain about and I'm not complaining if they like to complain but actually I found nothing to complain about.

After a heavy afternoon of outside work it was a refreshing interlude to be able to relax in a reclining summer chair and look up into the trees and listen to the symphony of a movement directed by hundreds of branches like the arms of a hundred directors wielding batons.

Warmth of a very different kind was much in evidence as our six-year-old Golden Retriever gave forth with his special kind of love and affection by nudging a little closer until he made a physical contact with my shoe, as though to say, "What's love if you don't express it."

Summertime is nature's growing season. Both plants and relationships require warmth for continued growth.

Ever Read This Chapter?

"Brethren," said the visiting pastor, "the subject of today's sermon will be 'falsehoods.' How many in the congregation have read the 69th chapter of Matthew?"

Nearly every hand went up.

"Well now," said the preacher, "this is just the group I want to talk to — there is no such chapter!"

Ever Fish With Camera?

Harley Groom, our photographer, has a new wrinkle for those who like fish.

On his recent vacation on a camping trip in Canada his family took nary a fishin pole along but had plenty of good fish when they wanted them.

He would merely watch for a fisherman with a likely string of fine finny specimens and after the customary compliments would take a picture of the piscatorial expert and in turn be rewarded with his fish for dinner.

Oh well, I'll get mine the hard way. I'm not much of a photographer!

Whitehall Councilmen Set 1964 Operating Budget Of $882,886

Money matters were the prime concern of Whitehall City Council Tuesday night as councilmen authorized an annual budget for 1964 totaling $882,886, and a $61,325 supplemental appropriation for the balance of 1963. The 1964 budget appropriation included $757,886 in general fund expenditures, and $130,000 for the street construction, maintenance and repair fund.

Wayne Davis

Both the annual budget and supplemental appropriation measure gained unanimous approval.

In other major action, council:

Sustained the action of the Planning and Zoning Commission in denying a zoning change to permit the addition of a billiard parlor to Main Lanes bowling center, 4017 E. Main-st.

Approved legislation requiring registration with the police department of any permanent or temporary resident of Whitehall who has been convicted of two or more felonies.

Revised the city's basic zoning ordinance, updating regulations to meet current zoning needs and tightening liaison between council and the Planning and Zoning Commission.

Authorized Service Director Robert Mickey to tear down a city-owned frame building at 690 S. Yearling-rd. Council approved use of city employes to dismantle the building.

The budget approval was preceded by comments from Mayor Walter B. Moling and City Auditor Walter Helber. Mayor Moling reminded Whitehall residents in attendance at the meeting that the city's general fund gains only 90 cents from the $36.60 total property tax assessed against Whitehall property owners.

Helber assured the audience that the budget was given careful scruntiny, and that no department of the city was granted the full amount requested.

Prime sources of revenue during 1964, according to budget estimates, will be as follows:

City income tax, $500,000; sales tax, $60,000; general property tax, $52,000; antitcipated general fund balance on Jan. 1, 1964, $51,957, money derived through mayor's court fines and forfeitures, $50,000.

These areas account for

HighAccident Areas Cited

Two East Side intersections were cited as high accident locations in a report for the latter half of July from George W. Scholer, chief of police.

Special attention between 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. was asked for the intersection of Broad-st and Weyant. Speed and driving while intoxicated were noted as contributing to accidents at this location.

At Livingston and College speed and changing lanes without safety were listed as causes of accidents. Increased enforcement was asked for between the hours of 5 and 8 p.m.

One fatal accident occurred in the Eastern Review area during the last two weeks of July. On July 17 a pedestrian was killed while walking in traveled lanes. Scholer noted that of the 30 fatal accidents to date, 13 were pedestrians.

Governor To Officiate At Fair's Opening

By C. R. Hulbert

Ohio's Governor James A. Rhodes will personally open the way to Franklin County's Golden Anniversary Fair in Hilliard next Monday, Aug. 12, by cutting the ribbon at the main gate of the fairgrounds. The ceremony is to take place at 6 p.m.

Assisting the governor will be Director of Agriculture, Robert Stackhouse.

The state's first citizen will be helped in the opening ceremony by Penny Miles, "Miss Hilliard — 1963". She will cut a huge cake prepared especially for the occasion.

Other helping hands will be offered by several honorary cake cutters, including A. E. Bogan, Charles High, Robert Reese, and Fred Dellinger, "grand old men" of the Franklin County Fair.

Kicking things off later in the evening will be the 4-H Fun Talent Show in front of the grandstand at 7:30, featuring complete family entertainment.

On Tuesday the day begins with Angus beef cattle judging scheduled for 8:30 a.m., followed by a full morning of poultry, farm products and animal husbandry judging.

The flower show begins at noon, and the District 10 Jersey Cattle show at 7 p.m.

Tuesday night holds a double attraction in the persons of the Fair King and Queen interviews and selection. This will take place in the Activities Tent immediately after the interviews at 7 o'clock.

Swine, Shorthorn and Charolais cattle judging make up Wednesday morning's schedule, the latter being new to the regular annual fair agenda. Rabbit judging is to be held at 12:30 p.m. and the Central Ohio Guernsey Show is set for 7 in the evening.

Three nights of pari-mutuel harness racing enliven the fair picture Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Eligible entries total some 180 for the Hometown Colt Stakes.

Eligible runners include 53 two-year-old trotters, 16 two-year-old pacers, 21 three-year-old trotters and 30 three-year-old pacers, said Vic Miller of the racing committee.

An array of judging, exhibitions, midway amusements, and other interesting features constitute the daytime activities on Thursday. And highlighting the evening is the Junior Livestock

Whitehall Bands Set Concert

Whitehall's summer band program will close with an informal, outdoor concert Tuesday, Aug. 13, 6:45 p.m. at the high school football stadium. In the event of rain, the program will be postponed until the same time Thursday, Aug. 15.

The junior, intermediate and advanced bands will play, under the direction of Lawrence Griffin, new band director.

A record, made this past year by Whitehall's high school, junior high and elementary school bands, will also be placed on sale for the first time to the public.

There is no admission for the concert. Public is invited.

A Political Innovation— Listen First, Talk Later

A political switch is being engineered by Columbus City Council candidate M. D. (Morey) Portman. He has adopted a campaign tactic of listening instead of talking, and of taking notes instead of writing speeches.

A 14-year veteran of newspaper and wire service reporting; Portman has adopted an inquiring reporter approach in determining the wants and complaints of Columbus voters. An initial trial run at an East Columbus shopping center provided Portman with encouragement to continue his political experiment and compaign ammunition in the form of complaints against the present Republican Council and administration. (Mr. Portman, incidentally, is a Democrat.)

Although seeking elective office for the first time, Portman is not unfamiliar with the inside of the political arena. An assistant to former Columbus Mayor M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner, Portman also served as finance director for the city.

Portman is a stock and bond broker whose past experience also includes consultant work with local and state govern-

And what has he learned in his interviewing? Reporter Portman reports that:

A North American Aviation technician believes that Columbus needs stricter law enforcement; that too many apartments are being built, with the effect of cheapening the city. The same complainant called for encouragement of more home ownership, and said the city should have more than one independently

Spot Zoning Blamed For Auto Tie-Up

"Spot" zoning in Columbus was listed as a factor in creating a traffic problem on E. Livingston-av that has apparently defied solution by the Columbus Traffic and Transportation Commission.

Commission members were informed by apartment owner Joseph Myers that traffic signal congestion at 3050-70 E. Livingston-av presents great difficulty to motorists attempting to enter the roadway from the apartment driveway.

John L. Gallagher, chief traffic engineer for Columbus, reported that there was no opportunity to provide a rear exit from the apartment property. He said that the problem was limited to the morning peak traffic hours, when cars backed up from the Livingston-rd-James-rd traffic signal.

Commission Chairman William W. Neno remarked that the situation was another example of what happens as the result of spot zoning. Follow-

SCHOOLS TO OPEN SEPT. 4

City Schools Remind New Students To Register

Columbus school bells will signal the close of summer vacation for nearly 100,000 youngsters Wednesday morning, Sept. 4.

School officials, anticipating an enrollment increase of 4,600, in addition to an undetermined number of summer transfers to new districts, emphasize the need for immediate registration.

All students new to the Columbus system, and those who have moved into different districts during the summer months, must register at the school they will attend, to ensure scheduling and early study assignments.

In addition, secondary school students who wish to change their schedules must do so at the school before Friday, Aug. 16. There will be no schedule changes during the first week of school.

Junior and senior high principals are in their offices now, and elementary principals will be on duty after Monday, Aug. 12. Any student or parent who has questions about the coming school year is urged to come to the school or phone.

Anyone new to the area who has doubts as to which school his child should attend should call the Columbus Board of Education, CA. 8-3821.

Students entering the Columbus school system from other towns must furnish proof of compliance with Ohio's immunization law. They must have, or be in the process of completing, the following immunizations:

Smallpox, one successful vaccination; poliomyelitis, three vaccines, either oral or injections; diphtheria and tetanus, two injections required in the third through sixth grades.

LIGHT UP YOUR HAIR

"Color It Bright" is the latest decree from the salons of the country's leading coiffure experts. Just because the temperatures are torrid, there's no need to adopt a drab Plain Jane hairstyle for summertime when so many colorful possibilities await you.

The season's dazzlement goes all the way from imaginative tints to the addition of bright ornaments.

Why not let the color go to your head? It's the thing to do, fashion-wise. We can arrange it for you. Iva's Beauty Salon, 3978 E. Broad Street, Columbus, Town and Country Shopping Center. — BE. 5-5474.

The Fabric Doctor

"Why Did My Sweater Fade While The Skirt Did Not?"

—Miss R. W. H.

Dear Miss R. W. H.

In this you may think that your drycleaner cleaned each piece separately and used different methods. Of course, he did not, but there was a difference, obviously, somewhere. The difference is in the ensemble. The skirt is 100% wool and the sweater of a synthetic fiber. This particular synthetic fiber has many advantages. One of them is that it takes dyes easily, but for the same reason, it gives them up easily in drycleaning. The 100% wool skirt does not dye as easily, but the perfect color match is lost when the wool retains its color and the synthetic fabric releases it.

"Matched Separates" such as sweaters, blouses and skirts, or dresses and sweaters are lovely and can be used in many ways to give you variety in your wardrobe. However, frequently the fibers are different and though the printed design or color on the sweater, blouse, skirt and dress may be identical, when all the garments are drycleaned, the design or color on the cotton or wool may remain while matching design or color on the synthetic fabric may fade.

Usually such garments carry labels "Do Not Dryclean," but frequently these labels are lost. It is safest to be certain that all pieces of your "Matched Separates" are of the same material. If not, tell your drycleaner about them, ask his advice and suggest special handling.

NO "PLATEAUS" FOR PRETTY HEADS!
Certainly you've been forewarned about "plateaus", those discouraging days when your scale shows no change. This is no time to "throw" a diet! Keep going and soon the scale takes a big, reassuring tumble. Don't forget, however, that your body draws on stored fuels, and extra "vitamins" are needed for your hair as well as your health. This may be a time when you'll require special conditioning treatments for suddenly limp-locks. Better let us analyse them often!

SOLUTION FOR STYLE
The modern "body" permanents we give for today's smoother hairstyles are a basis for the style, not a mop of curl to build a style around! Once your new coiffure has been assured through proper shaping, the permanent wave gives it the necessary "lift" and control to make that style "permanent" for you. If you like more curl that shows, this too is possible. You describe it; we'll make it happen, just as you like it best.

HIGHLIGHT MISTS
Sometimes we'll finish your new coiffure with a spray that leaves a rich gleam, penetrating the hair with added richness. Can't you do that at home, during the week? If so, we'll tell you, and if you wish, we'll sell you an aerosol can for your dressing table. Too much of a good thing is as risky as too little so if your hair tends to become over-oily we'll tell you that, too. You can rely on us . . . we want you to have hair-happiness, so call us today at BE. 1-4100 or BE. 1-6828!

Space Age 3Rs Have Sophisticated Sound

By BETTY DAFT

Confused about curriculum? Concerned to find the 3Rs are hardly recognizable in their new guises?

Parents might well rejoice, rather than despair, when Johnny speaks of "programmed mathematics," or Janie reports that she is studying "structural linguistics"—for schools throughout the country are eyeing Columbus for "what's new?" in education.

Secondary school curriculum, ever changing in its approach to basic studies, shifts constantly as educators stay in tune with the times. The educational effort that will assure Columbus' Johnnies and Janes an understanding of the complex affairs of their fast-paced world is a continuing one.

Pilot studies on new methods of instruction are launched after intensive study, and results are carefully evaluated and revised before they are adopted.

The attitude of Columbus Schools on curriculum changes is outlined by W. Huber, director of secondary education:

"We stay alert to what is going on in the nation, and get into an advanced theory of instruction just as early as we are convinced of its worth. We do a great deal of study ourselves, have pioneered some advances, and we tailor others' ideas for quality learning.

"Descriptive diplomas, announced last spring, is an example. Unique and flexible, these diplomas will answer many questions that educators have been asking. They came about after four years of intensive study, and will be reported to big city curriculum directors in their conference in St. Louis this fall."

Pilot projects, under way in Columbus secondary schools at the present time include:

SMSG MATHEMATICS

Two-year experiments in SMSG mathematics, conducted at Crestview and Franklin Junior High, have resulted in new books for all seventh and eighth graders. The text will be "somewhere between" old style math and modern mathematics.

PROGRAMMED MATHEMATICS

Detailed results of programmed mathematics classes at Hilltonia, Walnut Ridge, Crestview and Dominion, and during summer school, pointed to the method's value on an individual basis. Teachers will use the material as an aid, rather than as a primary teaching plan.

TEAM TEACHING

The team teaching experiment with English at South High, was arranged with pupils moving from teacher to teacher each three-week period. Each instructor taught his specialty, with one covering composition and another literature. Closed circuit television was also used.

Benefits include better instruction, as teachers concentrate on special subject matter, students learn to listen, take notes and make outlines. Outside speakers can be used.

The method will be introduced this year at Brookhaven in health and physical education.

NOTEHAND

Notehand was taught experimentally last year at Eastmoor, Marion-Franklin and Whetstone, and is evaluated as especially valuable to college-bound students. The subject will continue this year.

PSSC PHYSICS

Tried at Marion-Franklin, West and Eastmoor high schools last year, as a new approach to physics, PSSC has met with success and enthusiasm and has been adopted for all city high schools this year.

CHEM CHEMISTRY

CHEM Chemistry, a laboratory approach to chemistry, has been a pilot study at Eastmoor and has also gained enthusiastic support. It will be extended this semester to Central and Linden-McKinley high schools.

LANGUAGE ARTS

Structural linguistics and generative grammar are two new terms which have to do with usage in English. The approach is such a definite departure from traditional grammar that the experiments will continue in a limited way at Starling until conclusive results can be obtained.

Another pilot project in English, phase programming, being carried on at Central High as a laboratory type of language learning will also continue.

A class in composition has been under way at Eastmoor, with each student handing in a composition a week. The worth of the course of descriptive writing offers promise.

ART, MUSIC APPRECIATION

Walnut Ridge seniors met as a class for one period each week last year to learn concepts and appreciation of art and music. The course will be extended this year.

VOCABULARY BUILDING

A series of programmed lessons in vocabulary building, given in each junior high, has been revised and will become standard in all eighth grad classes.

BSCS BIOLOGY

BSCS biology, researched by the National Science Foundation, will be presented in hard-bound books for the first time this year. The laboratory-centered course will be taught at Whetstone and at Central high schools.

To peel a tomato quickly, place on a fork and hold over the gas flame until the skin cracks.

CHANGE COMMAND

MAJ. KENNETH L. QUIGLEY of Whitehall has been appointed new commander of the 960th Engineer Battalion (Depot), an Army Reserve unit located at Fort Hayes. Col. John W. Woerner of Blacklick was unit commander for 13 years before joining the 364th Engineer group, also at Fort Hayes. Maj. Quigley served with the Ohio 37th Division in the Far East during World War II, and is a 1963 graduate of the Engineer Officers Career Course. He has been active in the Army Reserve program for the last 15 years. The 960th Engineer Battalion was activated in 1943 and participated in the campaign of Northern France. The unit was called to active duty in October, 1961, during the Berlin crisis, and served until August, 1962, at Granite City Engineer Depot, Ill.

Police Still Investigating Mosher Death

Investigation into the death of 52-year-old Mrs. Anita Mosher, 3699 Washburn-av, is continuing by Whitehall police, who are asking the public to help by reporting any unusual happenings they may have noticed around her home the past week.

Mrs. Mosher was found late Sunday after her stepgrandson, Theodore Mosher, 20, of 3711 Washburn-av, went to her home and discovered her partially clad body on the living room couch.

Police said the woman had been dead two or three days. Tests, being run to determine whether Mrs. Mosher died a natural death or was slain, are still incomplete.

Authorities suspected the death was not due to natural causes because of the large amount of blood surrounding the body. However, they said there was no evidence of violence.

Peak Season For Tomatoes, Roasting Ears

By ESTELLE B. FRANKS

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Vegetables — sweet corn, tomatoes, snap beans, cabbage, all purpose potatoes.

Fruits — watermelons, cantaloupes, peaches, plums, nectarines, grapes, summer apples.

Meats and Poultry — fryers, chucks and rounds of beef, hams, medium eggs.

Other — canned tuna, peanut butter, dairy products.

Field grown tomatoes are in peak season. From now until frost they come to our markets vine-ripened and full flavored from nearby fields. Local supply is expected to be heaviest and prices lowest from Aug. 15 through early September.

Mrs. Franks

The Ohio Crop Reporting Service estimates that the 1963 Ohio crop of early summer tomatoes is down 24 per cent from last year. The reduction is due mainly to fewer acres planted, with the weather being a contributing factor. However, the total supply picture looks brighter — estimated to be down only two to three per cent in the main producing areas of the country.

Although production is down, you can expect tomato quality to be up. Bill Brooks, Extension Specialist, O.S.U., reports that the hot, dry weather has caused high sugar content in tomatoes, resulting in excellent eating quality.

Mr. Brooks also commented that while tomatoes with cracks may not look good, cracks do not hurt the flavor. Generally cracks are caused by a rapid change in the water supply in tomatoes. They grow slowly during a dry time, then moisture causes them to make such a spurt in growth that they literally get "too big for their skins," so they split.

Irregular shaped or cracked tomatoes are not popular for slicing, but may be economical for wedges or pulp or juice. A bushel (50 pounds) of tomatoes will make 15 to 20 quarts when canned.

Also Best Time For Roasting Ears

Now is the time to enjoy roasting ears to the hilt. The best eating varieties of the season are here. Luckily, much acreage devoted to this crop in the Columbus area is under irrigation, so the ears from these fields are well-filled and the kernels tender and sweet. Harvest at farms without irrigation will wind up early this summer—for many in another week or two. As a result, prices may not go as low this summer as last.

For best quality and lowest price, the next two weeks will likely be the best time to freeze sweet corn. Recommended varieties for freezing include Golden Cross Bantam, Victory Golden, Deep Gold, Golden Sensation, and Tendermost.

Truro Township Man Is Killed At McNaughton-rd

Columbus' 31st traffic fatality was chalked up at McNaughton-rd and E. Main-st early Saturday morning when the 1963 model car of Ernest A. Lohmeyer, Jr., 55, of 1168 Manor-dr, Truro Township, skidded on wet pavement, striking a utility pole and four parked cars.

Lohmeyer, owner of Ernie's Certified Oil Station at Westphal-av and E. Main-st, for the past 17 years, was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Anthony's Hospital at 1:35 a.m. Hospital officials said death was apparently caused by multiple internal injuries.

Columbus police theorized Lohmeyer was eastbound at apparent high speed and skidded left of center, striking the pole on the northwest corner of McNaughton-rd. His car continued across the road into a lot, striking the cars.

Lohmeyer is survived by his wife, Sarah M.; son, Larry; daughter, Mrs. Donald Lindsay; stepson, Roy McCall; mother, Mrs. Arthur Lohmeyer, Lewisburg, W. Va.; brother, William B. Hitchcock, Tex.; three sisters, Mrs. E. W. Green, Tampa, Fla.; Mrs. Fredericka Hedges, Lewisburg, and Mrs. H. T. Ryan, Columbus; four grandchildren.

Service was held Tuesday in the Gosnell Funeral Home, 3431 E. Main-st, with Rev. James H. McComack officiating. Graveside services were also held at the Sedan Cemetery, Sedan, O., by Paul W. Gosnell.

Two Injured In East Side Wreck

Two men were injured in a one-car accident on Sunbury-rd early Sunday morning.

William Golden Marcum, 24, of Pataskala, is in critical condition with a skull fracture at St. Anthony's Hospital. His companion Roy Everett Camp, 24, of Woodville, is in fair condition with a fractured collarbone.

Sheriff's deputies said the car was traveling south on Sunbury-rd when it went left of center, spun around for approximately 85 feet and hit three guard rail posts on the left side of the road. Both men were thrown from the car.

Gahanna Police Chief Post Open

Gahanna Mayor Curtis K. Yearling announced Monday that applicants have until Aug. 15 to file for the position of chief of police, vacated in July by Jim Sager. Yearling said he hopes to fill the position by Sept. 1, for the job paying in the vicinity of $5,401 per year.

Yearling also reported that July fines from the Mayor's Court brought in approximately $617.

Capital U. Announces Annual Artist's Series

Capital University's annual Artist's Series will take on an international flavor next year.

The four-concert program will begin Saturday, Nov. 23, with the Iberian Dance Theatre appearing on the Mees Hall stage. Ton Il Han, a 22-year-old pianist from Korea, will follow on Tuesday, Jan. 7. On Tuesday, Feb. 25, the Antient Concerts will appear with an ensemble music and solo works from the Medieval, Renaissance and Baroque periods. Booked for the season's final concert Saturday, Apr. 4, are the eight voices of the Varel and Bailly Chanteurs De Paris.

Season tickets, at $5 each, are available through the Campus Activities Office, 235-8611, and by mail.

Laura Toledo's Iberian Dance Theatre is making its first extensive tour of colleges this fall under the auspices of the Association of American College Arts Program. Miss Toledo began her professional career as a ballet dancer at the Metropolitan Opera House. She has appeared as guest artist and soloist with the Jose Greco Ballet Company and, after organizing her own company, was invited by Perle Mesta to perform for the ambassador of Spain in Washington, D.C.

Critics say the young pianist, Tong Il Han, is "already a polished and poised virtuoso." Han began his piano studies at the age of four, but was forced to flee Seoul, North Korea, at the outbreak of the Korean conflict He has been viewed on the Ed Sullivan Show and the Voice of Firestone, and last year won the nation-wide biennial Michaels Award in Chicago. He recently appeared on Mrs. John F. Kennedy's musical program before an international audience.

Founded in 1958, the Antient Concerts bring together the tenor voice of Conrad Seamen and a variety of early musical instruments, the krumhorn, minstrel's harps, viols, violin and viola, and all recorders. Conrad is said to be an exceptional tenor in Bach and earlier repertoire. The group is directed by Homer Wickline, harpsichordist.

Fire Damage Set At Near $100,000

A Clark-State-rd fire, destroying a barn and its contents Sunday, was estimated to reach as high as $100,000 in damages.

Clyde R. Elliott, a Columbus attorney, living at 386 W. Parkview-av, who keeps the 200-acre farm for weekend enjoyment, estimated the huge structure was valued at about $60,000 and an additional $40,00 damage was done to 20,000 bales of hay and machinery stored in the barn.

Three units from the Pataskala Fire Dept. dispatched to the scene, managed to have adjacent sheds and stopped the fire from spreading to the farm house, about 75 yards away.

Elliott said he plans to rebuild the structure, although the loss was only partially covered by insurance.

Varel and Bailly are France's top song-writing team. Their songs have been introduced and are sung by such world-famous entertainers as Edith Piaf, Genevieve, Lena Horne and Patachou. Their music is largely folk and popular songs. The New York Journal-American has hailed them as "The most exciting group of singing young men in recent years."

Gahanna Man Is Slugged, Robbed Outside His Home

John Conroy, 74, who lives alone at 3580 Ridenour-rd, was struck from behind by two thugs as he parked his car at his farm home about 11 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 3. The two took about $140 from the Gahanna man's wallet, then bound him to a tractor before fleeing.

Sheriff's deputies said the two men apparently ransacked the empty house while awaiting Conroy to return home, but found nothing of interest to them. Conroy received first aid at the scene for head bruises and cuts on the face and arms. He said the money was from his Social Security check.

Conroy said it was nearly midnight before he was able to free himself and telephone for help, where he was bound with a rope in his combination garage and barn. He could not identify his assailants.

GOLF ETIQUETTE - 7

FALLOUT DANGER ON GROUND ZERO

BELIEVE IT or not, for once our heroes are completely in the right. Their putting session has been rudely interrupted by the on-target warning of an impatient golfer who just couldn't wait. Even if you're a pessimist who figures you can't possibly hit the green with your tee shot, wait those few extra seconds to be sure. If your shot should head toward someone anywhere on the course, the word is 'fore' or 'watch out' or anything that gets the point across. Sure, golf balls bounce but they usually leave dents when they do.

HARTLEY
SPORTS EDITOR

Sporting 'Almosts' That Never Quite Saw Print

Each year there are literally hundreds of sports stories that never see print because they lack what editors refer to as "dramatic impact."

Nevertheless, they are still noteworthy expressions of the trials and tribulations of athletic endeavors in this country and certainly do deserve a mention in passing.

HERE ARE A FEW of our favorite 1962-63 sports stories that you never read in any newspaper:

MOBILE, ALA. — Jake Moseley, a 42-year-old right-hander, pleaded for one more chance to escape the last cut made by the Pelicans.

Manager Bill Regan granted Mosseley his wish by starting him last night against the hard-hitting Macon Bluejays. Mossley fanned the first two batters on six pitches while local fans cheered the old veteran's every move.

Mossley was unable to retire another batter, however, as Macon scored 11 first-inning runs and won eventually, 13-2. Mossley received his release this morning.

LATROBE, PA. — Johnny Sumpter, a senior halfback and leading scorer for the local high school here had good reason to do well in Friday night's game with arch-rival Centerville.

Johnny's father, Dave Sumpter, is head coach at Centerville and admittedly planned his whole defense to stop the high-scoring of son John.

The defense worked like a charm. Centerville won, 33-0 and young Sumpter was held to minus 21 yards total offense.

SILVER SPRINGS FLA. —Andy Billings, a 12-year-old who wants to "play golf just like Arnold Palmer" wrote the top money winner asking if he could meet him at the local country club pro shop when Palmer appeared here in the Invitational this week.

Young Andy wanted to present Palmer with a scrapbook he has been filling with Arnie's clippings since he was nine.

Andy camped in the pro shop for four days but Palmer never showed up.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—Eddie Harkness, the state's leading money winner in stock car racing, had a nightmare before last night's National Championships at the Holloway Track.

Harkness dreamed that his car jumped the wall and he was seriously burned. He refused to race but let fellow driver Jeff King pilot the car.

King won the race and $10,000 purse without mishap.

SAN BERNADINO, CALIF. — One of the biggest drives this city has ever seen climaxed last night at Chief Stadium where a "Save the Team Night" was staged.

Local officials, concerned with a shortage of fans at the ball park, warned that the club would move unless local

ON LINE — Groveport's Pam Higgins, recent runner-up in the Franklin County Women's Championships, follows through on a practice putt at the Groveport County Club course while the white sphere heads home toward the cup. At 17, Pam has a bright future in her quest for top honors in the women's amateur field. Immediate plans include Ohio State and plenty of practice session.

BANDWAGON ROLLING AT 17

Groveport's Pam Higgins Eyes Amateur Golf's 'Queen Crown'

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Perhaps the biggest single satisfaction in the world belongs to the guy who can say, "I told you so."

You don't have to look far around this part of the state these days to find somebody who uses the phrase in regard to Jack Nicklaus.

BUT IF YOU like to be the kind that gets on the bandwagon early, better reserve a spot on the cart marked "Pam Higgins" that could come heading out of the Groveport Country Club any day now.

Pert Pam, who only last May said goodbye to high school at Groveport High, already has some pretty impressive credentials to present with only three years of golf experience behind her.

1963 has by far been Pam's most productive year off the tees and on the greens. She just missed the cutoff point for the National Open just about a month ago, took individual honors in the Juniors Tourney (Southern Ohio PGA) at Cincinnati.

PAM'S BIGGEST and best effort, however, came in the Franklin County Women's Championship two weeks ago when she progressed all the way to the finals before bowing to local golfing queen, Anne Richardson.

It was Pam's fourth try for the title and naturally, her closest grasp at seizing the gals' crown.

The 17-year-old blonde, who admits that her chipping and putting are the strongest part of her game, plays normally every day. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Higgins, 559 Main-st, Groveport, Pam is the only serious golfer in the family.

SHE'S HAD three different golfing instructors but credits Groveport pro Bob Bisciotti with helping her to her fine finish in the Women's Championship.

"I was playing lousy golf before the tournament but he (Bisciotti) helped me work on my swing. I wasn't shifting my weight properly."

Pam, who admitted that she did little else but play golf in preparation for the Women's Championships, is now taking a short layoff from the game at her father's suggestion, But the layoff didn't include chipping and putting practice which she worked on last week.

THE IMMEDIATE future means enrollment at Ohio State in the fall and more golf. Pam hasn't considered professional golf as yet but she is anxious to continue her competition on the amateur level.

But when you're just 17 and shooting in the high 70s off the men's tees at Groveport C.C., your future, whether professional or amateur, seems bright.

The name is Pam Higgins. Keep it in mind. It's likely you'll be hearing it plenty in years to come around golfing circles.

Triple Tie In YYA; Muffler Wins First

After completion of the third set of games in the second round, four teams are tied for first place in the Jewish Center Y.Y.A. Slo-Pitch Softball League.

All of the leaders have identical records of two victories and one loss. They are Burger Boy, Columbus Steel Supply, Rosati's Super Market, and Robins.

IN A ONE-SIDED affair, Burger Boy surprised Robins 15-4. Scoring in every inning except the seventh, Burger Boy displayed outstanding hitting consistency as they collected 20 hits.

Herb Grodner, Lee Siegel and Stu Israel led the winner's attack with Siegel getting four hits while the others gathered three apiece.

Grodner and Bill Hymans homered for the victors. Bruce Myer collected a double and single for Robins team.

A BIG SEVEN-RUN inning enabled Rosati's Super Market to overpower Gilbert Shoes, 10-5. Leading 3-1, going to bat at the bottom half of the third inning, Rosati's sent 12 men to the plate, scoring seven runs.

Gilbert's only rally came too late as they scored three times in the sixth inning as Dale Raffeld doubled, Steve Dworkin reached base on an error and Bruce Green followed with a long homerun into center field.

Green had three hits for the losers and Wes Rosenthal had three for the winners.

IN THE OTHER game, Columbus Steel Supply held off a last inning rally to defeat Tommy's Pizza, 11-7.

The big inning for the Steelmen came in the fourth inning as they collected seven hits and six runs. Jerry Topy had four hits while Mark Levine, Bill Mackin and Dick Siegel all collected three hits apiece.

Jerry Goodman hit safely three times while Steve Lipson entered the ranks of homerun hitters for Tommy's.

WAS IT THE return of Henry Finke, the fine play of Jonas Rosenthal, the hitting of Mort Rising or fate that handed Muffler King their first win in ten games? To quote the players, "Who cares? We won." Win they did as they nipped Ontario, 12-9.

Mort Rising had three hits including a double, Dave Sinai a triple and Howard Byer a home run to pace a nine-hit Muffler attack.

Hal Paris and Bernie Shapiro had three hits to lead Ontario's 17-hit outburst.

KOZY KITCHEN outlasted Hackman Realty 8-7. Larry Gordon led Kozy's hitters with two hits including a double and a home run. Nate Fechheimer had two hits for Hackman.

Outdoor Military took an 11-6 win from Wolman's Insurance on only six hits. Julius Margulies picked up his third win of the round although he was rocked for 11 hits.

Harold Eisenstein had two hits as did Margulies to lead the Ontario team, Larry Lawrence with three hits and Irv Smith with a home run paced the Insurancemen's 11-hit attack.

IKE COHEN three-hit Martin's Market, taking only one hour to give Seymour a 3-1 win—its second straight this round.

Jules Vogel had three hits including a home run to lead Seymour in addition to playing a sparkling shortstop. Marty Friedman clouted a triple and scored the only run for Martin's Market.

Scout Camp Teaches Outdoor Living Lesson

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By BOB COCHRAN

Last week 21 Boy Scouts camped at Madison Lake under the leadership of Ralph Roy of Mt. Sterling, who has been a Scoutmaster for 20 years. It was obvious that these Scouts were becoming acquainted with the outdoors, and learning quite a bit about self-reliance in the process.

I talked with Mr. Roy at the boat dock where he was waiting for four boys to come in from an afternoon of fishing. The Scouts at camp ranged from 11 to 16 years, and the older ones seemed to be looking after the younger Scouts.

The boat load of fishermen came to dock on schedule, and I noticed that an older Scout was rowing. About that time a column of hikers hove into view down by the bridge, and these Scouts were returning from a five-mile hike. Again, a taller boy was leading.

IN THIS DAY of herd psychology and high prices, Ralph Roy and his Scouts take a good deal of pride in the fact that they go camping by themselves and they do it for eight dollars a week per boy. "And they eat as well as they do at home, too," Roy is quick to add.

It was refreshing to spend some time in this camp without a lot of counselors with whistles around their necks running all over the place. That morning some of the Scouts had taken a 10-mile hike, again on their own. While Roy was at the boat dock — he wouldn't leave because he told the boys he would wait for them — I inspected the camp.

Expecting it to be deserted at that time, I was surprised for two boys had built fires to heat water and to cook supper. Another Scout was preparing potato salad. All was in order.

HERE, CLEARLY, boys were camping as they should — on their own with the experienced hand of an elder to guide them. From this small and simple camp will come memorable experiences that will last a lifetime.

Ralph Roy calls all his boys by their first names, and his collective term for them is "men." They respond to this treatment and he converses with them easily. The boys respect him and they do what he asks. There is probably no force on earth, however, than can control teen-age appetites, and I noticed that Ralph Roy sleeps with the food boxes in his tent. But a Scout pointed out that the ice box is left unprotected — on purpose, I presume.

The sociologists who devise great schemes for solving youth "problems" should spend a day with Ralph Roy and his Scouts at Madison Lake. When they camp, they mix work and play with only the sky overhead, and the whole thing is spiced with swimming and boating, fishing and wood chopping, hiking and kitchen police and a big helping of trust and devotion.

Ralph Roy is planning a Scouting reunion next year to celebrate the Troop's twentieth year. They better make arrangements for plenty of people.

Back The Columbus Jets

ATTENDANCE NIGHT AUG. 14

Jet 9 Seeks Playoff Berth In Second Last Home Stand

The Columbus Jets, battling Little Rock and Atlanta for a playoff berth, have returned home for their next-to-last home stand, entertaining three IL clubs for eight games.

The Toronto Maple Leafs stop in at the W. Mound-st Stadium Thursday and Friday evening for single games, beginning at 8 p.m.

SYRACUSE follows the Leafs for a three-game set with night games Saturday and Monday evenings, sandwiched around a single Sunday matinee game.

Rochester's Red Wings complete the current home stand with single night games Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Another set of big 'nights' are on tap for the home stand. Thursday evening is Cystic Fibrosis Night. Contribution from the ticket sales will help with the research on Cystic Fibrosis, most common and serious chronic disease of infancy and childhood. Tickets can be obtained by calling AM. 3-9341.

SATURDAY'S GAME with Syracuse is "Bargain Night" with ladies able to sit anywhere but the boxes for 50 cents, men anywhere but boxes for one dollar and children (accompanied by adult) admitted free.

Sunday is Capital Manufacturing Day and Monday, Y Men's Night with Tuesday designated as the fifth Buckeye Stamp Night.

The "biggest" night of the current home stand, however, should be next Wednesday's game with Rochester—tabbed "Attendance Night."

ALL SEATS, with the exception of box seats, will sell for one dollar. This game would be a fine opportunity for fans to show their appreciation to the Jets for the fine comeback they've made these last two months.

Evans Renamed WBBA Prexy

A TOTAL of 40 teams participated in the five leagues affiliated with the Whitehall association this year including more than 600 boys, all completely uniformed. Playoffs currently are in progress in all five leagues.

Do You Know Your Sports?

Rugby, the ancestor of American football, is actually an off-spring of soccer which came to life quite accidentally.

In 1823, a soccer player at England's Rugby College, angered with his inability to kick the ball, picked it up and ran over the opposition's goal line. Thus the sport's name.

THERE IS NO forward passing, interference or blocking allowed and the ball carrier must release the ball when tackled with play resuming automatically.

A "scrummage" (like football's scrimmage) occurs only after out-of-bounds plays and penalties. In case of injuries, no substitutions are allowed and a team must carry on shorthanded.

Lateral passing and kicking highlight the game, especially the latter since any free ball may be kicked. The rugby ball is oval and, like a football, can be kicked accurately. Record - 71 yards in 1962.

THE FIELD is 110 by 75 yards with end zones and goal posts just like football. A running goal, dropkick, free kick or penalty kick counts three points with conversions, scored in like manner, adding two more points.

Knee pads are the only equipment protection for the game with padless jerseys, shorts and cleated shoes completing the dress. Equipment cost is less than 20 dollars.

The game, which draws crowds of over 100,000 in Britain and Australia, is not nearly as popular in this country. However, close to 75,000 players participate in this country, especially in the northeastern colleges.

INTERCOLLEGIATE matches are scheduled in the Ivy League and the Eastern Rugby Union is composed of seven private clubs, from Boston to Baltimore, including four in the New York City area.

PAT SHINES AT DERBY

Sergio's Sixth-Place Finish 'Best Ever' For Local Entry

Pat Sergio, 11, of 802 E. Mithoff-st, placed sixth Saturday in a field of 240 entrants at the All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron, winning a $2500 college scholarship for his high finish.

Pat, the son of Mrs. Joseph Sergio, turned in the highest finish ever for a Columbus contestant with his sixth-place.

YOUNG SERGIO recorded the fastest time of the day the one time he drew the favorite number two lane on the three-lane course. The derby winner, Harold Conrad, of Duluth, Minn., drew the second lane in his final heat.

Sergio, in his first year of racing, was the only Ohio boy to reach the final run-off stage (after the third heat). In all, Pat drove five heats to win his sixth-place in the 26th running of the National derby, which saw six countries represented.

FALLOUT DANGER ON GROUND ZERO

BELIEVE IT or not, for once our heroes are completely in the right. Their putting session has been rudely interrupted by the on-target warning of an impatient golfer who just couldn't wait. Even if you're a pessimist who figures you can't possibly hit the green with your tee shot, wait those few extra seconds to be sure. If your shot should head toward someone anywhere on the course, the word is 'fore' or 'watch out' or anything that gets the point across. Sure, golf balls bounce but they usually leave dents when they hit.

SPORTS EDITOR

Sporting 'Almosts' That Never Quite Saw Print

Each year there are literally hundreds of sports stories that never see print because they lack what editors refer to as "dramatic impact."

Nevertheless, they are still noteworthy expressions of the trials and tribulations of athletic endeavors in this country and certainly do deserve a mention in passing.

HERE ARE A FEW of our favorite 1962-63 sports stories that you never read in any newspaper:

MOBILE, ALA. — Jake Mossley, a 42-year-old right-hander, pleaded for one more chance to escape the last cut made by the Pelicans.

Manager Bill Regan granted Mossley his wish by starting him last night against the hard-hitting Macon Bluejays. Mossley fanned the first two batters on six pitches while local fans cheered the old veteran's every move.

Mossley was unable to retire another batter, however, as Macon scored 11 first-inning runs and won eventually, 13-2. Mossley received his release this morning.

LATROBE, PA. — Johnny Sumpter, a senior halfback and leading scorer for the local high school here had good reason to do well in Friday night's game with arch-rival Centerville.

Johnny's father, Dave Sumpter, is head coach at Centerville and admittedly planned his whole defense to stop the high-scoring of son John.

The defense worked like a charm. Centerville won, 33-0 and young Sumpter was held to minus 21 yards total offense.

SILVER SPRINGS FLA. —Andy Billings, a 12-year-old who wants to "play golf just like Arnold Palmer" wrote the top money winner asking if he could meet him at the local country club pro shop when Palmer appeared here in the Invitational this week.

Young Andy wanted to present Palmer with a scrapbook he has been filling with Arnie's clippings since he was nine.

Andy camped in the pro shop for four days but Palmer never showed up.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—Eddie Harkness, the state's leading money winner in stock car racing, had a nightmare before last night's National Championships at the Holloway Track.

Harkness dreamed that his car jumped the wall and he was seriously burned. He refused to race but let fellow driver Jeff King pilot the car.

King won the race and $10,000. purse without mishap.

SAN BERNADINO, CALIF. — One of the biggest drives this city has ever seen climaxed last night at Chief Stadium where a "Save the Team Night" was staged.

Local officials, concerned with a shortage of fans at the ball park, warned that the club would move unless local

Scout Camp Teaches Outdoor Living Lesson

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

Last week 21 Boy Scouts camped at Madison Lake under the leadership of Ralph Roy of Mt. Sterling, who has been a Scoutmaster for 20 years. It was obvious that these Scouts were becoming acquainted with the outdoors, and learning quite a bit about self-reliance in the process.

I talked with Mr. Roy at the boat dock where he was waiting for four boys to come in from an afternoon of fishing. The Scouts at camp ranged from 11 to 16 years, and the older ones seemed to be looking after the younger Scouts.

The boat load of fishermen came to dock on schedule, and I noticed that an older Scout was rowing. About that time a column of hikers hove into view down by the bridge, and these Scouts were returning from a five-mile hike. Again, a taller boy was leading.

IN THIS DAY of herd psychology and high prices, Ralph Roy and his Scouts take a good deal of pride in the fact that they go camping by themselves and they do it for eight dollars a week per boy. "And they eat as well as they do at home, too," Roy is quick to add.

It was refreshing to spend some time in this camp without a lot of counselors with whistles around their necks running all over the place. That morning some of the Scouts had taken a 10-mile hike, again on their own. While Roy was at the boat dock — he wouldn't leave because he told the boys he would wait for them — I inspected the camp.

Expecting it to be deserted at that time, I was surprised for two boys had built fires to heat water and to cook supper. Another Scout was preparing potato salad. All was in order.

HERE, CLEARLY, boys were camping as they should — on their own with the experienced hand of an elder to guide them. From this small and simple camp will come memorable experiences that will last a lifetime.

Ralph Roy calls all his boys by their first names, and his collective term for them is "men." They respond to this treatment and he converses with them easily. The boys respect him and they do what he asks. There is probably no force on earth, however, than can control teen-age appetites, and I noticed that Ralph Roy sleeps with the food boxes in his tent. But a Scout pointed out that the ice box is left unprotected — on purpose, I presume.

The sociologists who devise great schemes for solving youth "problems" should spend a day with Ralph Roy and his Scouts at Madison Lake. When they camp, they mix work and play with only the sky overhead, and the whole thing is spiced with swimming and boating, fishing and wood chopping, hiking and kitchen police and a big helping of trust and devotion.

Ralph Roy is planning a Scouting reunion next year to celebrate the Troop's twentieth year. They better make arrangements for plenty of people.

BANDWAGON ROLLING AT 17

Groveport's Pam Higgins Eyes Amateur Golf's 'Queen Crown'

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Perhaps the biggest single satisfaction in the world belongs to the guy who can say, "I told you so."

You don't have to look far around this part of the state these days to find somebody who uses the phrase in regard to Jack Nicklaus.

BUT IF YOU like to be the kind that gets on the bandwagon early, better reserve a spot on the cart marked "Pam Higgins" that could come heading out of the Groveport Country Club any day now.

Pert Pam, who only last May said goodbye to high school at Groveport High, already has some pretty impressive credentials to present with only three years of golf experience behind her.

1963 has by far been Pam's most productive year off the tees and on the greens. She just missed the cutoff point for the National Open just about a month ago, took individual honors in the Juniors Tourney (Southern Ohio PGA) at Cincinnati.

PAM'S BIGGEST and best effort, however, came in the Franklin County Women's Championship two weeks ago when she progressed all the way to the finals before bowing to local golfing queen, Anne Richardson.

It was Pam's fourth try for the title and naturally, her closest grasp at seizing the gals' crown.

The 17-year-old blonde, who admits that her chipping and putting are the strongest part of her game, plays normally every day. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Higgins, 359 Main-st, Groveport, Pam is the only serious golfer in the family.

SHE'S HAD three different golfing instructors but credits Groveport pro Bob Bisciotti with helping her to her fine finish in the Women's Championship.

"I was playing lousy golf before the tournament but he (Bisciotti) helped me work on my swing. I wasn't shifting my weight properly."

Pam, who admitted that she did little else but play golf in preparation for the Women's Championships, is now taking a short layoff from the game at her father's suggestion, But the layoff didn't include chipping and putting practice which she worked on last week.

THE IMMEDIATE future means enrollment at Ohio State in the fall and more golf. Pam hasn't considered professional golf as yet but she is anxious to continue her competition on the amateur level.

But when you're just 17 and shooting in the high 70s off the men's tees at Groveport C.C., your future, whether professional or amateur, seems bright.

The name is Pam Higgins. Keep it in mind. It's likely you'll be hearing it plenty in years to come around golfing circles.

Do You Know Your Sports?

Rugby, the ancestor of American football, is actually an off-spring of soccer which came to life quite accidentally.

In 1823, a soccer player at England's Rugby College, angered with his inability to kick the ball, picked it up and ran over the opposition's goal line. Thus the sport's name.

THERE IS NO forward passing, interference or blocking allowed and the ball carrier must release the ball when tackled with play resuming automatically.

A "scrummage" (like football's scrimmage) occurs only after out-of-bounds plays and penalties. In case of injuries, no substitutions are allowed and a team must carry on shorthanded.

Lateral passing and kicking highlight the game, especially the latter since any free ball may be kicked. The rugby ball is oval and, like a football, can be kicked accurately. Record - 71 yards in 1962.

THE FIELD is 110 by 75 yards with end zones and goal posts just like football. A running goal, dropkick, free kick or penalty kick counts three points with conversions, scored in like manner, adding two more points.

Knee pads are the only equipment protection for the game with padless jerseys, shorts and cleated shoes completing the dress. Equipment cost is less than 20 dollars.

The game, which draws crowds of over 100,000 in Britain and Australia, is not nearly as popular in this country. However, close to 75,000 players participate in this country, especially in the northeastern colleges.

INTERCOLLEGIATE matches are scheduled in the Ivy League and the Eastern Rugby Union is composed of seven private clubs, from Boston to Baltimore, including four in the New York City area.

Jet 9 Seeks Playoff Berth In Second Last Home Stand

The Columbus Jets, battling Little Rock and Atlanta for a playoff berth, have returned home for their next-to-last home stand, entertaining three IL clubs for eight games.

The Toronto Maple Leafs stop in at the W. Mound-st Stadium Thursday and Friday evening for single games, beginning at 8 p.m.

SYRACUSE follows the Leafs for a three-game set with night games Saturday and Monday evenings, sandwiched around a single Sunday matinee game.

Rochester's Red Wings complete the current home stand with single night games Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Another set of big 'nights' are on tap for the home stand. Thursday evening is Cystic Fibrosis Night. Contribution from the ticket sales will help with the research on Cystic Fibrosis, most common and serious chronic disease of infancy and childhood. Tickets can be obtained by calling AM. 3-9341.

SATURDAY'S GAME with Syracuse is "Bargain Night" with ladies able to sit anywhere but the boxes for 50 cents, men anywhere but boxes for one dollar and children (accompanied by adult) admitted free.

Sunday is Capital Manufacturing Day and Monday, Y Men's Night with Tuesday designated as the fifth Buckeye Stamp Night.

The "biggest" night of the current home stand, however, should be next Wednesday's game with Rochester—tabbed "Attendance Night."

ALL SEATS, with the exception of box seats, will sell for one dollar. This game would be a fine opportunity for fans to show their appreciation to the Jets for the fine comeback they've made these last two months.

PAT SHINES AT DERBY

Sergio's Sixth-Place Finish 'Best Ever' For Local Entry

Pat Sergio, 11, of 802 E. Mithoff-st, placed sixth Saturday in a field of 240 entrants at the All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron, winning a $2500 college scholarship for his high finish.

Pat, the son of Mrs. Joseph Sergio, turned in the highest finish ever for a Columbus contestant with his sixth-place.

YOUNG SERGIO recorded the fastest time of the day the one time he drew the favorite number two lane on the three-lane course. The derby winner, Harold Conrad, of Duluth, Minn., drew the second lane in his final heat.

Sergio, in his first year of racing, was the only Ohio boy to reach the final run-off stage (after the third heat). In all, Pat drove five heats to win his sixth-place in the 26th running of the National derby, which saw six countries represented.

Shutdown Of Mobility Support Center Directly Affects Jobs Of 1,500 Employes

Much Of Operation Shifting To St. Louis During 1963-64

Action taken by the Department of Defense last week to close a local military installation will have a big impact on the lives of hundreds of employes of the U. S. Army Mobility Support Center, 52 Starling-st, which has a work force of 3,000.

Defense Department officials meeting in Columbus revealed that following a survey aimed at cutting operational costs, the department had taken joint action merging two military supply installations in Detroit (the Defense Automotive Supply Center into the Army Tank Automotive Command) and phasing out the Columbus Army Center, with an anticipated yearly savings to the government in personnel and computer rental costs of $8,000,000.

Plans affecting the Starling-st center also involve a defense program for establishing an Army Engineering Center and an Army Aviation Center in St. Louis.

The Engineering Center would consolidate all engineering operations at a single location, whereas at present the engineering operations are conducted in St. Louis, Columbus, Chicago and Virginia.

Dr. Robert F. Steadman, Office of Economic Adjustment, stated that approximately 900 Civil Service employes at the Columbus Army Center would be asked to relocate with the transfer of a major part of the mission to St. Louis. Local officials explained that these tentatively involve maintenance engineering operations, air delivery equipment and heavy equipment operations. Also affected by the transfer will be about 600 contract employes involved in preparing technical manuals and provisioning operations (450 located in Columbus and 150 in Marion).

A large number of MSC employees will be given opportunity to transfer with mission elements moving to the Defense Construction Supply Center (former Army Depot) on the East Side.

Start In Late 1963

The anticipated time-table for actions closing the Army Center foresees transfer of personnel to the DCSC beginning the latter part of 1963 and vacating of the building about the later part of 1964. Transfer of personnel to St. Louis and other Army elements during this time will depend upon capabilities at the receiving installations.

While many employes will have to consider moving and all that it implies, Columbus will not lose any large portion of Civil Service jobs, as the Defense Construction Supply Center is slated to receive added missions that will bring jobs into Columbus.

The present anticipated overall Civil Service job loss in the Columbus area as a result of the decision is set at about 157.

Defense Department officials assured employes that the administration is dedicated to a policy of giving them every possible consideration and opportunity to continue employment with the government. The government pays moving expenses for employes forced to relocate to another city.

Disposition of the 52 Starling-st building will be up to the General Services Administration, which has leased the property to the Army. The only other agency using the building is a Veterans Administration service staff of about a dozen, using a basement office.

(IN)TOLERANCE

"Intolerance" is an ugly word, and "tolerance," in one sense, is nearly as bad.

Intolerance is an unreasonable, stubborn determination to establish as a standard of human relationships one's own status, especially in racial and religious areas.

Racial characteristics are inherited, giving one no choice. One's early religious impressions and beliefs are a heritage, too. Too often there is little or no real religious teaching or example. Adult religious beliefs and conduct may be rejected, confirmed, or changed, depending upon the influences that have the most effect upon maturing minds and souls.

The very poor often are invidious toward the very rich. The rich are too often contemptuous of the poor. Fortunately, at least in this good land, both are becoming fewer. Consequently, some causes of ill will are being removed. So much for intolerance.

Tolerance means the "act of enduring," or the capacity for endurance. Endurance is the "ability to suffer pain, distress, hardship, or prolonged stress. Act of suffering." All this implies that a tolerant person assumes that people outside his group have qualities necessarily incompatible with his own. Therefore, he can find no common ground for equating his own situation with theirs. He leaves out understanding, and above all, love. He has little or no intellectual understanding of brotherhood and no spiritual experience of it. He just tolerates those not of his own group.

Eyesore

Tom Tyler

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

'Uglification' Of America Must Stop

SOCORRO, New Mexico — Alice (in Wonderland) argued with childlike logic that if things can be "beautified" they can also be "uglified." And the uglification of America should now be a matter of national concern.

U. S. Highway 60, newly paved between Phoenix and the Rio Grande, is a lovely American road. It climbs out of the old copper town of globe onto the Natanes Plateau, plunges into the Salt River gorge, and twists up to a gently rolling high land of thick pine forests.

Jones

Then suddenly across one of the West's most beautiful mountain meadows you see it — a red-and-yellow sign 100 feet long advertising cut-rate gas.

So you know why you have been delighted with Highway 60? The desecrators haven't had a chance to ruin it. But they are coming. As the road grows in popularity the signs will multiply, and as competition increases for the tourist dollar every tasteless, gimcracky device will be used to catch the eye.

So Highway 60 will become another Highway 66. Sixty-six has long been the "main street" to Los Angeles. West of Albuquerque it crosses the Navajo and Zuni country, skirts the Red Cliffs, bisects the Petrified Forest, and runs through the Painted Desert. It is also garnished with a nearly-unbroken succession of snake farms, chained bears, wooden Indians, pickled two-headed calves, bogus trading posts and the loudest and most garish signs in America. What should be one of the most beautiful highways is an elongated eyesore, ruined by man's greed.

Now, of course, there's nothing wrong with selling gasoline along a highway. Nor pop nor souvenirs. Nor putting a neon tiara around your motel to mesmerize the weary night driver. If you want to display a wooden replica of Geronimo's horse, why not?

What is wrong is the destruction of miles of scenery on both sides of your business in order to soften potential customers for the kill.

You can louse up the landscape until you begin to hurt business both for yourself and your neighbors. Americans are hungry for beauty. That's why they travel great distances on their vacation.

Look ahead 25 years. Our country will have 45 million more people. The thirst for unspoiled natural charm will be greater than ever, for we will be a crowded country. How long can we tolerate the messers?

Take Williamsburg, Va. I saw it first in 1926, the year before John D. Rockefeller, Jr., began pouring in the restoration millions that has made it the historical showplace of the continent. It was a spavined, wind-broken tobacco town, filled with dilapidated shanties decorated with chewing tobacco signs. An occasional antiquarian would drop off the C&O local to look at the Bruton Church.

Consider Williamsburg now. You can't get a parking place. Millions have thrilled to this re-creation of colonial charm. Now, suppose you lined Duke of Gloucester Street with billboards, set up an alligator farm and a kiddie-whirl, and built a few hamburger stands to resemble teepees and a couple of coffee shops in the shape of giant coffee pots. There'd be plenty of parking places.

Williamsburg is proof that Americans are willing to reward good taste with good business.

There is evidence that a lot of communities are beginning to get the word. Carmel is the most visited village in California because it won't put up with uglification. Coral Gables turned a swamp into some of the richest real estate in Florida because it insisted on beauty.

Forty years ago a shaving cream maker painted his pitch on the sheer rocks of Maryland Heights overlooking storied old Harper's Ferry. They should have pushed him off the cliff. But at least the outcry was sufficient to make him refrain from ever repainting the sign. The last time I came through, the huge, hideous letters were almost gone. But is that view from Jefferson's Rock, which the third president said "is worth crossing an ocean to see" living on borrowed time again?

Every American should hold a share of stock in America's scenery. We have now reached the point where we must preserve this scenery. No legitimate private rights need be destroyed.

The principle of zoning is well established in every major city except Houston. We no longer consider it an invasion of individual liberty to forbid man from putting up a glue factory in a residential area.

States that have scenery to sell would be smart to adopt the same principle. Let billboards be confined to "information areas" outside each town. And there's nothing tyrannical about requiring rural businesses to limit the size and frequency of their ads. It doesn't take a notice the size of the Queen Elizabeth to get across the idea that gas is cheaper or that the motel has a pool.

America is big and beautiful, but not too big and beautiful to be marred by the loud and the tasteless. In the name of good hard-boiled self-interest, states and communities should preserve the beauty that they have and restore the beauty they have lost. Rather than let new U.S. 60 look like old 66, Americans should demand that 66 look like 60.

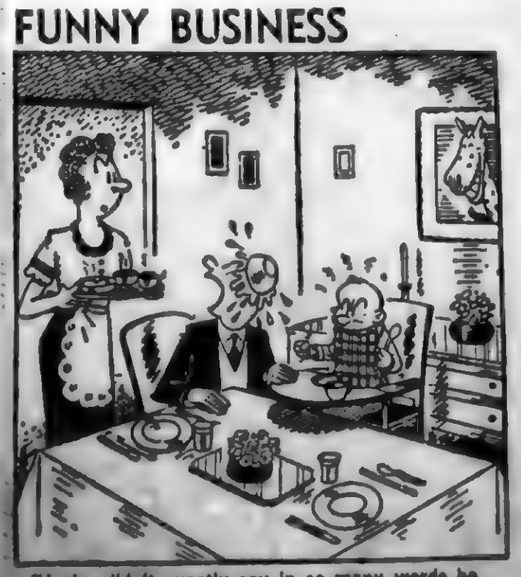
To The Publisher:



I wish to express my sincere appreciation for your recent editorial "Jets In 1964 - - - Yes Or No."

Our attendance for the past two homestands has increased considerably and we have 14 more openers this season. It is hoped the fans will keep on supporting us. If so, we have a chance of coming out of this year's operation in fair shape.

Your support of baseball in our city certainly has paid dividends.

Fairs Are For The People

County and State Fair time is here again, and this year's programs for both events hold forth a promise for new attendance records.

The Franklin County Fair, marking its 50th anniversary, will hold the spotlight at Hilliard from Aug. 12 through 17. The 110th edition of the Ohio State Fair will run from Aug. 23 through Sept. 2 at the Ohio Exposition Center.

The day of "the fair" as a strictly agricultural event is history. Today's events are sufficiently urbanized to include events of interest to everyone.

Livestock showing, tractor pulling contests, youth activities and harness racing are still integral parts of both the Franklin County and State Fair programs. But today's fair programs also include exhibits in the fields of industry, science, government and other areas commanding a wide urban and rural interest.

Modern techniques of display and presentation provide a balance between education and entertainment.

Franklin County area residents are doubly fortunate. They can more easily follow up their visit to the "local" fair by joining the throngs from throughout the state who will view and participate in the State Fair — the "granddaddy" of all fairs in Ohio.

Entries for this year's exhibits, judgings, races and special events indicate the largest exposition in Ohio's State Fair history.

Fairgoers have been promised a "wide-angle view of the best Ohio has to offer in the fields of agriculture, horticulture, livestock, dairy production, poultry, farm machinery, harness racing, excitement, horse show dignity, industry, science, research, homemaking, culture, youth activities and many, many other things."

(While the foregoing is a mouthful to say, write or promise, it should prove a worthwhile eyeful and earful for those who visit the fair extravaganza.)

The Franklin County Fair is a program by and for the local community. The State Fair presents for all Ohioans the best from communities throughout the state. Each event is worthy of full public support and participation. See you at the fair(s).

The American Medical Association warns that the most bedeviling portion of the hay fever season will soon be with us. Those sensitive to the ragweed pollen will be most affected from the middle of August through mid-September, the AMA says.

The hay fever allergy has a variety of causes, the most common of which is ragweed pollen. Effects also vary, but most common are sneezing, watery eyes, runny nose and general miserable discomfort.

The most common preventive measures listed by the AMA include the following:

Get specific anti-hay fever shots well ahead of the season.

Avoid exposure to ragweed pollen by keeping away from areas where it is prevalent. (Mow that vacant lot now.)

Air condition the home and work in air-conditioned surroundings, if possible.

Use antihistaminic drugs to lessen the nasal and sinus congestion.

Keep the home as dust free as possible, particularly during the height of the hay fever season.

Unconsciously We Can Become Near-Pagan

Many persons do not take seriously the matter of attendance at worship. It seems to be looked upon as something to do if the weather is good, if there is no place else to go, if no company is coming, if there is nothing pressing to be done around the home and if one feels in a church-going mood. This gives worship a very low priority.

Rev. Peters

The author of Hebrews marked out the right course well when he said, "... let us consider how to stir up one another to love and good works, not neglecting to meet together, as is the habit of some . . ."

It is true that absence from public worship may be due to circumstances beyond our ability to control. Working conditions which cannot be altered, sickness, infirmity and certain other things may prevent attendance. Even under such circumstances, the desire to come to God's House can be present and opportunities used when possible. We try, in such cases, to bring the church to people in other ways. This, however, is not the deep problem we face.

What may happen when we, deliberately or through neglect, stay away from public worship? It becomes increasingly easier to do it. Absences become more frequent. Likely, no calamity befalls us at once so that we easily begin to feel that it doesn't matter. The world goes on. Our children don't become bad all at once. We find ourselves caring less and less about what goes on at the church. It becomes uncomfortable to have the minister call. He somehow reminds us of obligations we would rather forget.

Perhaps once a year we are called upon and confronted with the need for offerings to operate the church. However, why should we give to something that no longer means much to us? It becomes harder to say grace at meals—seems perhaps a little strange. The day of worship becomes much like any other kind of holiday — a time to loaf or do a few odd jobs around the house. We have become a new kind of pagan. It was easy to accomplish.

But, we are not happy. World unrest affects us more than it did when we worshipped regularly. Life lacks a certain zest, purpose and satisfaction that it once had. We worry about our children as they grow up in these days of confused moral standards. Have we given them all the help we could? The friends we choose live as we do: It's becoming hard to meet a funeral procession. "Some day it's going to be me. I wish I could feel more calm about it."

The deepest needs of life are never met without God, Therefore, let us "Remember the Sabbath-day, to keep it holy."

Olen A. Peters, Pastor
Reformation Lutheran Church

Frosting On The Cake

By "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

It's no wonder the specialists in psychosomatic medicine are getting rich. Millions of otherwise fine and decent people are getting "flickers in the ticker" halfway through a normal expectancy, and all because they have never learned how to be deliberate about everything.

People jump out of bed every morning in a real "state of shock." Then they are in such a hurry to shave, shower and eat breakfast that every natural process is thrown out of rhythm.

With this kind of a start it is no wonder that by 10 a.m. they need a stimulant to keep going. And things get worse as the day goes on.

Hurry, hurry, hurry! Step right up and put in your bid. Win yourself a coronary or a perforated ulcer.

As for me, you can have it all. I've been taking my time for 72 years.

STRICTLY FRESH

There are several ways to handle a woman, and it's a shame that no one knows what they are.

Marriage is just another union that defies management.

Some say that if a man tells a woman she is beautiful, she will overlook most of his other lies.

Many a man wishes his wife could make bread like his mother, while the little lady wishes he could make dough like her father.

The Lord is my shepherd

The 23rd Psalm is one of the most familiar chapters in the Bible. Early in life, most of us have committed it to memory. Every once in a while we should go back to these verses and think of the wonderful message of faith and trust in God that they reveal to us. They show us that we have a loving Father; one who will show us the right paths; one who will protect and provide for us. These scriptures end with a note of thanksgiving and a promise.

"Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

Plan to start a regular worship in the Lord's house this Sunday.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

CAMERA CATCHES COMPETITION AT '63 OHIO STATE SKY DIVING MEET

A GROUP OF SKY diving enthusiasts proved that space flights aren't restricted to Cape Canaveral alone last weekend as they competed in the 1963 Ohio State Sky Diving meet roughly a mile and half above and four miles south of Plain City on the Price-Hilliard-rd. At left is smiling winner Bill Cook, 693 S. Terrace-av, who copped the overall champion trophy, thanks to his first-place finishes in both target and team competition jumping and second place in style jumping. Center photo pictures Paul Ninninger, 83 Broadlawn-av, as he displays the form that earned him the first place trophy in style jumping. At right is Jim Hite, 398 E. Royal Forest, shown corraling his chute following a perfect landing. The meet was composed of three events—style (7200-ft.), target (3200-ft.) and team (7200-ft.) jumping. To underline the accuracy of the target jumpers, Cook's winning jump placed him six inches from the center of the target. Cook and Ninninger, who are both employed at Westinghouse, jump every Saturday and Sunday, weather permitting. (Photos by Tom Baird.

Senior Citizens Center

275 McDowell-st

After the Senior Citizens Recreation Center elects six officers in May, the new president in consultation with the directors, appoints the 12 standing committee chairmen. This group of 18 makes up the Senior Council that meets monthly to hear reports, discuss activities, and to make suggestions for future programs.

From 80 to 100 members serve on these committee that represent a variety of interest areas. Each has a staff advisor that meets with them.

Many older people have leadership skills, any many discover talents that they did not know existed. Members working in these small groups soon learn it is one of the best ways to make friends more quickly, and they enjoy seeing ideas they present turn out successfully for others — it also increases self esteem to be of service with a specific assignment.

This represents the "inner life" of the center. The inter-action between members and recreation leaders is the most important part of this professionally directed program for older people.

The Senior Center's working committees from May, 1963 to May, 1964 are:

Membership chairman, Mrs. Harriet Evans; new members tea, Mrs. Mary Adler, Mrs. Ann E. Werner, Mrs. Edith Robinson, Mrs. Nancy Lacey, Mrs. Elsie Collins, Mrs. Rachel Strawn and Mrs. Sarah Davidson; name tags, Mrs. Emilie Hale and Mrs. Mae Bryant.

House chairman, Fred Kreuzer; friendly visiting chairman, Mrs. Olga Merz and committee members Mrs. Iren Redding and Mrs. Martha Rittenger.

'Confederate' Cash Jackpot Again Passes $100 Mark

Again the jackpot in the "Confederate" Money Contest, sponsored by this paper, has passed the $100 mark. This means that some lucky subscriber to a Hartley Newspaper could take home enough "Confederate" cash this week to make a down payment on a car, buy furniture, appliances or any of hundreds of other items advertised in today's paper.

Any merchant or place of business which has an advertisement in any of the seven Hartley Newspapers will accept the "Confederate" money, at face value, just like the real thing.

To win this week's jackpot of $113 in "Confederate" cash, a reader must find a "5" insignia, just like the one shown in the column, printed in a color other than black. Only one of these emblems is placed within one of the large advertisements in one copy of this week's edition of nearly 74,000 newspapers.

To claim the entire jackpot the finder must be a paid subscriber to a Hartley Newspaper and bring the paper containing the winning insignia to the Hartley Newspaper office, 2465 W. Broad-st, in person, before the deadline at noon on the Monday following the date of publication. If not a paid subscriber the finder can still win $5 in "Confederate" money.

In 20 separate copies of this week's edition of Hartley Newspapers there have been hidden "1" emblems like the one shown in this column. Like the "5" emblem, they are printed in a color other than black and appear within an advertisement on the inside pages.

These emblems can gain $1 in "Confederate" cash if the finder will mail the page containing the winning insignia to the Hartley Newspaper office. The finder does not have to be a subscriber to claim the winnings from a "1" emblem.

All entries must be submitted by the deadline on Monday, following publication of the paper, before noon.

This contest is not open to employes, including carriers, of Hartley Newspapers and their families. All "Confederate" money will be accepted, at face value, by any merchant advertising in a Hartley Newspaper during the week the winner finds the emblem.

All money not claimed during one week's contest is added to the jackpot that is offered the following week.

Ohio Federal Savings Says Divi-Chek Plan Successful

The Divi-Chek, a plan which assures participants of a check each month, has been qualified as an overwhelming success by the Ohio Federal Savings and Loan Association, 24 E. Gay-st, which introduced the plan in Ohio one month ago.

More than $1.5 million has been invested in the plan during the first three weeks of operation, according to Arthur R. (Art) Allen, president of the association.

Allen said the plan is open to anyone having $5,000 or more to invest. Since it is illegal for a savings and loan firm to declare monthly dividends, the local organization actually pays advanced installments on the six-month dividend. This plan is a modification of a plan first introduced on the West Coast. Ohio Federal is the first to offer it in Ohio.

So far records indicate that many of the early investors were retired persons who invested an average of $10,000 in their new Divi-Chek accounts. All investments made by the 10th of the month yield the first check on the first of the following month.

The Divi-Chek plan is available at any of the six offices of Ohio Federal Savings and Loan: Main Office, 24 E. Gay-st; Linden Office, 3246 Cleveland-av; Southern Office, 3460 S. High-st; Whitehall Office, 4140 E. Broad-st; Arlington Office, 1743 W. Lane-av, and Reynoldsburg Office, 7110 E. Main-st.

All accounts are insured up to $10,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, an agency of the Federal Government.

Suspect Thieves Set Auto Fire

City police theorized that thieves, who were unable to find anything to steal, set fire to an auto belonging to Mrs. Grace Price, 456 S. Roys-av, early Tuesday. Firemen said the blaze had been deliberately set in the back seat of the 1962 model car parked in the rear of the home.

Police also reported that apparently the same vandals had taken $78 worth of tools and clothing from the home of a neighbor, Larry McNulty, at 460 S. Roys-av, the same evening. Damage to the car was estimated at $150.

To give a spring touch to your cakes, add colored, grated coconut. It can easily be done in a jar in which a few drops of food coloring and one tablespoon of water has been added. A quick shake or two colors a box of coconut.

AN EXTERIOR VIEW of the newly constructed Ridgewood Swim Club is an example of the type of work done by Stertzer Decorating Inc., 880 Elaine-dr. The preparation for and decoration, inside and outside, were recently completed by the local firm.

Stertzer Decorating Inc. Does Interior - Exterior Finishing

Specializing in interior and exterior painting, paper hanging, steaming and furniture refinishing, Stertzer Decorating Inc., 880 Elaine-rd, Whitehall, was organized several years ago by L. H. Stertzer. In 1955 the firm was purchased by G. C. Oiler, who expanded operations to cover the entire State of Ohio.

Oiler, and his staff of nine employes, recently completed outstanding decorating jobs in the Central Ohio area including the new Ridgewood Swim Club, Ridgewood-dr, and the Cook and Son Funeral Home, 1631 Parsons-av.

In many cases Oiler will advise customers on the best use of colors and color combinations when considering a particular painting project. All the necessary work to prepare a building or room for receiving a new coat of paint is also done by the decorating service.

Individual, commercial or industrial customers are invited to call Oiler or Stertzer Decorating and discuss their individual needs. Free estimates are available on request. All work in guaranteed.

Experts in old and new decorating work, the Stertzer firm also specializes in refinishing old furniture and woodwork and restoring the original beauty and finish. For any type of decorating problem—old, new, inside or outside—Stertzer Decorating Inc. will have a solution. Appointments can be arranged by contacting them at BE. 5-1227.

STREET DANCE AT GREAT EASTERN

HOOTENANNY PRACTICE time occurred last Thursday afternoon at the Eastern Shopping Center parking lot. Several of the area store managers decided they needed to get together to tune up their instruments and voices for the big Hootenanny and Street Dance, Friday, Aug. 9, from 6 to 10 p.m., in the shopping center parking lot at Hamilton-rd and E. Main-st. A fun-filled evening for everyone has been planned at Great Eastern with a lot of danceable music to be offered by Paul Moore of the Country Squares; Nelson Lyons and His Southern Ramblers and the Turner Sisters. Twisting through last Friday's warm up were Don Smathers of Coyle Music Center (front left) and Gail Kimmbiman, 5005 Betsey-rd. Music and song were provided by (from left) Carolyn Curry, Buckeye Optical; Ron Moorison, Lowe Brothers' Paint Store; Dane Emery, Hobbyland, and Ed Turner, Volk's Tile City.

SEWING, LAUNDRY TAUGHT

Newest Idea In Rehabilitation Is In Store For Women Prisoners

A mistake doesn't have to be final, and once their debt to society is paid, the women in the new Columbus Women's Correctional Institution (directly south of Columbus Workhouse) will find that they have been trained to do many commercial-type jobs.

According to Mrs. Dorothy Mitchell, matron in charge, associated with the City Prison for seven years, the new building is truly feminine in decorations and fixtures and rightly called, "the most modern in the nation."

Women who have never taken up a hem or darned a sock will learn to operate commercial sewing machines, the type used in large textile factories. They will make their own uniforms, towels, tablecloths, sheets and mattress covers.

But the stitching doesn't stop there. The women will also outfit the men's bunks, both at the Men's Workhouse and downtown City Jail.

As for doing laundry, the girls have it. Again, commercial-type machines will be used and all three prisons will have clean clothes, thanks to the girls.

For the first time in the history of Columbus Women's Institutions, meals will be arranged, prepared and served by the girls. This will guide them in economics along with learning the culinary arts.

Upon arising at 7 each morning, the women will dress and prepare for the day's work in pleasant surroundings. Two large dormitories have replaced the commonly thought of barred single cells. Each accommodates 48 women, making a total capacity of 96. The walls are painted in pastel pink and yellow shades, with harmonizing curtains and spreads on the double bunk beds. Individual lockers are provided for personal articles.

Another first, is the planned recreation program to be held out-of-doors in a fenced in area, allowing the women to exercise and to get fresh air and an area of grass and trees.

Movies will be shown at specified times and a television set and combination radio and record player are centrally located.

The new facility, located south of Columbus, on Jackson-pk, (Rt. 104) a half-mile south of Frank-rd, has reached a milestone in modernistic design and rehabilitation program.

C. V. Perry Says Home Sales Up

C. V. Perry and Co., 40 W. Gay-st, has reorted the largest sales volume for one month in its entire 16-year history, according to C. V. Perry, company president. The July total included the sale of 113 new homes for $1,808,000 in three sudivisions handled by the company, said Perry.

Oren E. Morris, vice-president and general manager, said he expects 1963 to be the best year the company has ever enjoyed. Morris added the company closed sales amounting to $4,260,000 during the first six months of the year.

AT MEETING

MRS. M'LDRED SMITH, owner of the Christian Book and Gift Store, 179 S. High-st, will participate on the Board of Directors of the Christian Booksellers Association at their annual convention, Wednesday, Aug. 7, through Aug. 10, in Washington, D. C. Mrs. Smith will serve as mistress of ceremonies during the convention to introduce speakers to members attending from all 50 states. While in Washington she will also conduct her annual buying project to provide new merchandise for the coming fall and winter season.

Flashers Ordered For City Schools

An order from Columbus Safety Director Albert G. Giles has provided for the installation of school flasher lights to warn motorists of a 20 mph speed limit during restricted hours at 12 elementary schools.

The order called for the new amber flasher lights to be installed at the W. Mound Street School, Main Street School, Indian Springs School, Christ the King School, Broadleigh School, St. Agnes School, Calumet School, Eakin Road School, St. Thomas School, Colerain School, North Linden School and Smith Road School.

Gas oven-broiler units now can be built into wall or cabinet at any height the housewife desires. Top-burner units may be installed atop base cabinets in any desired location.

Buckeye Optical Has Special Sale

owned daily newspaper. On the positive side, he opined that local utility rates are "good."

A retired claims adjuster for a trucking firm was critical of City Council's handling of the current water rate issue. He said the Market-Mohawk contract between the city and United Development Corp. was a matter of "political patronage pure and simple." He, too, criticized the daily press for "not bringing out all of the facts."

A major problem in Columbus, according to a supervisor of operations at the Columbus General Depot, is inadequate employment opportunities. The city is not doing what it might to attract industry, he said, and added that there is a need for more policemen and firemen at higher salaries.

A S. James-rd housewife complained about the lack of adequate street lighting, but allowed that other city services were adequate.

Other complaints filed with Portman ranged from too much concentration by police on minor traffic infractions rather than on major violations, truck noises in residential areas, and lack of street cleaning operations.

If the political maxim that a satisfied citizen will vote for the incumbent office holders holds forth this fall, Portman can write off at least one of the group he interviewed. A maintenance man at the Columbus General Depot termed city services as adequate and fairly priced, and living conditions "excellent compared to Logan," where he lived one year ago.

He is a member of Eastview Methodist, is married and the father of two children, Jeffrey, 11, and seven-year-old Jennifer.

Freeman Act Is Gratifying —Portman

M. D. (Morey) Portman, former Columbus finance director, has gone on record in favor of the most recent administrative change effected by his successor, C. Wayne Freeman.

In a letter to the present finance director Portman said: "It was gratifying to observe that you decided to adopt my recommendations to transfer 58 employes from the Division of Water to General Fund divisions."

(The transfer to which Portman alluded involved switching 58 Division of Water employes to the Division of Parks and Forestry. Personnel affected were responsible for maintenance and construction of park lands and facilities, and salaries and costs were previously changed to the Division of Water. Freeman said the change would effect an annual savings of $304,000.)

Portman, a Democratic candidate for City Council, told Freeman that the change "substantiates my statements last March that large sums of money could have been saved the Division of Water if proposals made in the cost of service study by the Department of Finance in 1959 had been followed sooner."

Portman also sent a letter to Council President Mrs. Golda May Edmonston, calling her attention that the change approved by Council had originally been offered when he was the city's finance director.

"The people of Columbus," Portman wrote Mrs. Edmonston, "deserve to be told why Council waited three and one-half years to use this recommendation in the cost of service study which would have saved the Division of Water more than a million dollars."

ing discussion of the matter, Neno said: No "motion, gentleman?" Upon receiving no response, he called for the next item.

Other cases included on the commission agenda resulted in the following action:

Modification of a previously approved left turn ban at E. Livingston and Francis-avs by restricting left turns only between the hours of 4 p.m. and 6 p.m.

Approval of stop signs for Colby and Barthel-avs at S. Yearling-rd. Authorizing Colby, Arkwood and Bolton-avs to stop for Beechwood-av, and Carolwood-av and Ashton Court to yield for Beechwood traffic.

Approved stop signs for Kirkwood-rd, Seabrook-av and Cushing-dr at Cunard-rd; stop signs for Selkirk-rd at Kirkwood-rd and at Seabrook-rd, and signing for Argus-rd traffic to yield to Kirkwood rd traffic.

Agreed to installation of a school signal at Livingston-av and Shady Lane-rd.

Budget—

Major expenditures planned during 1964 include:

Police Department, $79,100 (including $147,600 for salaries, $24,000 for other expenses and $7,500 for new equipment); Fire Department $114,500 (including $95,000 in salaries, $15,500 for other expenses and $4,500 for new equipment); loan payments, $83,000; garbage collection (by contract), $66,000, and capital improvements, $50,000.

These areas account for $579,100 of the total general fund budget of $757,886.

The supplemental appropriation included $44,725 from the general fund and $16,600 from the street construction, maintenance and repair fund. The largest single amount of the appropriation, $9,800, was directed to the garbage collection fund to cover increased collection costs authorized earlier this year.

The remainder of the appropriation covered various salary needs, office operational expenses, equipment repair, materials purchased, and service charges.

In its final action Tuesday night, council granted a deed of easement to the Columbus Southern Ohio Electric Co., for a five-foot strip of land in Orten L. Davis Memorial Park for the purpose of constructing electrical lines.

lish Lutheran Church, and Rev. Leslie E. Starisbery, Old First Presbyterian Church. Central Community House, 931 Bryden, is the organizing agency.

Through its various committees, the council works to improve the East side in various ways—with the city building and health inspectors it checks overcrowding and misuse of land and buildings. In cooperation with the City Planning and Urban Renewal Committees, it works to create and preserve strong neighborhoods.

And, although non-political, it attempts to encourage voters to register and support elected leaders who are concerned with the area problems. It also provides a framework for cooperation between churches, businessmen and social agencies in the community.

And most important, it urges that residents help with problems by supporting, with their active participation, the Council's program.

Youth Groups Honored For Safety Check

Four Columbus youth groups recently received Circle of Safety awards of excellence for outstanding activities in the National Voluntary Vehicle Safety-Check program. Franklin County and Columbus also received awards.

Youth groups receiving national recognition are Immaculate Conception Catholic Youth Council, St. Christopher's Catholic Youth Council, St. Joseph Cathedral Catholic Youth Council and West High School.

Franklin County received the 1963 Grand Award for having the nation's most outstanding county vehicle safety-checks. The Columbus Catholic Youth Council was also a Grand Award winner for outstanding assistance to a vehicle safety-check program.

Columbus received the National Award of Excellence for exceptional city safety-check programs and the Circle of Safety Grand Award for the most outstanding youth support of a community safety-check program in the nation.

John Auble, Jr. Now At Norfolk Naval Air Station

Former Hartley Newspapers writer-editor John Auble, Jr., is currently serving as public information and public relations representative for Patrol Squadron 56 based at the U.S. Naval Air Station, Norfolk, Va.

Auble, a seaman in the U. S. Navy Reserves, is serving two years of active duty after spending a year of reserve duty with the Naval Center in Columbus.

The squadron has a primary mission of anti-submarine warfare and a secondary mission of aerial minelaying. It was awarded the Atlantic Fleet Wing Five battle readiness efficiency "E" last month for its proficiency at both these tasks.

A 1958 Whitehall graduate and former Ohio State University student, Auble is writing for the Fleet Home Town News Center and several other Naval publications.

He's the son of Mrs. Florence Auble, 118 Maplewood-av, and John Auble, Sr., P. O. Box 511, Columbus. His wife, Sharen, a South High graduate, resides at 1167 Kelburn-av, Apt. C.

National Guard's Citizen-Soldiers Now In Training

Training has moved into high gear at Camp Grayling, Mich., for some 8,000 officers and men of Ohio's 37th Infantry Division and 850 Army Reservists, attached for annual summer field training.

The Buckeye National Guard division has again brought to Grayling one of the highest ratings in the nation among guard divisions.

Using the Army grade-card system, the 37th last year received 4,873 superior ratings — the highest possible — out of the total 6,818 inspections. There were only 1,846 excellents; 98 satisfactory ratings and three unsatisfactories.

If training goes as smoothly as the trip north from Ohio, the 1963 training program could be the division's most successful. No accidents occurred as the division's more than 2,000 vehicles made their way to camp last weekend in military convoys — the first time in the memory of veteran guardsmen that such a perfect trip was recorded.

Maj. Gen. Loren G. Windom, is division commander.

Emphasis is on the tactical operation of the new ROAD division — instituted by the division in April. Summer camp is the division's first practical use of the new organization, which provides more flexibility and mobility.

ROAD stand for Reorganized Objective Army Division. Its three brigade structure compares with the old five battle groups.

The division's units are spending the first week of training moving in and out of the field for training problems under as close to combat conditions as possible. Next week, the entire division takes to the field for rigorous maneuvers.

All divisional weapons, except the Honest John Rocket, will be fired during camp with live ammunition. Unit maneuvers also will be stressed during camp.

This weekend all units return from the field for the annual review. On hand will be Ohio's Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Units return to their 64 home communities around the state Aug. 17.

Westinghouse Plans Family Day Program

An estimated 15,000 persons are expected to attend the Family Day program at the Westinghouse Major Appliance Division, Saturday, Aug. 10.

The plant, which employs about 4,700 people, will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to enable employes to take their families on a tour of the production facilities, the display areas, and the supply depot, which is a nerve center in the distribution of Westinghouse consumer products.

The Columbus plant began operations 10 years ago. It produces refrigerators, freezers, dehumidifiers, room air conditioners, water coolers and heaters, and dishwashers.

East Gate Picnic Set For Aug. 9

East Gate Masons will hold their annual Fellowcraft picnic at Wollerman's Recreation Park, at 6 p.m., Friday, Aug. 9.

There will be food, refreshments, games, prizes, music and dancing planned for the evening. A donation of $1 per person will be accepted to help cover the cost.

Directions to the Wollerman's Park are: Travel south on Rt. 33, for one and a half miles past Hamilton-rd to Ebright-rd, turn right for one mile, then left on Bixby-rd. The park is located approximately one block on the right side of Bixby-rd.

Water Line Injunction Dismissed

A request for a temporary injunction by the Ebco Manufacturing Co., restraining Whitehall from completing an extension of water and sewer lines north on N. Hamilton-rd to the Seyfert Potato Chip factory, was dismissed Tuesday by Municipal Court Judge Joseph Harter.

The lines, according to Whitehall Solicitor Paul Haytcher, were extended northerly in order that the potato chip factory could be built at that location.

Ebco, contending that it owns the land up to the center of Hamilton-rd in fee simple, charges that Whitehall dug trenches, laid the lines and cut through a driveway leading to Ebco without authorization.

Haytcher explained Whitehall's position on the street is being under the control and supervision of the city, and could therefore be used not only for street purposes, but for water, sewer, electric and gas lines as needed. The project, according to Haytcher, is 97 per cent completed.

Ebco requested, through its attorney, Harry R. Sheckler, that Whitehall be restrained from completing the lines, and that the city be ordered to remove the installation.

Schools Buy New Equipment

Purchase of new equipment ranging from buses to data processing equipment was featured at the Wednesday night meeting of Whitehall School Board.

Board members also approved the use of schools by the city's recreation department to carry out its regular winter program, and hired four new teach-rs.

Under the terms of an AAA contract, the board approved an agreement with Bobb Chevrolet for a new driver training car. Whitehall Schools will pay only for the maintenance.

Paul Walker Is Assured Of Election

Paul L. Walker, 226 N. Ardmore-rd, member of the State Board of Education from the 12th Congressional District, Franklin County, for the past eight years, is headed for his third term in the post.

He was assured of victory in the Nov. 5 election when last Wednesday's deadline came and went, with no other candidates filing. No write-ins will be allowed at the polls.

Walker, a member of the original board, was elected first to a two-year term, and then re-elected to a full six-year term.

He is also executive director of the Franklin County Unit, American Cancer Society.

WHITEHALL MAYOR'S RACE

Apartment Issue Gets Top Priority In Holzhause Bid For Top Office

William H. (Bill) Holzhause, Independent candidate for mayor of Whitehall, officially opened his bid for the city's top administrative post by making clear his identity as an "Independent," and declaring himself against additional apartment construction.

In addressing a group of volunteer workers who will direct various committees, Holzhause previewed prime campaign issues. Apartments, recreation, garbage collection, city finances and administrative policies will spotlight election issues, he said.

Holzhause indicated that he will introduce other matters as the campaign progresses. He declared a desire to "bring government back to the people of Whitehall" as the prime purpose of his candidacy.

In an interview following the meeting with committee members, Holzhause elaborated on some of the issues he will push, and the campaign pattern he will follow.

He spoke candidly of story "making the rounds and concerning his position as an Independent.

"The way I hear it now," he said, "I originally approached Whitehall Republicans in an effort to have them endorse me as a Republican candidate in the primary election. Supposedly, I was turned down. Then I was supposedly turned down by Whitehall Democrats when I tried to file as a Democrat. That, I am told, is how I decided to file as an Independent." He termed the story a "politically grim" fairy tale.

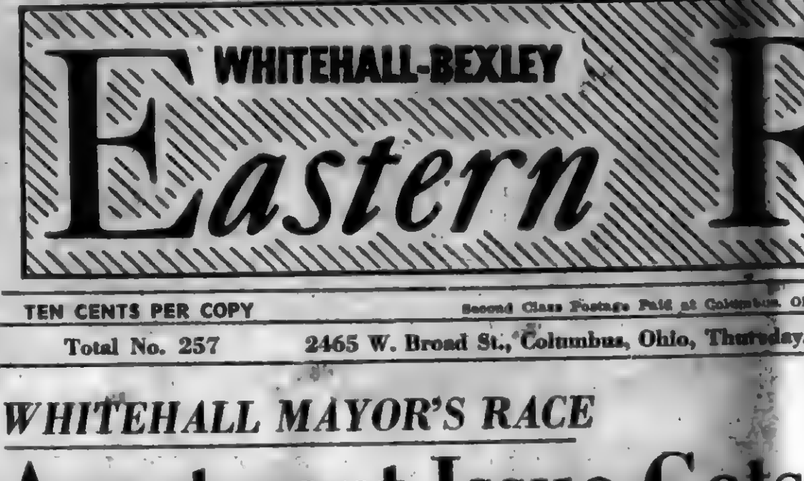
"As a matter of fact," Holzhause continued, "I have always been an Independent as a voter. It didn't seem strange to me at all to file as an Independent candidate. My decision was strengthened because I was given solid encouragement by both Republicans and Democrats.

"It's funny," Holzhause mused, "but some of the same politicans who constantly appeal to the Independent voter just can't seem to believe that there is such a thing as an Independent candidate."

Holzhause said his personal preferences in the other races to be decided in the November General Elections include both Republicans and Democrats. He indicated that he may name his choices in the near future.

Holzhause said he expects the question of apartment building in Whitehall to be one of the top election issues both in the mayoralty race and City Council contests.

"The apartment building boom has been allowed to get completely out of hand," he said. "This is a serious problem because it affects almost every citizen of Whitehall — the homeowner, the apartment dweller and other renters, business, commerce and industry.



"The question isn't whether apartments bring in certain revenues, taxes and buying power. We know that many of today's homeowners were yesterday's renters, and that many of today's renters will be tomorrow's homeowners."

Holzhause said apartment construction involved a problem of balance.

"We must balance the $36.60 per $1,000 gained for the tax duplicate against the fact that Whitehall's General Fund gains only .90," he said. He cited the money to be gained from auto license fees paid by apartment dwellers and said this "must be balanced against the cost to the city for added traffic and street maintenance."

Holzhause described as "very attractive," the potential purchasing power represented by "hundreds of new

WHITEHALL MAYORALTY candidate William H. (Bill) Holzhause officially kicked off his campaign for office by naming committee chairmen to assist in the election drive. Holzhause, running as an Independent, filed petitions with the Franklin County Board of Elections carrying the names of more than 600 Whitehall voters. Chairmen shown in picture, and the committees they will head, include: from left, front row, Ellis C. Bailey, public relations; Monica Heibel, telephone; Holzhause; Billie Zoey, secretarial, and Larry Bale, platform. Back row, Don Waddell, general campaign; Keith Edmunds, precinct organization; Bill Cowden, public relations; Bill Polleys, finance, and Charley Griffith, precinct organization. Chairmen not present when picture was taken are Marian Martin, registration, and Kenneth McDougal, transportation.

Waddell Quits Whitehall Post

Donald G. Waddell, Whitehall Civil Service Commission member, submitted his resignation to Mayor Walter B. Moling, and has agreed to serve as campaign chairman for William H. (Bill) Holzhause, Moling's opponent in the November elections.

"It is my feeling," Waddell wrote the mayor, "that people working in the 'classified service' deserve commissioners who are not committed to candidates for public office."

City Buys Properties For Route

Realization of the East Freeway, so long in the planning stage, moved closer this week with the announcement that demolition would be completed and construction under way from Parsons-av to Alum Creek by late winter.

The full route could be under traffic by late 1966 or early 1967.

At its completion, the $19,000,000 project will link the innerbelt, at Parsons-av, with the outerbelt, between Hamilton-rd and Noe-Bixby-rd.

Acquisition of land for the project is nearing completion, according to City Attorney John Young, with the city now owning 82 per cent, or 534 of the 634 parcels involved for three sections of the East Freeway.

In phase one of the freeway, from Parsons-av to Ohio-av, 184 of the 205 parcels have been acquired.

Work is progressing rapidly on phase two, extending from Ohio-av to Kent-st, Young reports, with 281 of the 336 parcels involved now owned by the city.

On phase three, from Kent-st to Alum Creek-dr, 34 of the 93 parcels involved have been acquired, 13 parcels are in the process of negotiation, 45 are in the preliminary title stage, and one is in the process of being appropriated.

The section from Parsons-av to Ohio-av will include connecting ramps with the innerbelt for both eastbound and westbound traffic, and a grade separation carrying 18th-st over the expressway. Cost of the project will be an estimated $4.2 million.

Middle section of the route, from Ohio-av to just east of Nelson-rd, will include an interchange complex with Miller and Kelton-avs, providing an

WIN $138 IN LUCKY JACKPOT MONEY

For the third week in a row there have been no claims against the rapidly growing "Confederate" money jackpot offered each week by this newspaper. Last week's 113 "Confederate" dollars has now grown to 138 "Confederate" bills.

To take home that much "Confederate" cash, which can be spent just like U.S. legal tender with any Hartley Newspapers advertiser, a reader need only to find the "Confederate" emblem hidden in one copy of a Hartley Newspaper.

This much money could be used to buy a major appliance, make a down-payment on a car, buy school clothes for the youngsters or for many other items.

To win the money you must find the emblem. It looks exactly like the one printed in this column but is printed in a bright color other than black. It will be found on an inside page of only one of the more than 72,000 Hartley Newspapers published each week. It is clearly placed in the space of an advertisement.

The finder must bring the entire paper containing the emblem to the Hartley Newspaper office, 2465 W. Broad-st, in person before the deadline at noon on Monday following publication.

To claim the entire jackpot the finder must be a paid subscriber to a Hartley News-

RIDOUT "RIDS"

You could call it coincidence that Mrs. William Ridout of West Jefferson is advertising a rummage sale in today's classifieds. But it isn't coincidence when you find the buy or the buyer through a Hartley Newspapers' Want Ad. You'll find details on Mrs. Ridout's sale and other bargains inside. And if you want to advertise, call BR. 4-1155.

Two East Siders Seek Seats On Columbus School Board

When "hats in the ring" for Columbus School Board posts were tallied on deadline day last Wednesday, two of the 10 were found to belong to East area residents.

Robert A. Ramsey of 189 N. Kellner-rd, last to file, and Mrs. Norma Jones, 1282 Woodneil-av, are among the candidates vying for the four seats in the Nov. 5 election.

Ramsey, 42, a native of Columbus, is an attorney and the father of three sons, all enrolled at Fairmoor School.

He was graduated from Ohio State University, and is a former journal clerk of the Ohio Senate.

Mrs. Jones is the wife of Chester H. Jones, director of the Columbus Urban League.

The mother of three children, she is a former journalist and social worker.

Columbus Board of Education will seek renewal of a 15-mill operating levy at the polls in November, a full year in advance.

The levy, representing three-fourths of the schools' operating income, would replace two levies totaling the same amount which expire Dec. 31, 1964. renewal levy would run from 1965 through 1969.

The board, in deciding to seek early renewal of the levy, is allowing time for another appeal in the event voters reject the proposal. The close majority of approval to a levy in 1961, passing only by 52 per cent, was a determining factor in presenting the operating renewal early.

Four Candidates Enter Race For Vacancies In Whitehall

Whitehall voters will have a choice of four candidates for two available seats on the school board at the polls on Nov. 5.

Filing petitions before last Wednesday's deadline date were Russell Sherman, 44, of 4209 Mayflower-blvd, and John Deering, 38, 4422 Chan-

The two have announced they will run a joint campaign.

The other two candidates are incumbents Mrs. Ruth B. Kosar and William Page Lewis.

Sherman, a program administrator at North American Aviation, Inc., is the father of four children.

Deering, also the father of four, is an engineer with North American.

Two Bexleyites File For Board

It will be no race for the two candidates filing for posts on the Bexley School Board in November's elections. Both are unopposed.

Only John F. Lewis and John L. Jones, Jr., filed for the vacancies.

Other Bexley officials have until Sept. 6 to file petitions.

Administrators of Bexley, Whitehall and Columbus schools emphasize the need for registration of all students new to these school systems, and point out that it must be completed before the week of school opening.

Schools in Whitehall will open Tuesday, Sept. 3, Columbus schools on Wednesday, Sept. 4, and those in Bexley, Thursday, Sept. 5.

School bus schedules for Whitehall and Columbus schools will appear in next week's issue.

Faculty of Bexley schools will attend the usual, pre-school conference in their own schools Tuesday, Sept. 3, and in addition, an innovation this year, a combined conference with Grandview Heights and Upper Arlington schools Sept. 5.

District boundary lines for attendance are the same as in the past:

Signs Seen As Solution To Stranded Motorists

Eastern Kiwanis Club, in cooperation with Standard Oil stations in Franklin County, have launched a unique venture to provide assistance to motorists stranded on today's high-speed highways.

The project, tabbed "Good Samaritan Project" by Eastern Kiwanis members, evolved from the many stories concerning motorists, sick or with a disabled vehicle, sitting by the side of a freeway or turnpike awaiting assistance as car after car passed by.

It is hoped by Eastern Kiwanis and Sohio that these stories will become a relic of the past through the use of 14-inch square, luminous signs, reading "Please Send Help."

Each sign is equipped with magnets so that it may be readily attached to any metal portion of the vehicle. The signs are on sale at Sohio stations in Franklin County for $1.

When the sign is attached to disabled vehicles, it is hoped that passers-by will place a call for help at the nearest possible point.

The project, it is felt, will be of particular aid to motorists frequently using the more than 15,000 miles of the 41,000-mile interstate highway system now open to traffic.

Four affidavits have been filed in Whitehall for violations of the Sunday Closing Law against the city's two Gray Drug Stores. One is located in Town and Country Shopping Center, and the other in Great Eastern.

Some of the acts to be presented are skating bears, the medicine show, lollipop parade, tumblers, magicians, midway rides and games and, of course, clowns. All of these will be portrayed by the youngsters from 46 playgrounds in the south half of the city. Music for the pageant will be provided by a circus band furnished through the courtesy of the Columbus Federation of Musicians. There is no admission charge and the public is invited.

Reports from the playgrounds follow:

The Giants were led by the hitting of Tom Derr (who just earned a berth on the All-Star team) (two triples), Jim House (two home runs), and Jim Zill (a homer).

The Reds' Mike Curto finished a great season by hitting three triples and two doubles.

His twin brother Pat led the Cardinals' victory with a homer, triple, and two doubles, while Monty Hannah hit three home runs and two doubles, and Tom Stavroff made an unassisted triple play to help the Cardinals.

On Wednesday, the Cardinals played the All-Stars and won 5-4. The All-Stars took an early lead but were shut out for the rest of the game by Eric Ireland and Monty Hannah.

The Cardinals made a fine comeback led by Pat Curto (two doubles), Skip Bowman (key double), and Tom Stavroff (great catch and fine base-running). Mike Curto then came on to pitch for the All-Stars and top the Cardinals, helped by the fine fielding of Jim House and Dave Hylton.

In the top of the final inning, with the All-Stars having the tie-breaking run on third base, Jim Zill smashed out a long drive which was hauled in on a spectacular running catch by Bob Neeshan. In the bottom of the last inning, Monty Hannah singled, stole second, and scored the winning run for the Cardinals, as he slid in and dumped the third baseman while stealing third, causing the ball to roll into left field and allowing him to score easily.

Steve Plymer, Steve Russell, and Bob Neeshan all had key hits for the Cardinals while Jim House and John McLain had key hits for the All-Stars. The Cardinals, coached by Mark Gussler and Steve Casto finished with an 11-1 record.

The National League awards have been announced as follows: most valuable player, rookie of the year, and best fielder were won by Monty Hannah; Eric Ireland was best pitcher, and Mark Gussler and Steve Casto were coaches of the year.

Mike Curto and Monty Hannah tied for best hitter. Mike Curto won out as sportsman of the year, the boy who has combined sportsmanship with a sincere desire to help coaches, umpires, and the leaders.

In American League action on Monday the Twins squeaked by the Indians 5-4, and the Red Sox edged the White Sox 8-7. Fritz Ford threw a two-hitter and struck out 10 of the Twins, and Tom Storch relieved him in the last inning with the bases loaded and the tying run on third base and struck out the side.

Bob Leppien had a three-run homer and Gar Storck banged out a single and double to lead the Twins attack. Gary Evans and Sandy Schwartz had hits for the Indians.

For the Red Sox, Phil Mirvis and Dan Phalen had home runs, while Bill Vest clouted one for the White Sox. Mirvis won the game with his clutch relief pitching, striking out six men in two innings.

On Tuesday, the Yankees won the pennant by beating the Orioles 9-1. Blazing Tim Pettorini threw a one-hitter, struck out 15, and had two hits including a home run to lead the Yankees to victory. Tom Crist had three hits for the winners while Jack Belt's home run was the loser's only hit.

Pettorini finished the season with two no-hitters and two one-hitters in the five games he pitched. As the season drew to a close, he won the awards as most valuable player, best hitter, home run champion, and best pitcher.

Jack Belt was best fielder and runnerup in the first three categories above. Phil Mirvis was runnerup for best pitcher, while Bob Leppien won rookie of the year with Sandy Schwartz runnerup.

Ken Roush was runnerup for best fielder, and Terry Kinney was coach of the year with Ron Harper runnerup.

American League action finished up on Thursday, with the Twins losing a close game to the Red Sox 6-5, and the Orioles edging the Indians, 5-4. The Red Sox were led by Phil Mirvis with 17 strikeouts and a three-hitter. He also had two hits and was backed up by Dan Harper (home run), Charlie Shoemaker (two hits), Bruce Coblitz (home run), and Don Bentley (key double which drove in the winning run). Bob Leppien and Tom Marafa hit homers and Danny Storck had a key double for the Tiwins.

pitched a three hitter and struck out 17 while also getting two hits, including a triple, to lead the Orioles to victory. Mike Buckingham had a triple for the winners, and Wes Anderson had two hits for the losers, while Gary Evans had a double.

In other action, (game from Tuesday) the Indians beat the White Sox 9-6 on Kim Fulton's bases loaded triple and Dan Black's pitching Larry Smith had 2 hits for the losers.

The eight and nine-year-olds who have been doing a fine job in the older league this year are Jim House, Pat Curto, and Monty Hannah (Twins); Mike Curto and John McLain (Yankees); Harry Panthana (Red Sox); and Kim Fulton (Indians).

The Old-timers' game again drew a fine turnout, with the older gentlemen emerging victorious for the first time, 16-8.

They were led by Terry Kinney (4 hits including a triple), Jim Iles (3 hits including a home run), Mr. Nordman (sensational fielding and 3 hits), Mr. Hamrick (fine pitching), Mr. Lamphere (3 hits), and Mr. Woodruff (3 hits). Jim Smith was 4 for 4 for the youngsters and Gary Sh... was 3 for 3 and also turned in a fine double play and had 3 stolen bases.

Krumm...

Parents who helped transport Junior Jet baseball players from Krumm Park to the Columbus Jet Baseball Stadium last Monday were: Mr. Liggins, Mr. Williams, Mr. Adams, Mr. Simons, Mr. Wilks, Mr. Grey, Mr. Banks, Mr. Green and Mr. Collin.

Mike Priestas, in the swimming contests held at Maryland Pool, got third place in one of the sprints, plus, he says, all of the fun and excitement which accompanies such events, and several new acquaintances.

The chess and checker tournaments planned last week did not materialize, so they will be held this coming week. There will also be several bicycle races this next week.

Ted Urban and his brother, Randy, were winners of the horseshoe contests last week, and they will be the ones to challenge next week for the honors. Their father taught them the pitching game out in Arizona, where the weather is warm the year around. They are enjoying the use of their new scooter. The boys applaud them for exercising caution and good driving rules.

During a rainy evening, Danny Fore told of some interesting scenes he saw while visiting California. He particularly impressed his listeners with his narration about Disneyland.

Not to be outdone, Ronald Williams told of the plans he has been reading about concerning the 1964 World's Fair to be held in New York City. Ronny lives there, but spends a week each summer in Ohio with his cousin.

Neil Douglas, an all-round athlete, certainly deserves the Outstanding Mention of the year. He has pitched and batted his team, The Twins, to an undisputed championship. This has been true during the past two seasons.

Neil hit a homer with the bases filled to tie the playoff game, then hit another round-tripper to help the determined Twins win by a single run. Neil has struck out every batter of all the other teams at least once during the season. Neil says his father showed him how to throw the curve which is so effective.

Some of our boys and girls (and parents) are enjoying the puppet shows held at Lazarus Department Store every day except Monday. The shows run through Aug. 28 in the Assembly Center on the sixth floor. There is no charge.

"The Circus" is on Aug. 13, 14, and 15; "Little Red Riding Hood," Aug. 16 and 17; "Hansel and Gretel," Aug. 20, 21, and 22; "Puss in Boots," Aug. 23 and 24, and "Alladin and the Magic Lamp," Aug. 27, 28, and 29. Shows are at 10:30, 11:30, 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, and one at 7 p.m. on Thursday.

Shepard...

Shepard will participate in the pageant, planned Tuesday, Aug. 20, 7:30 p.m. at Schiller. Anyone wishing to take part should see Miss Holloway.

The last day of playground operations is Aug. 23. The playground will close early that evening.

In the Junior Olympics, Shepard representatives taking medals or ribbons were, Ronnie Eiland, third place in the high jump and third place in the 180 yard low hurdles; Randall Taylor, second in the 440 yard dash, and the relay team of Wayne Nixon, Wayne L. Miller, Ronnie Eiland and Ron Brown, fourth place.

TWENTY-FIVE FOUR-YEAR OLDS will find companionship and supervision at the new Christ Lutheran Church Pre-school, scheduled to open in September, Bobby Anson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Anson, 566 S. James-rd, and his teacher, Mrs. Robert Kennedy, right, become acquainted as Bobby is being registered. From left, Rev. Richard B. Sutter, associate pastor, and Mrs. Lloyd Shupe, kindergarten committee member, look on.

Pinecrest will participate in the annual playground pageant, to be held at Schiller Park Tuesday, Aug. 20.

Dennis Cater and Franshot Rudder are the latest to pass the AAU Physical Fitness Test.

Junior Jet Baseball Tourney was won by the Yankees. The Yankees came in last place in the league and came back and won the tourney.

Courtright...

Courtright won the intermediate boys softball championship in their division, but lost a hard fought tournament game to Karns.

All Stars for Junior Jet have been announced. They include: White Sox: Dan Moore, Bruce Hermann, Bruce Koblinski, Max Gorman and Frank Cowgill; Red Sox: Steve Grubb, Bud Hessanaur, Mike Fields and John Johnson; Yankees; Tom Hvegerich, Tim Moore, Darel Aults, and Leon Boiman.

1,800 Will Take Part In 'Strolling' Show

With the theme "Growing Up," the first annual flower show under the chairmanship of Mrs. Henry L. Young will be held at the Great Southern Shopping Center Oct. 4 and 5. More than 1,800 individuals will participate.

A "strolling" exhibition in which different classes will be shown in particular stores, the event is sponsored by the Great Southern Business Association.

The show is open to members of participating clubs of the Ohio Business Association of Garden Clubs and the Columbus Region Garden Clubs of Ohio, as well as any other plant and flower grower who wishes to exhibit.

Staging of the entire show is under the direction of Mrs. Robert W. Smith of the IN YO Arrangers, the garden club specializing in oriental arrangements which is chartered from Japan.

The responsibility of scheduling has been assumed by Mrs. William C. Alder of the Cardiff Garden Club and Mrs. Eugene E. Egbert of the Hamilton Township Garden Club.

Mrs. Young explained that every garden club within a radius of 60 miles from Columbus will be represented in this initial exhibition which and 29 classes.

will include seven sections

Section titles are Artistic Designs, Invitationals, Junior Division Pets, Tables, African Violets, House Plants and Specimens "Presents."

Registration will be held between 9 and 11 a.m. the opening day of the show. Exhibitors may have only one entry in a class or sub-class, and it is mandatory that the specimens be grown by the exhibitor. House plants and violets must have been in the owner's possession for at least 90 days prior to the show.

Gardeners and those who may want to establish a garden club are invited to call Mrs. Young at BE. 1-1545 or her vice-chairman, Mrs. W. C. Harrison, CL. 8-3815, for any further information concerning participation in the show.

Rabies Clinic Set For This Friday

Low income families can have their pet dogs protected against rabies at the monthly Rabies Vaccination Clinic, scheduled for Friday, Aug. 16, from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Health and Safety Center Building, 181 S. Washington-blvd. Local regulations require that all dogs over the age of three months be immunized against rabies.

The clinic is staffed by members of the Columbus Academy of Veterinary Medicine, who volunteer their services. A charge of $1.50 is made to cover the cost of vaccination. Other participating agencies are the Columbus Health Department and the Humane Society of Columbus and Franklin County.

CACE Teaches Expectant Parents What To Expect

If you are expecting an addition to your family soon, the experience can be easier and more satisfying for you as the mother or as the father if you know what to expect and are prepared for the labor and delivery. Some of the questions in the minds of parents-to-be concern the money it will cost, diapers, types of anesthesia and their effects, hospital services, relaxing techniques, emotional changes, diet and infant care.

This need for information by expectant parents is recognized by the Columbus Association for Childbirth Education. This non-profit organization of volunteers, established in Columbus in 1954, offers several series of 10 weekly evening classes per year that include the subjects mentioned above.

To Fill Needs

These classes are tailored to the needs of the parents attending. Instructors are Mrs. Ruth Niekirk, R.N., M.S.N., and assistant professor of obstetrical nursing at Capital University, and Miss Dickie Corbett, R.N., instructor of obstetrical nursing at St. Francis School of Nursing, an Ohio State University graduate, and former Columbus public health nurse. Earlier this year, Miss Corbett attended the two-week Maternity Center Association Workshop at Youngstown.

Each of the class series is begun with a CACE open house, usually held at the Columbus Health and Safety Building on Washington-blvd. This open house is an introduction to the class content for prospective class members and provides a capsule presentation of the aims and programs of CACE. Next open house is scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 5.

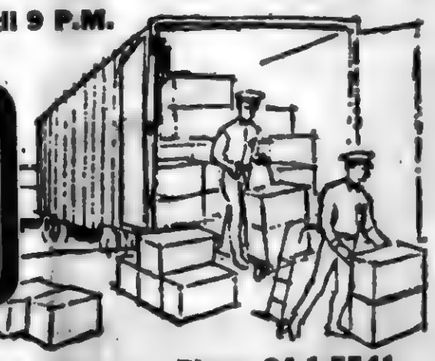
Other services under the Columbus Association for Childbirth Education auspices include a Nursing Mothers Council, a library of childbirth information, and a CACE Newsletter. The Newsletter, containing CACE programs and helpful information, is sent to Columbus obstetrics, pediatricians, CACE members and interested persons. The Newsletter editor, John Ayres, 5143 E. Walnut-st, Westerville, will add interested people to this mailing list.

Purpose Stated

The Nursing Mothers Council of CACE is a group of mothers who have been successful at breast feeding and offer their moral support to the new nursing mother. The chairman of the council, Mrs. Jodelle Lorenz, 1177 Ashland-av, can be contacted at HU. 6-8343 for information about its services.

In all of its programs, CACE does not give any medical advice. The organization's aim, according to CACE president, Rodney H. Warner, 520 Stinchcomb-dr (AM. 3-8993), is to assist doctors in providing non-professional information for expectant parents.

"Our purpose is to help each couple prepare adequately for labor, delivery and parenthood," Mr. Warner reports. "We want to help families have a satisfying pregnancy and delivery and to make childbirth less worrisome than it's apt to be for the unprepared."



The Columbus Association for Childbirth Education is composed of volunteer men and women who believe that family life is enriched when couples are adequately educated for the experience of parenthood.

Steer Clear Of The 'Smear!'

This is the year of the all-important "local" elections. Candidates, for the most part, will be the man next door, the woman down the street or the fellow over in the next block.

Many of the potential government leaders will be "getting wet" politically for the first time. Their political theme song, "Hey, Look Me Over," is one each voter would do well to abide by.

Our "grass roots" candidates, generally speaking, will be honest, eager, enthusiastic and hopeful. They will have a desire to serve well if elected. Each will have been influenced — from within or from without — by a specific set of circumstances leading to declaration of candidacy.

The candidates have a responsibility to explain why they seek office; to make themselves available to the people they want to represent. They have an obligation to present their credentials and to make known their stand on all issues pertinent to the office they seek.

But the election process is a double-edged sword. There are important responsibilities and obligations incumbent on the electorate. A primary responsibility of citizenship commands that each potential elector secure and exercise his privilege to vote. Far too many citizens think of voting as a right rather than an obligation.

It is the serious duty of each voter to know the basic issues and to learn the stand of candidates in relation to such issues. This is not quite so difficult as some might imagine if we will only listen to both sides of each argument with an open mind.

Forget the excuses used during statewide and national campaigns that the candidates are distant and personally inaccessible. This just isn't so on the local level. Remember, instead, that the collective quality of those who represent us on the higher levels can be controlled by a "selective" vote in the "grass roots" elections.

Election campaigns will very soon shift into high gear. The campaign for office is like a sleek, new automobile. It can be a means of swift progress along the road to better government and an enlightened electorate. But, if operated in a reckless, wild or desperate manner, the campaign can be a vehicle of senseless destruction.

An election won at any cost is a great loss to the entire community. It is a sad fact of political history that all too many people of honesty, integrity and leadership ability are lost to public service. Why? Because they have been the victims of, or witness to, the "smear" tactic as a campaign weapon.

The voter would do well to focus his attention on the issues. Charges relating to a candidate's personal life, background and associations are valid only when presented in an open, forthright manner and substantiated beyond any reasonable doubt. It is not asking too much that candidates for elective office be granted the same protection under the law that is afforded those charged with serious crimes against society. Yet this basic, constitutional protection is all too often denied to the people from whom we hope to choose responsible government leaders.

It is unfortunate that some candidates, while proclaiming an "issues only" campaign, will allow supporters to engage in whisper and rumor techniques. A supporter of a candidate may knock his man's opponent on specific acts or issues. But if he begins his criticism with: "I understand that . . ." or "I wonder if it's true that . . ." — BEWARE!

This is the type of venom that results in a disillusioned and sad little boy asking an honest, loving father if he is a crook, a drunk, a bigot or a mental incompetent. (Is it any wonder that many men would rather protect their families than serve their community?)

A prime requisite for good government is that the voter be as honest and responsible as he wants the candidates to be.

As we said before, these are local elections and the candidates are close at hand. It is a golden opportunity for every voter to cast an intelligent, meaningful vote.

In short, we would advise: Know your candidates. Know the issues. Know what you want from government. Vote accordingly.

How Do YOU Measure Up?

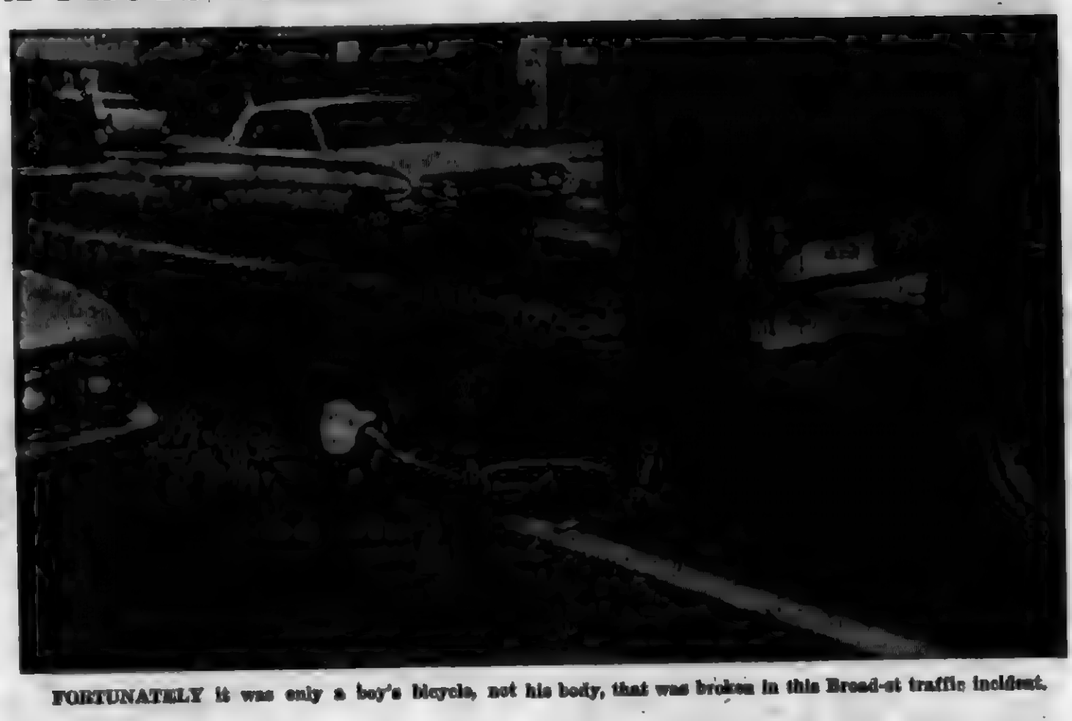
What Is Troubling The Christian?

Reading, listening, and watching history in the making during these troubled days and cognizant of the fact that with or without our personal consent we are acting out this history, every serious minded person must ask himself if the part that he is playing is in line with what he is confessing, whatever that faith may be.

Rev. Partridge

For example, in the labor-management relationship (such as the railroad and featherbedding) the answer is to be found within the conscience of both the blue and white shirts. We live in an age of conflicts and the foremost of these is mental because people are living on a "dual moral" standard. The man in the white shirt on occasion "works out," even as the laborer on occasion becomes an employer. Then, listen to the conflict and dissatisfaction about wages, management, conditions for working and the condition of the work. We see again and again this "dual standard" not only in labor management but also in the student-teacher, parent-child relationship and even more pronounced in race relations.

Government by the majority may not always be right as is evidenced by the number of times the majority has been hoodwinked in the past. But then what minority group or individual citizen, directed and motivated by his own personal plans, desires, and intentions whether they be bona fide or not, has the right, privilege, or responsibility to sit in judgment of the established civil law?



Some years ago a poor immigrant left his home, wife and son to "make a fortune" in the new world. When he had made some money he wrote home to his wife. "Come over to me. I want to see you and my boy. I send money for your passage."

His wife took the first boat possible and started for her new home. One night as they were asleep there started the terrible cry "fire! fire!" Everyone rushed to fill the lifeboats. The last one was just pushing off when a cry of "there are two more on deck" arose. It was the mother and her son. "Only room for one!" The mother glanced down at the child clinging to her skirt. Snatching the child, she held him close for a minute. "Son, tell your father I——." The boy was lowered into the boat; the mother died at sea.

Nor can you live and be happy, free from conflict and strife, continuing on a "dual moral" standard. Christ, who out of even a greater love for us than this mother for her son, died on the cross, has given us this single moral standard. Love thy neighbor majority as well as thy neighbor minority; and love thy neighbor minority, as well as majority.

FORTUNATELY it was only a boy's bicycle, not his body, that was broken in this Broad-st traffic incident.

Possible Death Was Only Inches Away

The small headline on a Page 16 story in last week's editions of our Hilltop Record read: "Youth Slightly Hurt In Mishap." But for the sake of inches and a few precious seconds the story would have been on Page One with a death-black headline reading: "Hilltop Youth Dies Under Wheels Of Truck."

The incident occurred in the 2300 block of heavily traveled W. Broad-st, and involved a boy, a bike and a tractor-trailer outfit. Fortunately, the truck had stopped for a traffic signal.

The boy on the bike ran into the side of the tractor-trailer near the rear wheels. He made a mistake that could have been his last one.

The 13-year-old youth was released from Mt. Carmel Hospital after treatment for an ankle injury. He was cited by police for careless operation of a bicycle.

We assume the youth will be a safe cyclist if and when his riding privileges are returned. But the picture accompanying these words asks the important question:

Will the next careless boy on a bicycle get a second chance?

Variety . . . by I. F. Howell

For thousands of generations men lived without glory and died without hope. Now the pessimists tell us this still must be true. But an optimist would have another view.

The black and scarlet stains upon the pages of history cannot be erased. But, if we will, we can learn from them. By avoiding past mistakes we can make brighter the pages of the future. Now, if we will, we can make glorious the present and certain the immortal future, all simply by the choice of brotherhood and understanding to replace hatred and intolerance.

Court decisions in the past few years have aroused controversies culminating in bloodshed and the use of force. These are all the fruits of a ferment that have been growing in hearts and minds for too long. The end is not yet in sight, nor can anyone predict the form of the future. It's all a part of the slow search for solutions that has always seemed a sort of trademark of the human mind.

For many reasons an increasingly articulate social conscience is being heeded more than ever before, here, and in other lands. But still there is too much ignorance, prejudice, and ill will.

Laws and legal decisions against discrimination cannot destroy ill will or create good will. These are of the heart and mind. Civil and economic rights of minorities will be protected and enjoyed only to the extent that good will and understanding prevail over ill will and ignorance in the minds and hearts of more people.

It says here . . .

Brotherhood could be the brightest flower in a new garden of good will.

Frosting On The Cake

By "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

All genuine leadership is "adventure in audacity" and always has been. All progress is "adventure in imagination."

Henry Ford broke the Selden patents and changed the world. The Wright Brothers looked at a flying kite and built a plane that took off and flew for a short distance and landed without killing anyone.

Pasteur smeared some pus on a plain slide and looked at it through a most primitive microscope and understood what he saw. Someone felt a wrist pulse and understood what he felt, namely that there had to be a pump somewhere.

So it has been with every advance for the common good. Vaccination for smallpox and later research on hundreds of unfriendly invading organisms have brought to the world almost total universal escape from everything except cancer and one of these days some unafraid mind will lick this dreaded killer.

The Chinese had skyrockets ever since the discovery of gun powder. Then some mind wondered audaciously what would happen if enough back thrust were unleashed against normal atmospheric pressure—and lo and behold, we now have jets.

The whole amazing array of electronics was built upon the vacuum tube and the magnetic cell.

The list is endless. Now there are thousands of unafraid minds all over this world seeking the whyfor of the whatever and many of them see when they look; hear when they listen, and comprehend what they see and hear.

Every one of these amazing discoveries is neither magic nor superstition. It is the escape of some mind from superstition and acceptance of one more perfectly natural law that has always existed.

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Prisons Hold Our Big, Bad Children

What makes a criminal?

Mostly arrested development.

Mostly baby reactions and childish attitudes inside adult bodies. The habitual con may be clever, occasionally even brilliant. But somewhere within him you're likely to find a kid who never grew up.

The boys who go from petty trouble to big trouble are generally filled with self-pity, self-justification and elaborate reasons why the rap is bum. What's the matter with them?

Jones

A sophisticated prison publication is "New Era," put out by inmates of the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth. Its wry slogan; "The Men's Indoor Entertainment Magazine." In its current issue a convict reporter interviews the prison psychiatrist, Dr. J. L. Baker, on what makes a convict.

Eliminating the few criminals who have minds so disordered that they have lost touch with reality, Dr. Baker says, the average prison inmate is sane and certainly knows right from wrong. But he hasn't been able to adapt himself to the social and legal demands of the majority of his fellow human beings because his motivation and judgment are faulty.

And these are faulty because of:

1. Low Anxiety Frustration Tolerance.

The criminal, claims Dr. Baker, is unable to experience frustration without over-reacting, without behaving as though the frustration were greater than it is.

Denied anything, the baby bawls or has a tantrum on the floor. Mature personalities, faced with a denial of something wanted, first bend every reasonable effort to obtain it and, failing that, learn to live with their disappointment. Crossed in love the mature man writes a sad poem, pampers his hurt feelings for a little while, and then looks for another girl. The immature man may shoot his rival, the girl or himself.

2. Poor Goal Formation.

What criminals want, Dr. Baker points out, is often not worth the cost. The immature man may want a Cadillac, while he lacks the education, the skill and energy necessary to put him in the Cadillac class. So he becomes a bookie or robs a bank. The mature individual may also want a Cadillac, but he is willing to study, work hard, and proceed to his goal in 20 years via a secondhand Ford a Rambler and a Chrysler.

The mature man likes "kicks." He gets a kick out of waterskiing, out of a basement hobby bench, out of taking the kids to Yellowstone. The immature man likes "kicks," too. He takes a pop of heroin.

3. Impulsivity.

The criminal can't figure the odds. He puts his money on long-shots. He makes snap decisions, says Dr. Baker, that sober reasoning would veto. The odds against a successful and long career as a forger or counterfeiter are overwhelming. The non-criminal may enjoy a round of the slot machines at Las Vegas, but he doesn't confuse that with a way of life.

Prison yards are full of people who think they "fell" because a detail went wrong. They resolve to correct the detail and "score" next time.

All these symptoms, Dr. Baker asserts, add up to one word — childishness. The child spends all his money, stuffs himself with candy, and gets a bellyache. He can't distinguish between short-range gratification and long-range satisfaction. The child doesn't understand temporary self-denial for eventual big benefits. Neither does the criminal.

The honest man calls attention to the dropped wallet because instinctively he likes a society that respects possessions. The criminal thinks only of the bills inside. The careful driver accepts the perpetual inconvenience of obeying traffic laws because he understands the carnage and tragedy that would follow general disobedience. The juvenile delinquent guns his hot-rod and imagines he is proving himself a personality.

Prison is a poor place to re-rail sociopaths. It's hard to untwist a twisted philosophy by surrounding it with twisted philosophies. The best cure for crime is the early prevention of the growth of criminal attitudes. That means the home.

Parents who are themselves immature are not likely to raise children who can stand the stress of life. But by wise upbringing normal, decent parents are likely to raise normal, decent sons and daughters.

Wise upbringing means just that — bringing children up from childhood to adulthood. It means the detection and discouragement of childish attitudes — selfishness, unreliability, willfulness, temper — beyond the age when they should be outgrown. It means giving the child steadily increasing responsibilities and steadily increasing rewards for discharging these responsibilities well.

A child needs love. He also needs correction and discipline. The love must be steady, a thing to be counted on. The punishment must be inexorable but fair. It's hard to make a man out of a child raised in cruelty, or neglect, or overindulgence, or whimsy. The child wants to place his feet upon a rock, not quicksand.

Children brought up with love and firmness generally yearn to become men and women. They seek approval and acceptance by adult society. They grow up to be prides and joys.

It's the overgrown babies who will break your heart.

SHADYWOOD PARK'S 'GOOD SPORTS'

LOCAL RUTH-GEHRIG COMBINATION

LOCAL SLO-PITCH hurlers have learned to respect the awesome bats of this pair of sluggers who could easily be described as a modern-day Ruth-Gehrig combination around the slo-pitch ranks. At left is Bob Swords, 57 S. Gift-at, who has teamed with Virg Emswiler, a native of Reynoldsburg, to give William Miller Supplies and Ted Hysell Clerks the area's most potent one-two home run punch in history. Excluding the pair's final three games of the season, Swords had bashed out 58 four-baggers while Emswiler was close behind with 55 of the round trippers. These 113 HRs came in only 47 games, 40 of which either Millers or Hysell won.

Mind, Not Muscle, Key To Karate, Judo Study

What with our knowledge of judo and karate somewhat lacking, we were happy to accept an invitation by Bob Testa to visit his Bushi-Kai Association School of Self Defense at 2111 E. Main-st last week.

What we learned completely changed a number of mistaken notions we had about the two forms of defense. First of all, both karate (like boxing, since you strike a blow) and judo (like wrestling, since you grab and throw an opponent) are just that—defensive arts.

BOTH ARE USED exclusively to defend, with students taught that offensive karate is a dishonorable act.

Strength is neither a prerequisite nor a direct product of either karate or judo. The end results of both forms are coordination between mind and body, agility, extremely fast reflexes, physical fitness and self confidence.

Karate is a physical-mental development with the final goal directed at making the body do what the mind directs. The ability to think clearly and quickly is acquired almost automatically.

WE HAD ALWAYS associated karate with the fellow breaking a table or two in half with his bare hand. Atemi (or breaking) is the exhibition part of karate, something like the home run to baseball. It's only a small part of the whole.

Also enlightening is the ultimate goal of karate and judo. Not victory but perfection of character. The moral aspects of the art are stressed. The student first learns respect and courtesy.

For example, no one steps up on the karate platform at Bushi-Kai to begin a lesson without first bowing. A brief concentration period follows each lesson with the student reflecting on what he has learned. The white uniform worn symbolizes a purity of spirit.

Testa describes the response to the school as "fantastic." In less than two months approximately 200 students have enrolled for karate, judo or the physical fitness aspects (weights and steam room).

JUDO CLASSES instruct pupils from seven to 70 with karate instructions available to those over 14. The association guarantees progression through beginner's white belt and green belt to the brown (instructor's level) belt in 24 months, providing the student attends a mimimum of two classes per week.

Classes are conducted both day and evening with members attending as many or few classes as they wish. "So much of karate is form," says Testa.

"You don't have to wait for some one to jump you to get the benefits and enjoyment of these arts. Your development toward physical fitness, mental and physical agility and confidence produce satisfaction."

TWO OF BUSHI Kai's instructors — Fred Polacheck and Gary Tiktin — are first degree black belt holders, the latter only one of three men allowed to promote to the first-degree black belt level in Okinawan Shorinru karate.

While karate is form, judo is 75 per cent balance. Another instructor, Walter Soga, who specializes in judo, holds a third degree black belt.

Polacheck demonstrated the more difficult Kata's (forms) after his one-hour class period last week. He also demonstrated (vocally) the Kiai, the blood-curdling yell associated with karate.

THE KIAI IS useful physically (the exhalation provides a brief spurt of added strength) but moreso psychologically. If it is unexpected, it can unnerve an opponent for a split second—enough time to win a match.

Fred also demonstrated the "breaking" technique by solidly pounding a hardwood board, using the larger two knuckles of the hand. These, along with the other hard bones of the appendages (heel bone of hand and foot, are used to break objects with a snapping motion, all of the power achieved through technique.

GOLF ETIQUETTE -- 8

THE ETERNAL OPTIMIST

In theory, there's nothing wrong about being an optimist but in practice, especially on a golf course, good sense is much more valuable. Trying to play your shot from an impossible lie not only can be frustrating but also time consuming when others are waiting to play behind you. It might hurt the pride a bit to take a penalty shot occasionally but the odds for a better score and keeping tempers tranquil on the links are much better when you do.

East, Southside Boys Called To Little Buckeyes Meeting

All boys living in the South Side and greater East Side areas (including Bexley and Whitehall), who are between the ages of 11 and 14 and weigh between 85 and 115 pounds, are invited to attend the organization meeting of the Little Buckeyes football team Friday at 10:30 a.m. at the Johnson Park Jr. High playground.

Age requirements will include boys whose fourteenth birthday has just been reached. In case of rain, the meeting will be held at the same time and place Saturday.

TOM KRIEGER, director of the program, announces that this year's Little Buckeyes, last year known as the Chuck Wagon Cowboys, will continue the annual weekend campout when team members spend a weekend at a boys' camp.

For additional information, contact Tom Krieger at CL. 2-4655.

Festivities for the evening get under way at 6 p.m. with flag-raising ceremonies. At 6:15 the first game is scheduled with Christ-the-King All-Stars playing All-Stars from the Jewish Center. The second game will feature Whitehall All-Stars versus an All-Star team from North American. Each game will last four innings.

COACHES FOR the teams are Walt Teeters and Ray Howard for Christ-the-King, Irv Barkan and Bernie Schortzburg for the Jewish Center, Ted Oyler and Tom Rebholz for Whitehall, and Chuck Crowder and Russ Sherman for North American.

Tickets for the event may be obtained from any Little League coach or player, the Columbus Division Recreation Office (Ext. 1761), or at the Recreation Park on Aug. 22.

CENTER WRAP-UP

'Status Quo' In A-K; Rosati, B-B Knot YYA

Ike Cohen, who pitches the highest hold in the A.K. League, continued to baffle the opposition as he pitched Division B leaders Seymour Bakery to a 9-3 victory over Wolman Insurance. Ike allowed six hits while getting three for his own team.

Jules Vogel helped Seymour's cause by blasting a triple, double and single. Larry Lawrence was the only Wolman's player to get two hits.

TOUGH-LUCK Muffler King had its winning streak ended at one as Martin's won, 16-5. Muffler King had ended its 10-game losing streak the previous week.

Martin's scored nine runs in the first two innings and then breezed. Dave Cohn had two doubles and a single while Jules Garel had a three-run homer. Irv Gold had three hits for the losers.

HACKMAN'S REALTY was led by Nate Fechheimer as it downed Outdoor Military, 9-3. The latter continued to lead Division A in spite of the loss since second-place Kozy Kitchen also lost.

Fechheimer had four singles and was helped by Lenny Haas, who had a home run and two singles. Hal Block also had three singles. Harold Eisenstein led the losers with two doubles.

ONTARIO WON its first game of the second round with a 7-2 win over Kozy Kitchen. Back-to-back homers by Paul Oppenheimer and Irv Barkan were big factors in the win.

Leonard Siegel had three singles to help the cause. For the losers Stan Freeberg had a homer and two singles and accounted for both runs for Kozy Kitchen.

WITH ONE GAME remaining in the second round, Burger Boy and Rosati's Market are tied for the lead in the Y.Y.A. Slo-Pitch Softball League.

With Barry Leeman leading the attack, Gilbert Shoes bombarded Robins, 26-7. Leeman, who also pitched the entire game, put on a hitting demonstration by clobbering three home runs over the left fielder's head. To complete a perfect night, he also collected two singles.

ALONG WITH Leeman, Jack Alexander continued his superb hitting, getting four for six, two of them homers. Collecting four hits also were Mel Finke and Bruce Green. Stan Robins collected three singles for the losers.

With the power hitting of Joel Engelman, Burger Boy moved into a tie for first place by downing Tommy's Pizza, 11-3. Engelman powered three homeruns and drove in five runs for Burger Boy.

Engelman wasn't alone, though, as Herb Grodner blasted a homerun and single while Bill Hymans collected a triple and two singles.

TOMMY'S HAD to settle three runs, scoring all of in the last inning. After , Denny Tishkoff homSteve Rosenthal and Joodman singled, and Rick Bender drove in both runners.

In the key game of the night, Rosati's Market held on in spite of a last inning rally by Columbus Steel to squeeze past the Steelmen, 10-8. Getting off to a fast start, Rosati's scored four runs in the first inning and four in the second, a lead which they never relinquished.

A single by Arnie Hendon, double by Norm Elg and a home run by captain Wes Rosenthal plated three first inning runs. Chuck Friedenberg and Elg each collected three hits for Rosati's.

DOWN BY FIVE runs in the last inning, Columbus Steel staged a rally. Jerry Topy and Dick Siegel sparked the inning by hitting triples.

Launching Ease Aids Current Boating Boom

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

While watching the boating jam on Griggs Reservoir the other day, I became amazed at the number of new boats and novice boaters. I saw all shapes and sizes — both boats and boaters.

Happily, boat designers seem to be getting back to more traditional lines, and the craft I saw were not jazzed up like the boats of a few years back. Glass seemed to be the most popular boat construction material, although there were a lot of aluminum boats in the smaller sizes. A good percentage of new boats continue to be made of wood.

I HAVE AN affection for wooden boats that the newer materials have never won, and I looked up some statistics on the subject. Latest sales records reveal that of new boats, 16 feet and larger, 26 per cent are made of wood. This is about the same or slightly higher than the last figure that I remember.

Boat building is a traditional craft in this country, and there is a fascination in watching the sleek lines of a boat take shape. For this reason I always enjoy a visit to the Henry Boats factory at Plain City.

While glass and aluminum are superior to wood in certain respects (and arguments continue about this), it is most pleasing to watch the construction of a wood boat. The molding of glass cloth and the application of the bonding resins just do not seem like boat building. It's the same with the riveting of metal boats.

BUT WHERE THE scent of wood and varnish is in the air, and shavings are on the floor the boat seems to be in the hands of men rather than machines. The hull is started with a keel and ribs of select oak, as boat builders have always begun. Power tools are used, of course, but you see that a good wooden boat is the product of craftsmen. A man works on a joint until it is right.

Whatever your choice in a boat, the people most responsible for the current boom in boating are those who receive very little credit. These are the trailer manufacturers. A few minutes of observation at the Griggs launching ramp will tell you that trailers have opened the door to this sport.

In running down the boating sales figures, I found this fact neatly hidden away — more than 200,000 boat trailers are sold annually in the U.S. As a comparison, there were less than 4,000 sold in 1947.

TODAY, IN the light of trailers and good roads, no one is land-locked. Your trailer is your dry dockage, and permits you to boat on a variety of waters. The trailer makers have kept pace with the fast-moving boating industry.

Some of the more recent innovations include self-activating surge brakes which need no mechanical hook-up with the car, tilting devices for easier launching, power winches which work off the car's battery and pull boats onto the trailers, and dollys or third wheels for hand-moving your loaded trailer.

Trailer hitches and lighting arrangements have been improved. And trailers have been "beefed up" to handle the bigger boats and heavier loads that today's boaters demand.

BOATING HAS reached a point in popularity where courtesy and common sense are needed on the water. Unfortunately, just the opposite often occurs on local reservoirs.

Pit Stops

Urbana's Neal Sceva was given "fits" by Bob Smith and Curt Kraft both of Columbus, in Sunday night's 25-lap super-modified feature, at the Columbus Motor Speedway but Sceva was able to outlast the pair to notch his fourth feature triumph of the season on the Williams-rd oval.

Smith and Kraft finished two-three, followed by Dick Diamond and Carl Busson, a newcomer from Marion running his first race in Columbus.

Those five, finishing in the order named, earned $100 in cash for Thomas Hiles, Jr., of Lancaster, in the speedway's game of "Total." This brought the number of winners, this year, to 18.

In Sunday's late - model headliner, Paul Parks, who finished fourth in the "Dayton 300" for new cars in the afternoon, drove to his second-straight feature and his fourth of the season at the CMS.

Parks driving a '60 Ford, beat out Keith Weaver, Merle McBride, Vern Schrock and Chuck Denny.

Friday night's race will get underway at 8 p.m., following the 7 o'clock time trials. Sunday, the super-modifieds and late-models will return.

Last Friday night, rains cancelled the scheduled Mid-Season Championship program for flying-stocks. The entire schedule will be run this Friday evening, including the two "Monza Style" 25-lap features, with the fastest qualifiers competing.

Another $100 in cash will be waiting in the game of "Total" for the fan or fans able to select the first five, in order, in the first 25-lap main event Friday.

Local Goodyear Service Stores Celebrating 65th Anniversary

Max Bruckman, manager of the Goodyear Great Southern Service Center and Joe Childers, head of the Main and Hamilton Goodyear headquarters at 917 S. Hamilton-rd are joining a nationwide birthday party as the world's largest rubber company celebrates its 65th anniversary from Wednesday, Aug. 14, to Labor Day.

Both Bruckman and Childers have stated that they plan a series of unusual parties to accompany anniversary sales events which will run throughout the birthday period. In joint accord, the two managers said that their plans are to make this birthday into as large an event as a usual Grand Opening sale.

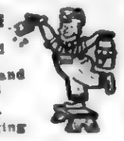
One feature of the local birthday celebration will be coffee and birthday cake served on a crystal plate to be kept by the friends and customers who come in on this Friday and Saturday, and on all Fridays and Saturdays during August.

Both stores will have special birthday prices on Westinghouse appliances, Goodyear tires and many car and home items throughout the stores.

Goodyear dealers and stores located all over the nation are a part of this 65th celebration.

In these 65 years Goodyear has grown from a little producer of solid rubber carriage and bicycle tires, with a total employment of 13, to a large diversified company with nearly 100,000 employes and retail network of 165,000 dealers and stores throughout the world. Net sales have grown from $8,246 to nearly $1.6 billion last year.

The store on S. High-st, at Great Southern, and the one at Hamilton-rd, opposite Great Eastern, are two of the four Goodyear Service Stores in the Columbus area.



LOOKING UP for a moment, from looking over future plans, are Max Bruckman (left), manager of Goodyear Great Southern Service Center, and Joe Childers, Main and Hamilton Goodyear head. Bruckman and Childers were completing final arrangements for Goodyear's 65th anniversary that began Wednesday, Aug. 14.

to purchase four electric ranges, one electric refrigerator and an electric washer for the home economics department at Rosemore, at a discounted $906.52. Under the terms of the agreement, the appliances will be replaced free each year.

Ten electric sewing machines, costing $1247.50, were also purchased for Rosemore.

Seven pieces of data processing equipment, enabling an improved program of instruction for senior business education majors and Co-operative Business Education students, were also acquired.

Whitehall School Board approved the use of its school facilities by the recreation department for a planned program of youth and adult activities.

The school's gymnasium will be available to the recreation department at no cost, with the exception of a small fee for custodial services on Saturday, after 11 a.m.

Four new teachers, hired to teach in Whitehall Schools, were David Travis, eighth grade; Mrs. Margie Mitchell, seventh; Joel McKee, high school librarian, and Mrs. Roberta Hallestad, seventh grade.

"off" ramp to Miller-av and an "on" ramp at Kelton.

Costing about $8.9 million, the section will contain seven grade separations, including one to carry the expressway over the N&W Railroad at Nelson-rd. Ohio, Champion, Linwood, Miller and Kelton-ave will travel over the freeway, and Fairwood-av will be routed under.

The freeway section, from just east of Nelson-rd to the outerbelt, between Hamilton and Noe-Bixby-rd, will provide a ramp from Main-st to permit access for westbound traffic.

A relocation of Alum Creek-dr, between Main-st and a point about one-half mile south of Livingston-av, is also slated, with an interchange complex with Livingston-av and relocated Alum Creek-dr.

Cost of the section is estimated at about $5.9 million.

School-

ham School, Cassingham at Elm, and those south of Main, Montrose Elementary, 2555 E. Main-st at Montrose.

All seventh and eighth grade students attend the Cassingham School, Cassingham at Elm, and senior high students, Bexley High School, 326 S. Cassingham.

Cafeterias will be in operation on the first day.

In Columbus . . .

Any youngster new to the Columbus School System, or those transferring from a different district, must register at the school they will attend, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

All requests for schedule changes must be made at the school office before Aug. 16. No schedule changes will be made in Columbus schools during the first week of school.

Immunization . . .

All students, regardless of age, must comply with Ohio's immunization law, and those enrolling in Whitehall, Bexley and Columbus schools must furnish proof of their immunization record before being admitted.

Birth certificates must accompany registration of new students.

In Whitehall . . .

Parents of children not previously enrolled in Whitehall schools are requested to register them Monday through Friday, Aug. 19 through Aug. 30, 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m. at their respective schools.

All kindergarten students are to be registered at Yearling High School, room 121.

Anyone new to Whitehall, in doubt as to which elementary school their child should attend, may call the school board office, BE. 5-2385, or inquire at any school building.

Elementaries include, East Broad, 3877 E. Broad-st; Beechwood, 455 Beechwood-rd; Etna Road, 4531 Etna-rd; East Main, 3589 E. Main-st, and the new elementary, 4738 Kae-av.

New students in grades seven and eight should register at Rosemore Junior High, 4735 Kae-av, and high school pupils at Whitehall-Yearling High, 675 Yearling-rd guidance office.

residents," but added: "It must be balanced against the cost of city services. With the city income tax as our prime source of operating revenue, we must consider employment opportunities within Whitehall. How many of our potential citizens will work in and pay income tax to Columbus while depending on Whitehall for basic city services?"

Holzhause indicated he will propose a plan to "revitalize Whitehall's recreation department and programs." He said he would also deal with the city's current financial status, budgeting practices and administrative policies.

While stressing the importance of an active "word of mouth" campaign by his supporters, Holzhause said he will meet, personally, as many Whitehall residents as time will permit.

He said he is keying his campaign around issues, people, shoe leather and knuckles.

"If I did not feel that there were issues to contest with the present administration, I would not be a candidate for mayor," Holzhause said.

He added the belief that shoe leather and knuckles (walking and door-knocking) are still the most effective elements in carrying issues to the people.

paper. If not, the "5" emblem can be turned in for $5 in "Confederate" cash, which also can be spent with any place of business advertising in a Hartley Newspaper.

In each of 20 separate copies of Hartley Newspapers there are emblems hidden like the one printed in this column. These "1" emblems are good for $1 in "Confederate" money if the finder will send the page containing the emblem to the Hartley Newspapers office before the Monday deadline. Finders need not be a paid subscriber or come in person to collect the winnings with a "1" emblem.

This contest is open to any reader of a Hartley Newspaper with the exception of employes, including carriers, and their families.

All money not claimed in this week's contest will be added to the jackpot offered next week. "Confederate" cash offered by this paper can be spent only with places of business advertising in a Hartley Newspaper during the week the money is claimed by a winner.

Adult Council Coordinates Programs

By SAMUEL D. STELLMAN, Ph.D., President

The Adult Education Council of Greater Columbus is a non-profit organization composed of a group of dedicated men and women whose primary purpose is to help adults improve themselves, their community, and increase their knowledge of the world about them through participation in adult education programs.

The Council attempts to coordinate the work of all those organizations which donate a large amount of their program to adult education activity. These organizations include schools, universities, libraries, private and public agencies, national organizations, individuals, and a number of business firms listed in the directory in this supplement.

Urges Participation

Aside from attempting to coordinate the existing adult programs, the Council encourages adult participation in the extensive adult education activities regardless of extent of educational background of the participant. Even though an adult has had no formal education or college training, there is something for him in the extensive programs being carried on in this area.

Whether there is an interest in technical training, hobbies, college courses, or "fun" courses, the Columbus resident has an opportunity to find the location of any or many of these activities through reading this Hartley supplement or by calling the Information Center of the United Community Council, CA. 8-5696.

The Council, at present, is attempting to help those who have had little or no formal education through the television program "Operation Alphabet." In addition the Council publishes directories of adult education classes, holds leadership training conferences, and conducts a 13-week television public affairs TV series.

The Council holds monthly meetings which are open to the public. It provides speakers for groups which wish to know more about adult education.

The purposes of the Council are:

To provide an exchange of information about adult education programs conducted in the Columbus area.

To provide a means for promoting the programs of various agencies.

To provide a clearing house of adult education activities and events.

To encourage research in discovering community needs.

To sponsor training programs for the development of leadership skills.

To be the official organization representing adult education in the Columbus Metropolitan Community.

Membership in the Council is open, by invitation, to individuals and organizations having a program based on broad interests in adult education.

Groups accepted into membership are entitled to have a representative and an alternate on the Council.

Superseded members may at their request be voted honorary members without voting privilege.

At present annual dues are $3 for all members.

The Case For Continued Education

(Glenn A. Rich, director of the Division of Elementary and Secondary Education, and Karl Kessler, Supervisor of Adult Education—both in the Ohio State Department of Education—present herewith a persuasive argument on the need for continuing education.)

The current revolution in technology spotlights the increasing need for continuing education in Ohio. This need exists for every person whether he has had any formal education or not. Continuing education is a necessary part of life because of the changes in the nature of basic decisions which one must make, not only for his own behalf, but for his family, friends, colleagues, and the public in general.

Many under-educated adults are not able to read road signs. The adult with only a minimum amount of education (less than five years of formal schooling) generally is not able to read or comprehend local newspapers. How can he decide what is fact or fiction?

One-Third Under-Educated

Adults who have less than a high school education find it difficult to obtain work because business and industry demand a certain level of education. The employee needs to have sufficient knowledge and communication skills to become an active and participating citizen within the community.

Of all persons 25 years of age or older, the 1960 census reports over 290,000 adults in Ohio who have less than a fifth grade education. The same source cites that there are at least 2,000,000 adults who have less than nine years of formal education and 3,000,00 adults who ha less than 12 years of education. This represents approximately one-third of the present population of Ohio.

Adults who need a high school diploma for employment should complete this requirement by attending formal classes. Public school adult education agencies should take the initiative to provide the services which are needed by so many people. All citizens of a community, private business and industry, governmental agencies, social agencies and organizations should also encourage participation in adult education programs.

Many high school graduates need additional secondary education courses to supplement what has already been acquired for self-improvement, as well as courses in the cultural aspects which contribute to individual growth and understanding. Parents often desire opportunities for directed and guided group discussion on the parent-child and family relationships. Personal growth in the understanding of human relations and citizenship should be encouraged.

More Leisure

The shorter work week, reduced travel time, high mobility, and modern media of communications all contribute to increased leisure time. Continuing education, therefore, should be strengthened and made as a part of the services of the community to give new and enriching experiences. Mandated retirement causes the creative talents and experiences of retirees to be "placed on the shelf." These talents should be of great value in continuing educational programs in instruction and discussion among individuals and [illegible].

The State Department of Education provides a leadership role in continuing education. This leadership includes the development attitudes among educators to understand that there is no terminal point of an education in a man's life. Training institutes for directors and teachers of adult education are conducted by the State Department of Education for the development of programs which are designed to help the adult to realize his full potential.

The very nature of the adult education program should be conducive to the development of a broad range of knowledge which can be used effectively in community leadership and to provide opportunities to study and research critical problems leading to a sense of personal satisfaction and accomplishment.

In addition to its leadership roles, the State Department of Education offers consultative services in the area of continuing education to boards of education, school administrators and personnel, adult education agencies, and citizens of Ohio. Through these services, in conjunction with other Divisions of the State Department of Education and other Departments of State which have responsibilities of continuing education, it is hoped that new programs will be developed and programs al-

South Western Schools Start Third Year Of Adult Programs

South Western adult education program begins its third year of operation this fall with a greatly revised program, according to Paul S. Noblitt, director. Offerings will include classes in 23 areas of study activity.

Heading the list of offerings will be a repeat of the course in illustrative art offered last year by Robert E. Mauck, well-known local artist and illustrator. Mauck's classes last year were very popular and this year will be expanded to include a course for beginners on Tuesdays and an advanced class on Mondays at Grove City High School.

The new schedule calls for elimination of Wednesday classes. All classes will be held on Monday and Tuesday evenings. Included this year are classes in Ballroom Dancing for Adults, Bookkeeping for Small Business, Bridge for Beginners, Ceramics, Cake Decoration, Education for Survival, Electronics Kit Construction, Hobby Woodshop, Knitting, Elementary Reading, Sewing, Shorthand and Typing.

For further information, call TR. 5-2318 and see advertisement elsewhere in this edition.

The program is designed to provide opportunities for adults to engage in worthwhile learning experiences. The South Western City Board of Education sponsors classes in four school buildings and on two evenings per week for this purpose.

The majority of the classes are located in the Grove City High School but Franklin Heights High School also houses a number of activities. A small group of classes is scattered between the Prairie Lincoln and the Prairie Norton schools.

Classes include academic, commercial, and vocational areas of study. Several recreational type classes are also offered as in the Western Square Dancing Instruction in Grove City High School and the Ballroom Dancing for Adults in the Prairie Lincoln School.

The adult education program in South Western has been successful from the beginning. Now in its third year of operation, plans are being made for expanded enrollment. Requests to date have exceeded those of last year and additional instructors and facilities are being scheduled to meet the demand.

ready established will be further strengthened.

Continuing education programs are inexpensive if existing public school facilities are used. Boards of education are permitted by law to budget for adult education programs and for leadership and administrative costs to assure quality programs in adult education.

Budgets for continuing education should provide for administrative personnel on a half-time or full-time basis depending upon the extent of the program. Time should be provided for counseling, orientation, supervision, organization, in-service training of adult education instructors, coordination of activities, development of promotional materials, consultative services, advisory committees, and liaison with the board of education and superintendent of schools.

A combination of evening and daytime courses might be more suitable than only classes scheduled in the evening. The successful adult education program depends upon the attitude, support and cooperation of everyone concerned.

In the age of technology with its rapid changes, today's knowledge of education becomes obsolescent with the coming of tomorrow. To adjust to changes and to make a full and complete contribution to society, it is imperative that every person must continue today's education to meet the challenges of tomorrow. This is the case for continuing education.

Franklin U. Will Open Day Classes

Franklin University announced today that it will open day classes in its General College starting Sept. 3, 1963. Requests by students for day courses brought about this opening of day courses.

A two-trimester curriculum in business administration is being offered for persons interested in business. The schedule of classes will include Accounting I, English, Small Business Operation, French, Public Speaking, and elective courses. Experienced teachers will make up the teaching staff. Mr. Floyd Mason, CPA with six years' experience in teaching in the evening courses at Franklin University, will teach Accounting I. Mr. Ralph Howell, who has taught evening courses at Franklin University for many years and recently retired from Bexley High, will teach English and French. Three Different Study Programs Open To Bliss College Students

One of the most up-to-date colleges of its type in the country, Bliss College, 131 E. State-st, offers accredited courses of study in all fields of business and commerce.

Chartered by the State of Ohio to offer degrees, the school makes available three different programs to its students.

The School of Business, the oldest department of Bliss College, offers courses to qualify students in the fields of bookkeeping, stenography and for secretarial work. A main purpose of the school is to help the student to develop an insight into the business world and to sharpen his instinct to aid in a rapid advancement in his chosen field. All credits earned in this school may be transferred to the Junior College of Commerce.

Three avenues are open to the student desiring a diploma from the Junior College of Commerce. A student may major in higher accountancy, executive secretarial or business administration. Those completing the junior course of 12 months are awarded a certificate of proficiency and graduates of the senior course receive diplomas at graduation ceremonies.

A special course of 18 months of special accounting has been arranged for those who must cut their time to a minimum in order to enter the accounting field.

The degree, Bachelor of Commerce, is awarded to those students who successfully complete studies in the Senior College of Commerce. Work in the prescribed courses is given over a period of 12 quarters or 36 months.

This course offers the student more intensely commercial than that included in the usual commerce course offered by the average college or university.

Study at Bliss College is open to veterans, under the GI Bill, and any qualified high school graduate. Sports are also available at the college and in the past the Bliss Bookkeepers Basketball team has gained nationwide recognition. Two member of a past team were the first honorable mention All American players ever named from an American business college or university.

All persons making application to enter Bliss College are advised by trained counselor who will also answer any questions the potential student might have regarding the school or study programs.

Heavy Equipment Used In Al Win Training Program

On-the-job training and instruction in actual earth-moving conditions under the supervision of experienced operating engineers are features offered by Al Win Training, Inc., Plain City-Georgesville-rd, West Jefferson. The local school, part of a six-state organization, specializes in getting men ready for jobs on earth-moving projects.

During the course, which usually lasts 80-hours, students are trained to use construction equipment and actually work on earth-moving projects. Recent jobs include the installation of sewers, water lines and streets in the Stoner Subdivision of Grove City. Other projects included the removal of 17 acres of trees for a project, the building of a lake and excavation of basements.

Prospective students are contacted by a counselor who will advise the student on the programs and type of training offered. A new student may either pay for his tuition in one lump sum or make arrangements for regular terms to cover the cost of instruction.

Classes can be arranged for either week-days or weekends, whichever is convenient for the student.

Since most construction firms are interested in only hiring trained heavy equipment operators, the school has been able to trace 70 per cent of the students who have been gainfully employed.

The latest in modern equipment is used in training programs and courses are offered in the operation of such machines as bulldozers, cranes and cukes.

Full information is available by calling TR. 9-9100.

True Meaning Of Education

William Feather said: "An education isn't how much you have committed to memory, or even how much you know. It's being able to differentiate between what you do know and what you don't. It's knowing where to go to find out what you need to know; and it's knowing how to use the information once you get it.

Ohio Technical Institute Turns Out Top Technicians

Ohio Technical Institute has led and is continuing to lead the way in modern technical education. Since its humble beginning in 1952, the school has grown to be one of the most widely recognized and respected technical institutes in the Midwest.

The new quarters of the Ohio Technical Institute at 886 Sunbury-rd provide 15,000 square feet of air conditioned classrooms and laboratory space, a complete reference library, and parking facilities for students.

Technical institute education is vital to our state's economic growth. In these days when the engineering schools are turning out graduates with very strong scientific backgrounds, the technical institutes must supply the highly trained personnel to perform the tasks previously done by engineers.

"At Ohio Tech, we foresaw this change in engineering education and prepared our curricula accordingly," declared OTI president, S. L. Oppenheimer. "As a result, our students have been highly successful upon graduation. Our people have had calculus, physics, semiconductors, and transistor circuits."

Ohio Tech was the first to teach pulse and digital circuits and the first to teach servomechanisms. This pioneering spirit at OTI has all been channeled into electronics engineering technology. Within the next year Ohio Tech will expand into a new technology which is currently in its infancy. The school will continue to grow to keep pace with the growth of science and technology.

Applications are now being accepted for all classes and anyone interested in starting classes this fall should contact the registrar's office at once by stopping in or calling 252-6760.

Columbus Area Technician School, launched by the Columbus School System and acclaimed by educators and industrial leaders, will offer two years of college level training for high school graduates in the fields of electronics, mechanical and business data processing.

And, a full month before the school's first quarter has opened, Director Clint Tatsch has received urgent requests from industry to add six other areas to the curriculum.

"The need for technicians is immediate," he said. "I already have a request for a data processing technician to operate an installation being planned in India."

"The school's success and its rapid expansion is assured by industry's demand for technicians. It is Ohio's legislators and its newly-created board of regents who will determine its future status.

If they accede to the government's request of 1958, authorizing federal aid to any state which will promote and conduct junior colleges or technology institutes, it is easily conceivable that the school could be the beginning of a new state education program.

"But for the present, the school will operate on a strict, six-hour, noon until 6 p.m. basis, with no study halls."

Public Library Affords All Adult Education Opportunity

"The true university of these days is a collection of books." — Carlyle.

As responsible adults, we seek to be good citizens, the best of parents, productive members of society, and growing individuals. We appreciate the necessity of current knowledge for effective fulfillment of these roles.

We know that "a molehill of slightly out-of-date facts" has a way of becoming "a mountain of educational obsolescence."

We realize that the "erosion of education" by the passage of time can apply equally to us whether we earned degrees at college, ended our formal educational experience with high school, or earned our "diploma" through experience and self-education.

We are aware that "keeping current" is a continuing process and requires taking advantage of the total educational resources available to us. It's such a staggering prospect that we sometimes wonder whom to turn to and how to get started.

Trust Education

Since the truest means of adult education is the receptive mind communing with the expert, the public library offers us an ideal opportunity to continue and enhance our store of knowledge throughout life's span.

the pursuit of knowledge and pleasure are books; musical and spoken-word recordings; current and back magazines, periodicals and newspapers; 16-mm. educational films; government pamphlets; and an almost endless variety of reports and brochures on practically every conceivable subject.

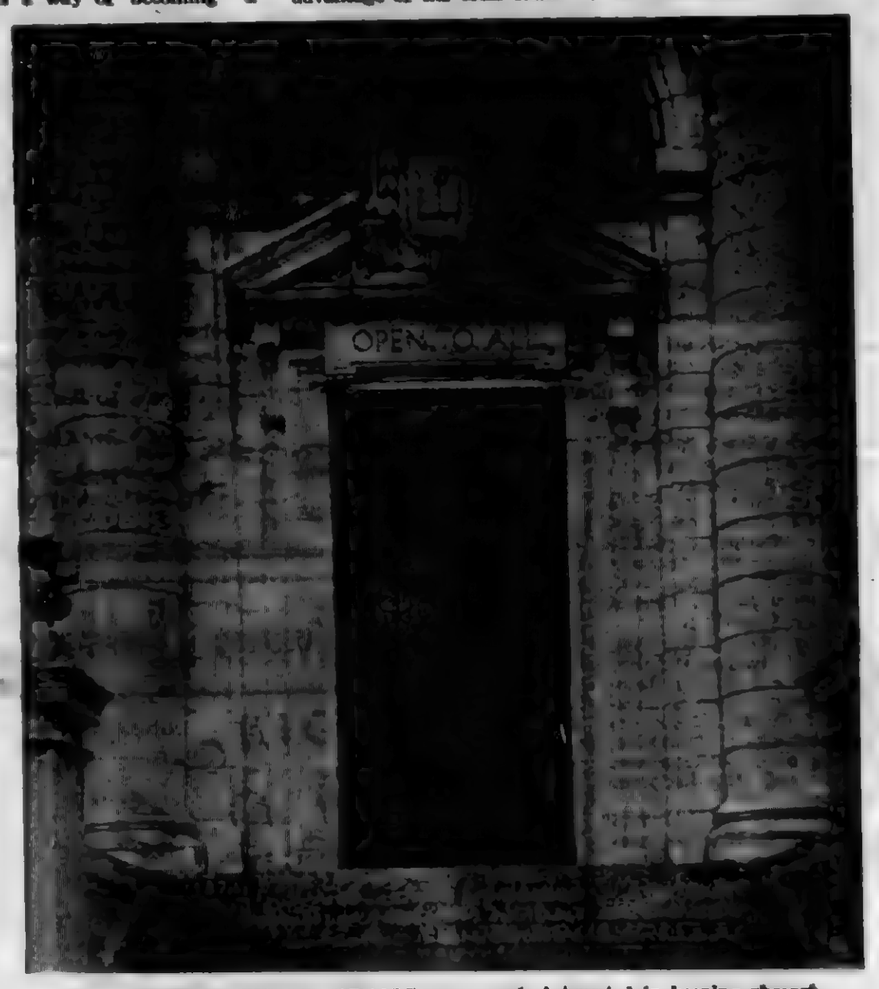
In the library, you set your own pace, review as often as necessary, and choose your own teachers. This community information center gives you the means of lifelong self-education by providing a wide variety of materials to stimulate thought, to develop understanding, to widen perspectives, to broaden interests, and to suggest alternatives.

Self-Exam Urged

If you are not already engaged in a lifelong learning enrichment program, start today with an assessment of the "total you."

Examine your intolerances, those areas of life in which you have closed your mind to growth. Check yourself for understanding in the cultural arts, the practical arts, and the humanities. Analyze your "bedrock philosophy," your personal creed, your orientation to God and your fellow man. Think ahead to the retirement years and remind yourself that you cannot suddenly develop an alert and inquiring mind, a taste for reading and creative and satisfying hobbies — for all these require years of nurture.

Consider all these things and you will be impelled to use the growth and educational resources available to you in the public library.



Learn More About Music

Music has been important to mankind throughout recorded history. Empires have crumbled to the strains of martial music played by the enemy. Highpoints in civilization throughout the ages have been accompanied by advanced forms of music.

Today, music plays an important part of our daily lives. We hear it as we shop. It is piped into our banks and restaurants. We listen to music many hours a week on radio.

But how much do you really know about music? Do you recognize the instruments, know something of the famous composers and the great musical groups? If you feel that a lack in your own musical background keeps you from getting the most out of the world of music, you'll be interested in exploring the offerings of the Fine Arts Room down at the Main Columbus Public Library.

Here you'll find more than 7,000 long play phonograph records you can borrow just like books. And you'll find books on every conceivable phase of music and musicians. If you love music, you'll love using the library's fine arts room.

THROUGH THESE PORTALS pass people interested in keeping abreast of our changing world. This is the door to the Main Columbus Public Library at 96 S. Grant-av. Your library card unlocks all its resources to you. If you have a sincere desire to learn there is almost no subject too difficult for you to master through the aid of books, recordings, films, magazines, and other informational materials freely available to you at your Columbus Public Library.

If you have an immediate practical goal of building a boat, for example, increasing your personal efficiency, or establishing a small business, the experts who have written books are at your fingertips. If you seek greater understanding of the social or physical sciences, the humanities, or any other organized knowledge of mankind, the world's greatest teachers of modern-day life and antiquity are at your command.

Enriching Force

Library books, too, can help you formulate your own philosophy of life and aid you in setting satisfying goals. They can inspire, direct and refresh you as you travel to your destination — The Editor, Public Life.

The public library is your community information center. It selects, buys, catalogs, and files books and other informational materials so that you may find them easily.

Adults Profit From Courses Provided By City Schools

A wide range of adult education courses is provided by the Columbus public schools in addition to the Evening High School, enrollment of which has doubled since 1926.

Considerable expansion has been made in the trade extension and apprentice courses and full direction of the School for Practical Nursing has been assumed. Employment and re-employment training classes in cooperation with the federal Manpower Act have been conducted. Classes for illiterates have been continued as have naturalization classes.

An entirely new venture—the Columbus Area Technician School — is being added this fall.

For Foreign-Born

English courses and Citizenship Preparation classes are conducted by the Columbus Evening High School for foreign-born students. For information call the school office at CA. 4-3243. Registration for the fall semester will be held Thursday evening, Sept. 5, or Monday evening, Sept. 9.

To meet the needs of adults and older youth the Columbus Board of Education provides an accredited Evening High School at 75 Washington-blvd. While it is chartered as a full four-year high school, with a primary purpose of giving to students an opportunity to earn a high school diploma, it also provides courses outside the usual high school offerings to meet the special needs of adults in varying circumstances.

Evening School Courses

Among those are Accounting of college level, Word Study and Rapid Reading, Art (including oil painting and design of professional level), Public Speaking, Medical Terminology, Mechanical and Architectural Drafting and Blueprint Reading.

The Evening High School also provides a broad offering of commercial courses, a variety of foreign languages and a wide range of Mathematics, and Sciences including Chemistry and Physiology.

More than 60 courses are scheduled for next semester, registration for which will be conducted Thursday evening, Sept. 5, and Monday evening, Sept. 9.

Among the new or relatively new offerings this year will be Penmanship, Creative Writing, Great Literature, Spelling and Personal Writing, and Foods and Meal Planning.

For further information call the Evening High office (CA. 4-3243) or write to Evening High School, 75 Washington Blvd., Columbus 22, O.

Shop Courses

Registration for the Trade Extension classes conducted by the Columbus Public School system must be made at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 11; in room No. 1, Central High School building.

Courses offered the first term will be Arc Welding, Tool Design I (basic), Electrical Theory (basic), Electronics I (basic), Electronics III, Metallurgy I, Hydraulics, Machine Shop, Refrigeration Theory and Oxy-Acetylene Welding.

Second-term additional courses will be Electric Small Motor Repair, Refrigeration II, Hydraulics II, Tool Design II, Metallurgy II, TIG Welding.

For further details call CA. 8-3821, extension 285.

RAPID READING and word study is one of the courses offered at Columbus Evening High School to meet popular demand. Charles H. Thompson, teacher and reading specialist, explains to students the charts he keeps on each, showing their rate of reading and comprehension progress.

McGraw-Hill Book Company recently announced the publication of a new book, "Direct and Alternating Currents," co-authored by Samuel L. Oppenheimer, president of Ohio Technical Institute, and Jean Paul Borchers of North American Aviation.

The book is a text in Electric Circuits and Analysis, written for the engineering technician student. The book, in note form, has been in use by the students of Ohio Technical Institute for the past two years and is now available to the public and other technical institutes and colleges.

OSU Center For Adult Education Courses Offered At Several Levels

A recent Ph.D. graduate of Ohio State University, who majored in adult education, will return this fall to his native Ethiopia where he will become Associate Dean of University Extension at the Haile Selassie I University.

He is Dr. Solomon Inquai and he received his training in adult education through courses offered by the OSU Center for Adult Education. He also studied sociology and audio-visual methods of instruction. In his new position he will be supervising 15 training centers for teachers of fundamental and community education.

Other recent Ph.D. graduates who took their adult education training through the Center for Adult Education are Dr. Joseph Blair, who is now Director of Educational Services for the Nationwide Insurance Co. in Columbus, and Dr. Samuel Stellman, Assistant Executive Director of the Columbus Jewish Center.

In addition to those receiving Doctor's degrees, several students have received the Master's degree in recent years. These include nursing educators, "Y" directors, U.S. Armed Forces personnel, and others. Several persons who are working part-time in adult education enroll for survey courses to explore the field and to gain some of the fundamental skills.

RESEARCH SERVICES

Besides having a program of professional training, the Center for Adult Education engages in research and offers consultant services to agencies wanting to begin an adult education program or wanting to improve an already existing one. Organizations using the services of the Center recently include Girl Scout Council, Central YMCA, Columbus Jewish Center, Columbus Adult Education Council, State Department of Public Instruction.

The Center held its 14th annual Parent Education Workshop this summer. The workshop was co-sponsored by the Ohio Congress of Parents and Teachers. Forty-four officers and committee chairmen met for two full days to receive training in how to organize study groups and how better to discover and use various resources in preparing parent education programs.

Last year the Center received a grant of $55,000 from the U.S. Office of Education to conduct a research project on the educational needs of the aging in Columbus. Over 2,000 older persons have been interviewed and have indicated their preference for educational programs and services. This information will be analyzed, interpreted and published during the coming year. The Center has also conducted research into the educational needs of out-of-school youth. The results have entitled, "Educational Needs of Out-of-School Youth." Copies are free to responsible Ohio residents.

Other publications of the Center include "Improving Adult Education in Ohio's Public Schools," "Annotated Bibliography of Materials for Teachers of Americanization and Literacy Classes," both of which are free; and a "Handbook for Parent Education Leaders," the price of which is 50 cents. Copies of these publications may be had by writing the Center, 367 Arps Hall, 1945 N. High-st, Columbus 10, Ohio.

The Center for Adult Education is directed by Dr. Andrew Hendrickson, who is professor of adult education in the College of Education. He received his Ph.D. degree from Columbia University and was formerly Assistant Dean at Cleveland College of Western Reserve University. He is the author of the book, "Trends of Public School Adult Education in Cities of U.S.," and many articles in educational journals. For a period of eight years he was secretary - treasurer of the Ohio Association for Adult Education and is one of the founders of the Adult Education Association of the U.S.A.

Market Training Institute Offers Specialized Training

Featuring specialized training in the fields of electronic assembly, PBX receptionists and retail marketing, the Market Training Institute, 198 S. High-st, Suite 201, was established in the Columbus area two and a half years ago. Since opening its doors to students for this specialized training more than 600 graduates have completed courses.

According to Dwaine Ayotte, director of the local training school, there are now 48 branches of the Market Training Institute operated in the United States and Canada.

Ayotte pointed out that there are five teachers and three counselors employed by his organization. Courses are started on a regular basis and a student need not be a high school graduate to enroll. A free qualifying exam given to each applicant will determine if the student is eligible to take a course in his chosen field. The school is approved by the Veterans Administration, the Rehabilitation agencies and by outlying welfare departments.

According to Ayotte a large percentage of the students trained at the school find jobs waiting for them at the completion of their courses.

The PBX, receptionist course gives instruction in three different types of telephone switch boards and a course in typing.

Training in electronic assembly takes in NASA soldering techniques, study of schematic drawings, use of the color code, understanding of Ohme's law, study of spot tying and cable lacing. All graduates are qualified as a class A assembler.

The course in marketing gives the student an understanding of stock procedure, marketing of produce and proper check-out techniques.

Short courses are also available in electronic assembly and grocery checkers.

Anyone interested in registering for any of the courses is invited to visit the school and make arrangements by calling 228-6928.

Books Help You Do Better Job

The "butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker" of children's poetry fame all could have improved trade and made their jobs easier with the aid of a public library. Of course, they didn't have public libraries back in those days and practically all learning was the hard way—by trial and error. But you—no matter what your occupation—can turn to the advice of experts in books borrowed from your Public Library.

There are scores of books especially for the small businessman and for members of the various trades and professions. And, if you're an employe, there are books to help you acquire the knowledge you need to move up the ladder to a better job. If your job has you stumped, if you think you've come to a dead end in the matter of promotion, check for library books dealing with vocations and business advice. They can help you, too, in the critical decision of whether or not to change jobs by pointing out the hazards and advantages of other lines of work. Let your Public Library help you with your job!

Franklin University Serves Both Youth And Adult

Franklin University offers adults formal evening education in law, accounting, business management, industrial management, electronics, drawing, typewriting, shorthand and dictation, Day Programs in electronics, drawing, and college courses are offered for youth and adults.

A branch of the Columbus Young Men's Christian Association, Franklin University is located in the east wing of Central YMCA at 40 West Long Street. The University's offices and library are located on the second floor. The office is open until 8 p.m. so that adults may visit the University after working hours. Policies of the University are set by a Board of Governors composed of twelve business and professional men.

Franklin University's work with adults started before 1900, when the YMCA started classes in a few courses to help young men who were working during the days.

Formal Education

For the past 62 years Franklin University's chief work has been that of offering evening formal education to the adults of Columbus and Central Ohio. Enrollment for the fall of 1963 will be over one thousand students. The fall trimester starts on Tuesday, Sept. 3, 1963.

Both men and women attend Franklin University, which has been coeducational since World War. I. Approximately one-fourth of the students are women. The University is open to all people regardless of race, creed, or national origin.

Evening students work during the days and attend classes on one or more evenings each week. Students may enroll for single courses, a certificate, or for degree programs. The University offers the junior college, or associate degree, and the college, or bachelor's degree, in the evenings. The associate degree may be earned in the day division of the Technical Institute or General College.

Employers Assist

Adults attend Franklin University to improve their education and to help them in employment. Some adults want to learn enough so that they may enter a new field of employment. Others want to upgrade themselves on their jobs or to keep up-to-date on their present job.

A few students are being retained for employment since their jobs were eliminated by automation. Many students are assisted by their employers who pay for one-half to all of the tuition if courses are completed satisfactorily.

Franklin University operates three trimesters each year. Trimesters are sixteen weeks long. If a student enrolls in one course, he attends class one evening each week from 6 to 9 p.m. The Fall Trimester traditionally starts the day after Labor Day. The spring trimester starts the first Monday of each year, and the Summer Trimester starts around May 1.

Four Divisions

The University is a non-profit institution of higher education, which is operated to help educate persons interested in improving themselves and to serve the community. Advisory committees' opinions, student requests, and employers' needs are used in developing curriculums and planning schedules.

Franklin University is composed of four divisions which are the Law School, the General College, the Technical Institute, and the Secretarial School.

The Law School accepts adults under 41 years of age if they are graduates of accredited four-year colleges or universities. The degree of Bachelor of Laws can be earned by attending class three evenings each week for approximately four years.

The faculty is composed of five full-time professors and 10 prominent lawyers of the local bar and bench who teach part-time. Enrollment varies from 100 to 120 students. Students work at full-time positions and attend evening class.

It is not unusual to find people who have earned advanced degrees enrolled and working for a law degree. four or five women are usually enrolled. The Law School has approximately four hundred living alumni. Many of these are prominent in the legal profession and in business.

Mature Adults

The General College accepts adults of any age. Mature adults who are not high school graduates are admitted as general students. Approximately 650 students attend this college during the fall trimester.

Some adults enroll for only one course, such as Principles of Real Estate. Other persons take enough courses to earn the associate or bachelor's degree. Courses in accounting, business administration, industrial management, English, foreign languages, phychology, social studies, and the like are available.

Many students attend the University to get the "know-how" for job advancement, others to learn new professions. Some students, graduates of other four-year colleges and universities, are learning new professions, keeping up-to-date, or simply taking courses in which they are interested. Students and graduates are found in responsible positions in local business, industrial, and governmental organizations.

Tech Institute

The Technical Institute of Franklin University offers programs in electronics and drawing to both youth and adults through day and evening courses. Its programs are designed to educate engineering technicians. Technicians are defined as persons who have had two or more years of education beyond the high school; who have studied mathematics, science, oral and written communications, and their specialty; and who have earned the associate degree.

These technicians are educated to be assistants to engineers and supervisors of craftsmen. Various groups have reported that from three to five technicians are needed to support every engineer. Currently technicians are in demand in many fields due to the increased use of complicated equipment.

The University discontinued its vocational education at the beginning of World War II. Since that time, the University has educated engineering technicians in electronics and formed by a staff of full-time instructors, together drawing. Instruction is per- with several part-time instructors, who are engineers, scientists and technicians working in local business, industries, and research institutions. Approximately three hundred fifty students attend this division. Graduates work locally, as well as in many parts of the nation.

The Secretarial School conducts day and evening classes for youth and adults. Certificate programs are offered, but students may enroll for one or more courses if they desire. Although this school is co-educational, most of its students are women. Many women who are reentering the business world after some years of absence attend this school to build up their speed in typewriting and dictation.

Nothing will help you define your interests quicker than to visit a library and browse through its many shelves. Or, merely offer a hint of your interest or need of the moment to the trained librarian on duty.

We Still Like It

While it is true that liars figure and figures can be made to lie, it is apparently true today that our courts can give about any kind of a decision and justify it.

If we are breaking a law when we sing the fourth stanza of "America," then I'm proud to be an outlaw.

The fourth stanza of "America" goes:

"Our Father's God to Thee,
"Author of liberty,
"To Thee we sing:
"Long may our land be bright
"With freedom's holy light,
"Protect us with Thy might
"Great God our King!"

Many Kiwanis clubs open their meetings with this song.

Let's sing it more often!

Whitehall's share of project costs will be divided between the city and owners of property abutting the project area. The city will pay two per cent of the total cost of work at intersections, while the property owners will be assessed for the remainder.

The nucleus of a junior college in Ohio might very well be starting in the north wing of Central High School this fall.

Columbus Area Technician School, launched by the Columbus School System and acclaimed by educators and industrial leaders, will offer two years of college level training for high school graduates in the fields of electronics, mechanical and business data processing.

And, a full month before the school's first quarter has opened, Director Clint Tatsch has received urgent requests from industry to add six other areas to the curriculum.

"The need for technicians is immediate," he said. "I already have a request for a data processing technician to operate an installation being planned in India."

The school's success and its rapid expansion is assured by industry's demand for technicians. It is Ohio's legislators and its newly-created board of regents who will determine its future status.

Columbus Business University Grads Climb Ladder Of Success

When Ralph E. Hoffhines and W. L. Ohmert founded the Office Training School in January, 1911, they foresaw one of the great revolutions in this country's employment picture . . . the rapid and gigantic growth of our army of specialized office workers.

Today, the institution that has grown from the Office Training School — Columbus Business University — is enabling young men and women to fill positions of responsibility in many fields . . . from executive secretaries to senior accountant. Columbus Business University graduates, thousands in number, are now in key posts in business, industry, commerce, government and the professions. They are found in the ranks of top management throughout the nation.

Many Courses

As our society and economy have become more complex, the areas of specialization for office personnel have expanded. The curriculum structure and faculty at Columbus Business University have grown to meet these ever-changing requirements. Courses include Commerce and Finance, Professional Acounting and Auditing, Business Administration, Office Management, Executive and Private Secretarial, Stenographic Business Machines, IBM Key Punch, Airline Reservations, Ticketing and Teletype, as well as the nationally famous Speedwriting shorthand and the Nancy Taylor course in charm and etiquette.

If you are planning a career for yourself or for some loved one, it will pay you to investigate the wide range of opportunities — from clerk-typist to accountant — in industry and business.

Every kind of business — from airplane makers to zipper manufacturers and from attorneys to zinc smelters — requires office workers. Men in all these fields will tell you that good office personnel is harder to find than well-trained, experienced technicans.

Columbus Business University is staffed and equipped to prepare young people to fill this demand. Proof of this is the fact that CBU is accredited by the Accrediting Commisison for Business Schools in Washington, D.C., and is chartered by the State of Ohio to confer degrees.

Free Placement

Personnel directors and management know they can count on Columbus Business University graduates to do the job, and they constantly look to the school's free placement service for people to fill vacancies.

Visitors are welcome to get complete details on CBU, its academic program, the many school-operated and supervised dormitories, the varied social and athletic program and most important how CBU training will mean higher earnings during the years ahead through a rewarding career in business. Columbus Business University, one of America's outstanding office training schools, is located in downtown Columbus at 208 N. High-st at the corner of Spring-st.

South Side Settlement Leaders Strive For 'Education For Living'

The South Side Settlement at 363 Reeb-av is a community-centered group work agency where the adult program includes both adult education and adult social action.

The Settlement is concerned with the total living experience of the people in the community. It seeks to serve as a center where people can meet around their common problems and organize to search for solutions.

Its goal is to provide leadership through its professional staff in drawing out the organizing ability of the people in the community and thus blend professional leadership and local leadership in the defining and solving of problems. The Settlement is interracial and nonsectarian. Its goal is to cut across the separation of race, color and creed to welcome the richness of difference.

The skills and educational experience includes sewing, commodity cooking, beauty salon, and adult remedial reading.

There are two sewing groups. The first is a mend-it-fix-it group with emphasis on conserving and re-doing clothes, sheets and pillow cases. The second is a creative sewing group with emphasis on learning to use patterns.

The nucleus of a junior college in Ohio might very well be starting in the north wing of Central High School this fall.

Columbus Area Technician School, launched by the Columbus School System and acclaimed by educators and industrial leaders, will offer two years of college level training for high school graduates in the fields of electronics, mechanical and business data processing.

And, a full month before the school's first quarter has opened, Director Clint Tatsch has received urgent requests from industry to add six other areas to the curriculum.

"The need for technicians is immediate," he said. "I already have a request for a data processing technician to operate an installation being planned in India."

"The school's success and its rapid expansion is assured by industry's demand for technicians. It is Ohio's legislators and its newly-created board of regents who will determine its future status.

If they accede to the government's request of 1958, authorizing federal aid to any state which will promote and conduct junior colleges or technology institutes, it is easily conceivable that the school could be the beginning of a new state education pro-

There are also a number of other possibilities.

"Ideally, to be of most benefit to the most people, the School of Technology should be operated on a 12-hour basis, with classes scheduled whenever they are justified by registration. And this is definitely in the plans for the future.

We Still Like It

While it is true that liars figure and figures can be made to lie, it is apparently true today that our courts can give about any kind of a decision and justify it.

If we are breaking a law when we sing the fourth stanza of "America," then I'm proud to be an outlaw.

The fourth stanza of "America" goes:

"Our Father's God to Thee,
"Author of liberty,
"To Thee we sing:
"Long may our land be bright
"With freedom's holy light,
"Protect us with Thy might
"Great God our King!"

Many Kiwanis clubs open their meetings with this hymn.

Let's sing it more often!

Jewish Center Offers Meaningful Adult Program

The Jewish Center of Columbus is a United Appeals agency located on the east side of Columbus and serving a membership of over 5000 men, women and children. The Center is a family agency where every member of the family finds activity to suit his or her taste.

There are 2800 adult members at the Jewish Center and a great deal of adult education activity is conducted to meet the needs and desires of those adults who wish to enjoy their leisure time in meaningful classes, courses, concerts and lectures, and physical education programs.

Trained Staff

The program of the adult department of the center is planned by a professionally trained staff in cooperation with various committees of interested members of the community. Through the democratic process of mutual exchange these committees take major responsibility for initiating, planning, and carrying out programs suggested by staff, members, and other members of the community.

The Columbus Center is one of 325 Jewish Centers in the United States and Canada which are joined together through the National Jewish Welfare Board.

The local center is guided by a staff of trained professionals who are drawn from fields of education, social work, physical education and business.

Arts Are Central

For the courses and classes which are conducted, a special staff is drawn from all parts of the Columbus community. Instructors come from the universities, high schools, and professional personnel in the community.

The cultural arts have a central place in the adult educational program of the center. Classes are conducted in painting, ceramic tile, and sculpturing.

This year the arts program will be under the guidance of Francis Coelho, instructor at Ohio State University.

Art exhibitions, open to the public, are held regularly. Paintings, sketching and sculpture pieces of local and national artists are displayed. Matthew Baigell, teacher and art historian also from the faculty of OSU serves as consultant to the Center's art committee.

Gallery Players

The Center's highly regarded theatrical group, the Gallery Players, presents performances of professional caliber to the community at regular intervals. Richard Heer Oman, secretary of the Columbus Foundation, in a recent article in the Columbus Dispatch appraising the city's cultural assets, decried the lack of experimental theatre in the city and mentioned the Columbus Jewish Center as one of the few places in Columbus where worthwhile theatre may be seen.

Among its series of plays during the past season, the Gallery Players brought a memorable production of Ionesco's "Rhinoceros" to Columbus for the first time. In the season to come, the drama group will present the Columbus premiere of "Gideon," the humorous but deeply moving drama by Paddy Chayefsky. A delightful comedy production of "Heaven Can Wait" will receive its premiere performance in Columbus. A full-fledged musical production with orchestra and chorus is also presented each season. This season's musical comedy presentation will be "Guys and Dolls."

Theatrical Training

The Gallery Players conduct workshops which are devoted to teaching drama techniques to would-be thespians or individuals with an interest in the theatre. Gene Gerrard, well known for his ability as an actor and director in the Central Ohio area, and also for his radio story-reading programs, will head a readers' theatre unit this season.

The group also sponsors a series of outstanding prize-winning international films that are open to the public. Following the presentation of the film, the audience is invited to remain and participate in a "kaffee-klatch kritique" in which the philosophical overtones and the cinema techniques of the movie are discussed. Harold M. Eisenstein, director of adult education for the Center, is also director of the Gallery Players.

Also in the cultural arts area is the Jewish Center Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Richard J. Suddendorf. New musicians are always invited to join the orchestra.

The orchestra rehearses every Thursday at 8 p.m. and gives two public concerts during the winter-fall season.

A choral group for men and women who can read music and enjoy singing rehearses under professional direction and also performs for the public.

Mrs. Nathan Nateman will be conducting a folk dance group which will be available for performances with community groups.

Concerts are presented for the public by other groups which are brought in by the music committee for the enjoyment of the community.

In keeping with the purposes of the Jewish Center, the Institute of Jewish Studies is conducted throughout the fall and winter season. Faculty for the Institute is drawn from the universities, from the local rabbinate, and from scholars in the community. Courses are conducted in such subjects as Hebrew language, history, Bible, philosophy, Zionism and sociology.

Family Education

One of the important areas for discussion is the Family Life Education sponsored by the center in cooperation with the Jewish Family Service. Lectures and discussions are held bi-monthly beginning in November on subjects dealing with problems affecting families, including teenage problems, marriage, and so forth. Book Clubs which meet alternweeks are a part of the National Great Books program. These meetings are led by trained leaders.

A public affairs club meets for enlightenment. Speakers are invited from various fields to discuss current problems.

Democratic discussions are held on problems which affect all people from the United Nations to federal problems of controversy.

The Golden Age Club, made up of more than 100 people over 65 years, has classes in reading and writing, art, bowling, problems of the aging, and other aspects of aging which make the lives of our older people more enjoyable.

The Jewish Center is a non-profit organization. Howard Schoenbaum is president, Mayer Rosenfeld is executive director, and Dr. Sam Stellman is assistant executive director.

YWCA Offers Day And Night Courses For Men And Women

Meeting the personal needs of adults is the focus of the adult education classes offered this fall by the YWCA. Whether the need is vocational, cultural, recreational, practical, or social the YWCA has informal adult courses both evening and daytime, both for the employed woman or man, or the housewife.

Vocational courses have been added this fall to help persons upgrade their job performance or to attain new skills and executive proficiency. These include Job Training in Human Relations, Salesmanship, Business English, and Cake Decorating. Men and women may avail themselves of these vocational-improvement classes and receive certification, in cooperation with the Columbus Board of Education.

Of a more personal nature is a class called "A Long Look at Retirement," arranged especially for persons 40 to 60 years of age who need to plan now for retirement. Psychological, economic, spiritual, recreational and physical factors which lead to happy years ahead will be considered under the leadership of Rev. James W. Bidle, director of First Community Village. "Living in Depth" is a discussion-directed course led by Rev. Maurice Clark, psychological counselor, who will consider how one reaches for the deeper values of today's world in building a personal faith.

Of a cultural nature are the language classes of French and Spanish, and an "Art Lark" group, studying art appreciation via visits to local art exhibits under the direction of Mrs. Oliver Bemis, local artist and teacher.

The recreational needs are met by classes in bridge, ballroom dancing, swimming, and a physical fitness program.

Photography and Decorative design, held at the Central YWCA, are fo a hobby type while knitting, dressmaking, beginning sewing, tailoring, slipcovers and upholstery are home arts of a very practical nature. Housewives who want to learn to sew or who need help in more proficient work in dressmaking or tailoring will find YWCA classes personalized and taught by graduate home economists with vocational teaching experience. Slip-covering and upholstering are courses adapted both to home and professional use.

All these classes are held at the Central YWCA of 65 S. Fourth-st, some in the evening and some in the daytime, most being of an eight to nine-week duration, two hours a week. Both employed persons and housewives, men and women are invited to join the class of their choice to add "dimension" to life.

The Hilltop YWCA center has a full schedule, many of a craft or home arts nature such as rug-hooking, crewel embroidery, interior decoration, flower arrangements, furniture finishing, Oil Painting and the Joy of Speaking, and Cake Decorating are also included.

At the Wildwood Center in the Westerville, Huber Ridge and Worthington areas are interest groups in weaving, ceramics, hooked rugs, knitting, bridge.

This very full schedule of fall activities and course fees are given in detail in an attractive YWCA brochure which is available by calling the YWCA, CA. 4-9121.

The commodity cookery course teaches registrants to use surplus commodity foods with skill for economy and variety.

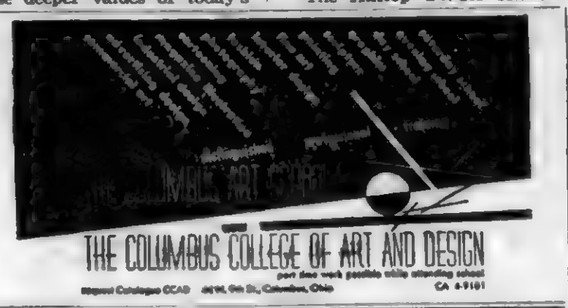
The beauty salon course teaches hair-care on a low-income budget and includes home permanents, shampoos, cuts and sets. The women do each other's hair.

The planned parenthood clinic provides information on planning one's family with confidence. Instruction and supplies are provided applicants at the clinic, which is operated in cooperation with the Planned Parenthood Association of Columbus.

Teaching area residents to plan and act with neighbors on common needs, such as problems of welfare, civil rights and community improvements, is another educational function at the Settlement House.

Initiative by groups within the Settlement, such as the South Side Family Council, and cooperation with all other community organizations, such as the Lincoln Park Community Council, Council of South Side Organizations, and the South Side Cooperative Association are encouraged.

Success in these two fields is exemplified by the Register-to-Vote Caravan; sending of delegations to city, county and state bodies to discuss issues; and visits to state senators and representatives and other officials.



The Strengthening the Family program of the South Side Settlement includes work with families in terms of their total living process and counselling for family difficulties; citizenship participation in programs for family protection; recreation, including dinners, trips and outings; and social living with other adults.

By BETTY DAFT

The nucleus of a junior college in Ohio might very well be starting in the north wing of Central High School this fall.

Columbus Area Technician School, launched by the Columbus School System and acclaimed by educators and industrial leaders, will offer two years of college level training for high school graduates in the fields of electronics, mechanical and business data processing.

And, a full month before the school's first quarter has opened, Director Clint Tatsch has received urgent requests from industry to add six other areas to the curriculum.

"The need for technicians is immediate," he said. "I already have a request for a data processing technician to operate an installation being planned in India."

"The school's success and its rapid expansion is assured by industry's demand for technicians. It is Ohio's legislators and its newly-created board of regents who will determine its future status.

If they accede to the government's request of 1958, authorizing federal aid to any state which will promote and conduct junior colleges or technology institutes, it is easily conceivable that the school could be the beginning of a new state education program.

Director Tatsch outlined possibilities for the Technician School's growth expected in the immediate future:

"[illegible] be expanded," he [illegible]certainty. "It must, [illegible] provide the trained [illegible]s so necessary in to[illegible]nomic structure."

There are also a number of other possibilities.

"Ideally, to be of most benefit to the most people, the School of Technology should be operated on a 12-hour basis, with classes scheduled whenever they are justified by registration. And this is definitely in the plans for the future.

"But for the present, the school will operate on a strict, six-hour, noon until 6 p.m. basis, with no study halls."

Academic, Trade, Leisure Classes Scheduled By Whitehall's Schools

Courses offered in the Whitehall City Schools' Adult Education Program are based upon the desires and needs of the people in Whitehall and the surrounding areas, according to William W. Shipe, director of Adult Education.

Fees established for courses are the same for all enrollees regardless of residence and are based on the fact that 15 students make up a good class size and should thus support the salary of the teacher involved. Fees are payable at the time of registration.

Diploma Program

Each year many adults receive their diplomas from the Whitehall program and, to some, this means almost immediate advancement on their jobs. Some students have carried only a credit or two, where some have been working with vigor for several semesters. Some of the adults were formerly local people while attending high school; oth[illegible] come from every corner of the United States.

Special courses are offered for industrial plants and other groups as their desires are made known to the Whitehall City Schools. The school either furnishes the instructors or the plant can furnish its own. In either event, the school works with the planning group and furnishes the facilities so that the teaching goal may be attained.

Typical of such classes are: an electrical course for a large railroad, a water treatment course for municipalities in Central Ohio, a tool design course for a large industry, a course in blueprint reading and elementary machine shop, and public relations, salesmanship, human relations and other similarly specialized courses.

Regular Courses

Regular offerings include such courses for credit as American Government, American History, English, Algebra, Mathematics for Business, English for Business, Physical Science, Office Machine Operation, Typing (both elementary and advanced), Gregg Shorthand (both elementary and advanced), and Bookkeeping.

Credit courses run 17 weeks and meet twice a week for one hour and 45 minutes per meeting. Tuition cost for such a semester is $15 for each credit course.

Other course offerings for self-improvement or for recreational purposes include: French, Spanish, Woodworking, Basic Drafting, Dressmaking and Sewing (both elementary and advanced), Floral Design (both elementary and advanced), Interior Design, Ceramics, Painting and Drawing, Sculpturing, Dancing (both elementary and advanced), Slimnastics for Women, and Elementary and Advanced Bridge. A new offering this semester is Getting Ready to Be a Mother.

Key Punch Course

Also meeting with considerable response are Public Speaking, Basic Electricity, Investment Fundamentals, Law for the Layman, Promotion and Public Relations, English for the Foreign-Born, and First Aid. Cooking and Cake Decorating should attract welcome newcomers to the curriculum.

The Key Punch Course has proven to be a valuable training program for those who are ready for employment almost immediately upon graduation from the course. Recently, IBM key punch operators have been in demand.

Brochures are available upon request describing each course as to content, meeting times and cost.

The Whitehall Adult Education program is offered as a service to the community. It is a non-profit approach to helping people attain their high school diplomas and to improve themselves physically, mentally, and financially. Its motto, while used as humor, is centered around the Pennsylvania Dutch saying: "Too soon we get old: Too late we get smart."

Registration for the Fall semester will be accepted from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Whitehall-Yearling guidance office on Sept. 9, 10, 11 and 12. Classes will begin the week of Sept. 23.

Robert W. Crabbs is the superintendent of the Whitehall City School system.

Seventeen-week credit courses will be offered at the indicated times on the following evenings:

Mondays and Wednesdays, 6:30 to 8:15—Algebra, English for Business, Typing I, Mathematics for Business, Geometry, and Chemistry, and Mondays and Wednesdays, 8:15 to 10—High School English and Shorthand.

Tuesdays and Thursdays, 6:30 to 8:15—Shorthand II, American Government, General bookkeeping, Basic Drafting and Physical Science, and Thursdays, 7 to 9, Sewing and 8:15 to 10 — Typing II and American History.

Twelve-week courses are: Thursdays, Sewing and Dressmaking II, French and Basic Electricity; and Tuesdays, 7 to 9—Spanish, Public Speaking and Cooking; Wednesdays, 7 to 9—Sewing I, Promotion and Public Relations, and English for the Foreign-Born; and Mondays, 7 to 9:30—Woodworking and Hobbycraft.

Eight-week courses are as follows:

Mondays, 7 to 8:30—Elementary Bridge, Getting Ready to Be a Mother, First Aid, Floral Design (advanced), and Square Dancing; Mondays, 8:30 to 10 — Advanced Bridge; Tuesdays, 7 to 8:30—Floral Designs (elementary), Interior Design, Cake Decorating, and Slimnastics for Women.

Wednesdays, 7 to 9—Ceramics, Photography for the Amateur and Law for the Layman; Thursdays, 7 to 9—Painting and Drawing and Beginning Dancing; Thursdays, 8:30 to 10—Advanced Dancing, Investment Fundamentals.

A four-week IBM Key Course is offered from 7 to 9 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays and on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Skill ready for employment can be developed during this period.

Whitehall welcomes you.

New Tech School Starts

Applications for the new Columbus Area Technician School, sponsored by the Columbus Board of Education in cooperation with local area industries, should be sent directly to the school at 245 W. Broad-st, according to Clinton E. Tatsch, director.

The new school will train technicians for the fields of electronics technology, business data processing and mechanical technology.

Ninety students, 30 in each of the three training areas, will be accepted by the school, Tatsch said. "We are pleased at the interest which students are showing in our school," he added.

Applications for the technician school can be obtained from the school office, or by calling 221-3766.

Special Test

Standards for the school require that an applicant must be a high school graduate, have had a year of algebra and pass a test which is administered by the Board of Education.

CD Education For Survival Courses Set Again For Fall

"To recognize the possibilities of nuclear war in the missile age, without our citizens knowing what they should do and where they should go if bombs begin to fall, would be a failure of responsibility." President John F. Kennedy.

Civil Defense Adult Education is a joint Federal-state project. The Federal Government finances the program and is responsible for its overall planning and direction.

Within each state, the program is conducted under the direction of the chief state school officer of the State Department of Education by means of a contract with the U.S. Office of Education. In most cases the chief state school officer delegates the responsibility to a State Civil Defense Adult Education (CDAE) Coordinator.

The CDAE Coordinator and his staff work with school officials, community organizations, community leaders, and others to organize classes, inform the community about the classes, and to encourage attendance. The CDAE Coordinator and his staff also work with school officials in recruiting and training teachers for these courses. Instructional materials are supplied by the Federal Government. CDAE state staffs and local CDAE teachers are paid from Federal funds.

The realization that national survival depends on the knowledge and action of individuals led to the establishment of the Civil Defense Adult Education Program (CDAEP). This program is designed to give adult citizens a basic understanding of Civil Defense and the action they must take to fulfill their individual, family, and community responsibilities for defense and in times of natural disasters.

It alerts and informs the class participants about the hazards inherent in living in our nuclear age and provides them with the information necessary for personal and family protection in disaster situations. The course is made available to out-of-school youth and adults in communities throughout the country as a result of local, state, and Federal education leadership and cooperation.

The State of Ohio inaugurated the CDAE Program under the title "Education for Survival" on Feb. 1, 1962, and subsequently a State Coordinator, three Assistant Coordinators and a clerical staff have been employed. During the year that followed and up to July 1 of this year, 44 counties participated as a result of information being furnished school administrators. This resulted in 56 teacher training classes being organized whereby 918 teachers were certified to teach CDAE classes. Approximately 25 per cent of this group conducted 281 adult classes in which 7,279 adults were enrolled. Of these, 5,289 completed the full 12-hour course, "Education for Survival."

The following schools in Franklin County conducted "Education for Survival" classes which were taught by teachers who were trained by the CDAE staff of the State Department of Education in a teacher training class at Worthington, Ohio:

Bexley High School (3 classes), Dublin High School (1 class), Grandview Heights High School (1 class), Grove City High School (1 class), Prairie Lincoln Elementary School (2 classes), Upper Arlington High School (2 classes), and Westerville High School (3 classes).

As a result of these 13 classes, 187 Franklin County residents have received certificates in "Education for Survival."

It is expected "Education for Survival" classes will be offered in Franklin County again this fall. Therefore, anyone interested in taking the course should contact their superintendent of schools or Leonard G. Morse, Coordinator of Civil Defense Adult Education, G-4 State Office Building, Columbus 15, Ohio, Ca. 1-1265, ext. 8570.

While it is true that liars figure and figures can be made to lie, it is apparently true today that our courts can give about any kind of a decision and justify it.

If we are breaking a law when we sing the fourth stanza of "America," then I'm proud to be an outlaw.

The fourth stanza of "America" goes:

YWCA Offers Day And Night Courses For Men And Women

Meeting the personal needs of adults is the focus of the adult education classes offered this fall by the YWCA. Whether the need is vocational, cultural, recreational, practical, or social the YWCA has informal adult courses both evening and daytime, both for the employed woman or man, or the housewife.

Vocational courses have been added this fall to help persons upgrade their job performance or to attain new skills and executive proficiency. These include Job Training in Human Relations, Salesmanship, Business English, and Cake Decorating. Men and women may avail themselves of these vocational-improvement classes and receive certification, in cooperation with the Columbus Board of Education.

Of a more personal nature is a class called "A Long Look at Retirement," arranged especially for persons 40 to 60 years of age who need to plan now for retirement. Psychological, economic, spiritual, recreational and physical factors which lead to happy years ahead will be considered under the leadership of Rev. James W. Bidle, director of First Community Village. "Living in Depth" is a discussion-directed course led by Rev. Maurice Clark, psychological counselor, who will consider how one reaches for the deeper values of today's world in building a personal faith.

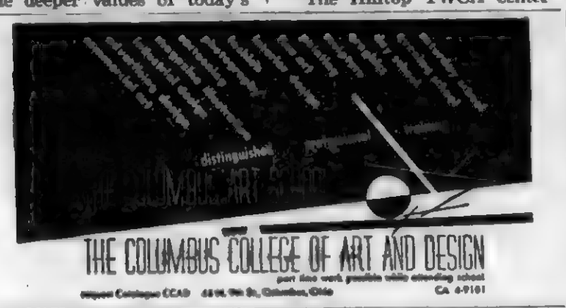
Of a cultural nature are the language classes of French and Spanish, and an "Art Lark" group, studying art appreciation via visits to local art exhibits under the direction of Mrs. Oliver Bemis, local artist and teacher.

The recreational needs are met by classes in bridge, ballroom dancing, swimming, and a physical fitness program.

Photography and Decorative design, held at the Central YWCA, are fo a hobby type while knitting, dressmaking, beginning sewing, tailoring, slipcovers and upholstery are home arts of a very practical nature. Housewives who want to learn to sew or who need help in more proficient work in dressmaking or tailoring will find YWCA classes personalized and taught by graduate home economists with vocational teaching experience. Slip-covering and upholstering are courses adapted both to home and professional use.

All these classes are held at the Central YWCA of 65 S. Fourth-st, some in the evening and some in the daytime, most being of an eight to nine-week duration, two hours a week. Both employed persons and housewives, men and women are invited to join the class of their choice to add "dimension" to life.

The Hilltop YWCA center has a full schedule, many of a craft or home arts nature such as rug-hooking, crewel embroidery, interior decoration, flower arrangements, furniture finishing, Oil Painting and the Joy of Speaking, and Cake Decorating are also included.



At the Wildwood Center in the Westerville, Huber Ridge and Worthington areas are interest groups in weaving, ceramics, hooked rugs, knitting, bridge.

This very full schedule of fall activities and course fees are given in detail in an attractive YWCA brochure which is available by calling the YWCA, CA. 4-9121.

Courses at the Central YWCA, day of week offered, beginning date, and time of day are as follows:

Art Larks — Monday, Sept. 30, 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.; Bridge I — Wednesday, Oct. 2, 9:30 to 11 a.m.; Bridge II — Wednesday, Oct. 2, 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; French II — Wednesday, Oct. 2, 9:30 to 10:45 a.m.; French III — Wednesday, Oct. 2, 10:45 a.m. to 12 noon; Slipcovers — Wednesday, Oct. 2, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.; Upholstering — Wednesday, Oct. 2, 1 to 3 p.m.; Bridge I — Tuesday, Oct. 1, 7 to 8:30 p.m.; Bridge II — Tuesday, Oct. 1, 8:30 to 10 p.m.; Business English — Monday, Sept. 30, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Academic, Trade, Leisure Classes Scheduled By Whitehall's Schools

Courses offered in the Whitehall City Schools' Adult Education Program are based upon the desires and needs of the people in Whitehall and the surrounding areas, according to William W. Shipe, director of Adult Education.

Fees established for courses are the same for all enrollees regardless of residence and are based on the fact that 15 students make up a good class size and should thus support the salary of the teacher involved. Fees are payable at the time of registration.

Diploma Program

Each year many adults receive their diplomas from the Whitehall program and, to some, this means almost immediate advancement on their jobs. Some students have carried only a credit or two, where some have been working with vigor for several semesters. Some of the adults were formerly local people while attending high school; oth[illegible] come from every corner of the United States.

Special courses are offered for industrial plants and other groups as their desires are made known to the Whitehall City Schools. The school either furnishes the instructors or the plant can furnish its own. In either event, the school works with the planning group and furnishes the facilities so that the teaching goal may be attained.

Typical of such classes are: an electrical course for a large railroad, a water treatment course for municipalities in Central Ohio, a tool design course for a large industry, a course in blueprint reading and elementary machine shop, and public relations, salesmanship, human relations and other similarly specialized [illegible]

Regular Courses

Regular offerings include such courses for credit as American Government, American History, English, Algebra, Mathematics for Business, English for Business, Physical Science, Office Machine Operation, Typing (both elementary and advanced), Gregg Shorthand (both elementary and advanced), and Bookkeeping.

Credit courses run 17 weeks and meet twice a week for one hour and 45 minutes per meeting. Tuition cost for such a semester is $15 for each credit course.

Other course offerings for self-improvement or for recreational purposes include: French, Spanish, Woodworking, Basic Drafting, Dressmaking and Sewing (both elementary and advanced), Floral Design (both elementary and advanced), Interior Design, Ceramics, Painting and Drawing, Sculpturing, Dancing (both elementary and advanced), Slimnastics for Women, and Elementary and Advanced Bridge. A new offering this semester is Getting Ready to Be a Mother.

Key Punch Course

Also meeting with considerable response are Public Speaking, Basic Electricity, Investment Fundamentals, Law for the Layman, Promotion and Public Relations, English for the Foreign-Born, and First Aid. Cooking and Cake Decorating should attract welcome newcomers to the curriculum.

The Key Punch Course has proven to be a valuable training program for those who are ready for employment almost immediately upon graduation from the course. Recently, IBM key punch operators have been in demand.

Brochures are available upon request describing each course as to content, meeting times and cost.

The Whitehall Adult Education program is offered as a service to the community. It is a non-profit approach to helping people attain their high school diplomas and to improve themselves physically, mentally, and financially. Its motto, while used as humor, is centered around the Pennsylvania Dutch saying: "Too soon we get old: Too late we get smart."

Registration for the Fall semester will be accepted from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Whitehall-Yearling guidance office on Sept. 9, 10, 11 and 12. Classes will begin the week of Sept. 23.

Robert W. Crabbs is the superintendent of the Whitehall City School system.

Seventeen-week credit courses will be offered at the indicated times on the following evenings:

Mondays and Wednesdays, 6:30 to 8:15—Algebra, English for Business, Typing I, Mathematics for Business, Geometry, and Chemistry, and Mondays and Wednesdays, 8:15 to 10—High School English and Shorthand.

Tuesdays and Thursdays, 6:30 to 8:15—Shorthand II, American Government, General bookkeeping, Basic Drafting and Physical Science, and Thursdays, 7 to 9, Sewing and 8:15 to 10 — Typing II and American History.

Twelve-week courses are: Thursdays, Sewing and Dressmaking II, French and Basic Electricity; and Tuesdays, 7 to 9—Spanish, Public Speaking and Cooking; Wednesdays, 7 to 9—Sewing I, Promotion and Public Relations, and English for the Foreign-Born; and Mondays, 7 to 9:30—Woodworking and Hobbycraft.

Eight-week courses are as follows:

Wednesdays, 7 to 9—Ceramics, Photography for the Amateur and Law for the Layman; Thursdays, 7 to 9—Painting and Drawing and Beginning Dancing; Thursdays, 8:30 to 10—Advanced Dancing, Investment Fundamentals.

A four-week IBM Key Course is offered from 7 to 9 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays and on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Skill ready for employment can be developed during this period.

Whitehall welcomes you.

CD Education For Survival Courses Set Again For Fall

"To recognize the possibilities of nuclear war in the missile age, without our citizens knowing what they should do and where they should go if bombs begin to fall, would be a failure of responsibility." President John F. Kennedy.

Civil Defense Adult Education is a joint Federal-state project. The Federal Government finances the program and is responsible for its overall planning and direction.

Within each state, the program is conducted under the direction of the chief state school officer of the State Department of Education by means of a contract with the U.S. Office of Education. In most cases the chief state school officer delegates the responsibility to a State Civil Defense Adult Education (CDAE) Coordinator.

The CDAE Coordinator and his staff work with school officials, community organizations, community leaders, and others to organize classes, inform the community about the classes, and to encourage attendance. The CDAE Coordinator and his staff also work with school officials in recruiting and training teachers for these courses. Instructional materials are supplied by the Federal Government. CDAE state staffs and local CDAE teachers are paid from Federal funds.

The realization that national survival depends on the knowledge and actions of individuals led to the establishment of the Civil Defense Adult Education Program (CDAEP). This program is designed to give adult citizens a basic understanding of Civil Defense and the action they must take to fulfill their individual, family, and community responsibilities for defense and in times of natural disasters.

It alerts and informs the class participants about the hazards inherent in living in our nuclear age and provides them with the information necessary for personal and family protection in disaster situations. The course is made available to out-of-school youth and adults in communities throughout the country as a result of local, state, and Federal education leadership and cooperation.

The State of Ohio inaugurated the CDAE Program under the title "Education for Survival" on Feb. 1, 1962, and subsequently a State Coordinator, three Assistant Coordinators and a clerical staff have been employed. During the year that followed and up to July 1 of this year, 44 counties participated as a result of information being furnished school administrators. This resulted in 56 teacher training classes being organized whereby 918 teachers were certified to teach CDAE classes. Approximately 25 per cent of this group conducted 281 adult classes in which 7,279 adults were enrolled. Of these, 5,289 completed the full 12-hour course, "Education for Survival."

The following schools in Franklin County conducted "Education for Survival" classes which were taught by teachers who were trained by the CDAE staff of the State Department of Education in a teacher training class at Worthington, Ohio:

Bexley High School (3 classes), Dublin High School (1 class), Grandview Heights High School (1 class), Grove City High School (1 class), Prairie Lincoln Elementary School (2 classes), Upper Arlington High School (2 classes), and Westerville High School (3 classes).

As a result of these 13 classes, 187 Franklin County residents have received certificates in "Education for Survival."

It is expected "Education for Survival" classes will be offered in Franklin County again this fall. Therefore, anyone interested in taking the course should contact their superintendent of schools or Leonard G. Morse, Coordinator of Civil Defense Adult Education, G-4 State Office Building, Columbus 15, Ohio, Ca. 1-1265, ext. 8570.

Standards for the school require that an applicant must be a high school graduate, have had a year of algebra and pass a test which is administered by the Board of Education.

Dale Carnegie Course Is Active In Columbus Area

For those who have difficulty in speaking before groups, whether they are fellow workers, the boss and his associates, or civic and social clubs, the Dale Carnegie Course is the largest single organization in the United States to develop hidden abilities.

More than 100,000 persons in all walks of life graduated last year from the three courses offered by the organization.

The Dale Carnegie Sales Course, offered for men and women who sell, thoroughly covers basic selling techniques. Those enrolled in this program are guaranteed a 10 per cent increase in sales no matter how well or poorly they sell before taking the course.

The Dorothy Carnegie Course is offered only to women to aid in the development of their personalities.

Leadership and sales training associates who present the course also offer organizations and companies an Inspirational-Motivational Clinic at no charge. This clinic is designed to assist key personnel to become even more valuable to their organizations by covering the subjects of human relations, memory, effective speaking and enthusiasm.

Ken Harrison

Ken Harrison, associate sponsor in this area, announced the Dorothy Carnegie Course is now being offered for the first time in Columbus.

The nucleus of a junior college in Ohio might very well be starting in the north wing of Central High School this fall.

Columbus Area Technician School, launched by the Columbus School System and acclaimed by educators and industrial leaders, will offer two years of college level training for high school graduates in the fields of electronics, mechanical and business data processing.

And, a full month before the school's first quarter has opened, Director Clint Tatsch has received urgent requests from industry to add six other areas to the curriculum.

"The need for technicians is immediate," he said. "I already have a request for a data processing technician to operate an installation being planned in India."

"The school's success and its rapid expansion is assured by industry's demand for technicians. It is Ohio's legislators and its newly-created board of regents who will determine its future status.

If they accede to the government's request of 1958, authorizing federal aid to any state which will promote and conduct junior colleges or technology institutes, it is easily conceivable that the school could be the beginning of a new state education program.

Director Tatsch outlined possibilities for the Technician School's growth expected in the immediate future:

There are also a number of other possibilities.

"Ideally, to be of most benefit to the most people, the School of Technology should be operated on a 12-hour basis, with classes scheduled whenever they are justified by registration. And this is definitely in the plans for the future.

"But for the present, the school will operate on a strict, six-hour, noon until 6 p.m. basis, with no study halls."

The great gap between the "know-how" of engineers and scientists, and the "know-how" of skilled craftsmen has

While it is true that liars figure and figures can be made to lie, it is apparently true today that our courts can give about any kind of a decision and justify it.

If we are breaking a law when we sing the fourth stanza of "America," then I'm proud to be an outlaw.

The fourth stanza of "America" goes:

"Our Father's God to Thee,
"Author of liberty,

"Long may our land be bright

"Great God our King!"

Many Kiwanis clubs open their meetings with this ...

Let's sing it more often!

4 Out Of 10 Can't Read— So They Can't Get Jobs

By MABLE HARTMAN

Again the Hartley Newspapers in cooperation with the Adult Educational Council are beating their back-to-school tom-toms for the benefit of Franklin County adults. This issue is to alert the public to the diversified sources where any qualified adult, regardless of race or color may continue his education in a chosen field. "EDUCATION UNLIMITED" — dynamic words of mental imagery to call the discontented adult to action!

Yet, out of every 10 persons applying, at least four will be counted out. The shocking truth is that they cannot read. They are victims of the most colossal error-in-teaching-reading that has ever prostrated any school system in the history of education. They are the orphans of a storm that is still raging. The price that these near-illiterates are paying as they lumber through life in despair, is far too high for a proud country such as this United States to exact from its helpless ones.

In a newspaper item dated Aug. 1, 1963, President Kennedy urges all parents to make every effort to see that their children go back to high school in September to curb the growing "blight" of school drop-outs. The second paragraph of this short item contains the joker. Quote: "To combat the situation, Kennedy announced he is allocating $250,000 from his presidential emergency fund to help schools throughout the country provide services of guidance counselors during the month of August when they normally would be on vacation."

How woefully ignorant is our worried President of the facts (with few exceptions) causing these drop-outs! Why waste another $250,000 on more educational gobbledygook?

Another example of what President Kennedy regards as national blight, and rightly so: A news item dated Aug. 1, '63: Place—here in Columbus, Ohio—"of 586 applicants for police force jobs . . . 28 qualified."

Last year, deeply concerned over the wrong direction our public schools are taking in teaching young children to read, I called upon the parents of children who were having reading difficulties, to read "The Case For Basic Education" by James D. Koerner; "Tomorrow's Illiterates" by Charles W. Wolcutt and "Swiss Schools and Ours" by Admiral Rickover.

Once again I urge discouraged parents to read these books. They are all available in our public libraries. Those interested in forming a study group furthering the cause of basic education in our city, contact me through the Hartley Newspapers.

Let us make a beginning even though a small one to rid ourselves of this national blight. President Kennedy should be urged to put his $250,000 in a federal fund to pay the salaries of competent remedial reading teachers. There should be at least two of such in every public school in the country. Until this problem is tackled head on at the grass-roots level, tragic human beings will continue to trod their windowless tunnels of ignorance. The only light they can look forward to reaching somewhere along the way is the light in the window of some welfare agency, financed by the overburdened American tax-payer.

Free Course In Piloting Is Offered

The number of boating accidents recently in Ohio points up need for new skippers to take the free courses in piloting to be offered by the Columbus Power Squadron, starting at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 4, at Sisson Hall, Ohio State University, according to Paul Roush, commander of the educational organization which is a unit of the United States Power Squadron.

Rules of the road, safety equipment, compasses, how to read charts, navigational lights, and other vital subjects are included in the course. Classes will be held once a week for 13 weeks.

Husbands and wives are encouraged to take the course together and use the same textbook. It is not necessary to be a boat owner.

Anyone wishing to attend the classes is urged to make application to: Ralph E. Brock, chairman of the piloting course, 245 Larimer Avenue, Worthington, Ohio.

We Still Like It

While it is true that liars figure and figures can be made to lie, it is apparently true today that our courts can give about any kind of a decision and justify it.

If we are breaking a law when we sing the fourth stanza of "America," then I'm proud to be an outlaw.

The fourth stanza of "America" goes:

"Our Father's God to Thee,
"Author of liberty,
"To Thee we sing:
"Long may our land be bright
"With freedom's holy light,
"Protect us with Thy might
"Great God our King!"

Many Kiwanis clubs open their meetings with this stanza.

Let's sing it more often!

Fairgrounds Meet Slated For Civitan

Regular dinner meeting of the Eastern Civitan Club on Wednesday, Aug. 28, will be held at the Youth Center on the Ohio State Fairgrounds and will include a visit to the "Faces of Freedom" exhibit.

The exhibit, co-sponsored at the State Fair by Ohio District of Civitan International and the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., consists of 74 oil paintings portraying outstanding events and people in American history. Leading commercial artists were commissioned to do the paintings by the John Hancock Mutual Insurance Co.

The Ohio State Fair showing marks the first fair stop for the exhibit. The exhibit will have been viewed in only seven cities in the country prior to the Columbus visit. The American Heritage Foundation is providing transportation for the exhibit.

WHITEHALL PROJECTS

Water Line Work Set; Resurfacing To Follow

Water line work in E. Broad-st, between the west and east corporation lines of Whitehall, will begin Monday, Aug. 26, according to an announcement by Robert B. Mickey, Whitehall service director.

Granite Construction Co., 3800 Sullivant-av, was awarded the contract for the work on a low bid of $8,270, Mickey said. The water line project, scheduled for completion by Sept. 9, will consist of installation of service lines to undeveloped property on E. Broad-st.

Mickey said the service lines will extend beyond the curbing, thus eliminating the necessity of tearing up the roadway when line repair work is required.

The project is being coordinated with a resurfacing project to be put under contract by the Ohio Department of Highways. Highway Department officials have announced that bids on the resurfacing work will be opened on Tuesday, Aug. 27. Resurfacing of the 1.68-mile section of E. Broad-st through Whitehall is to be completed by Oct. 31, a Highway Department spokesman said.

Traffic will be maintained during both E. Broad-st projects.

Total cost of the resurfacing project will be announced following the Tuesday bid opening session.

Whitehall will assume 20 per cent of the total cost of the project, including engineering and contingency expenses. The remaining 80 per cent of the total cost will be borne by the state.

Whitehall's share of project costs will be divided between the city and owners of property abutting the project area. The city will pay two per cent of the total cost of work at intersections, while the property owners will be assessed for the remainder.

Mickey reported that the water line contract also calls for installation of six fire hydrants. The Granite firm bid was the lowest of three received on the project, Mickey said.

Jackpot Leaps To $162

The "Confederate" money jackpot offered each week by this newspaper has taken another big jump to 162 bills.

Only one hit for a lone "Confederate" dollar was claimed last week. Leslie Glover, 243 N. Lowell-rd, broke the three-week no-claims deadlock. The $24 balance was added to the old 138 bill balance to enrich the jackpot to $162 in "Confederate" cash.

To hit the jackpot for the "Confederate" cash, which can be spent just like U. S. tender with any Hartley Newspapers advertiser, a reader need only find the "Confederate" emblem hidden in a Hartley newspaper.

To win the big money you must find the "5" emblem.

It looks exactly like the one printed in this column but is printed in a bright color other than black. It will be found on an inside page of only one of the more than 72,000 Hartley Newspapers published each week. It is clearly placed in the white space of an advertisement.

To claim the jackpot the finder must bring the entire paper containing the "5" em-

Whitehall Prepares Garbage Ordinances

Whitehall city officials and members of Council will soon decide if the city is to go into the garbage collection business or continue to buy collections on a contract basis. If the latter (and most probable) course is followed, existing contract terms will undergo a major overhaul.

Ray Shipley, councilman-at-large and chairman of Council's Service Committee, explained the decisions that must be made before the present garbage collection contract expires on Dec. 31.

Shipley said that Whitehall Solicitor Paul Hayther has been requested to prepare two ordinances dealing with garbage collection contracts. One ordinance would set forth requirements by the city for curb pick-up of garbage, while the second would deal with back yard pick-up.

Council has also requested a report from Service Director Robert B. Mickey detailing cost estimates for equipment, personnel and maintenance should the city decide to assume the responsibility for garbage collection.

Shipley said that quality of service and economy of operation will be prime factors in determining whether the city collects garbage or continues to operate on a contract basis.

Significant changes to be written into the proposed new garbage collection ordinances would:

Eliminate apartments from residential classification, listing all buildings with two or more rental units as commercial properties.

Eliminate the "exclusive" collection franchise currently in force, allowing commercial customers to choose their own garbage haulers.

Require the city's contract hauler to provide a map and schedule of pick-up activities.

Prohibit garbage collection on Sundays and holidays, and limit all pick-ups to daytime hours.

Include a "special loads" clause in the city's contract, allowing special service for excessive refuse during such activities as moving and spring cleaning.

Require licensing of garbage and refuse haulers who do business within the city.

Shipley said that the switch of apartments to the commercial classification would save the city approximately $25,000 annually, but would not pass the cost on to apartment residents. Apartment owners, he said, would continue to pay for back yard pick-up for all units.

Under the present contract,

By BETTY DAFT

The nucleus of a junior college in Ohio might very well be starting in the north wing of Central High School this fall.

Columbus Area Technician School, launched by the Columbus School System and acclaimed by educators and industrial leaders, will offer two years of college level training for high school graduates in the fields of electronics, mechanical and business data processing.

And, a full month before the school's first quarter has opened, Director Clint Tatsch has received urgent requests from industry to add six other areas to the curriculum.

"The need for technicians is immediate," he said. "I already have a request for a data processing technician to operate an installation being planned in India."

"The school's success and its rapid expansion is assured by industry's demand for technicians. It is Ohio's legislators and its newly-created board of regents who will determine its future status.

If they accede to the government's request of 1958, authorizing federal aid to any state which will promote and conduct junior colleges or technology institutes, it is easily conceivable that the school could be the beginning of a new state education program.

Director Tatsch outlined possibilities for the Technician School's growth expected in the immediate future:

"It will be expanded," he said with certainty. "It must, in order to provide the trained technicians so necessary in today's economic structure."

"An entire building will be needed, and soon." He speculated on a number of locations:

"Columbus schools was the first public agency to file a request with the federal agency for government land occupied by Fort Hayes. If this land should go to the schools, it would be a possible site for a new School of Technology.

There are also a number of other possibilities.

"Ideally, to be of most benefit to the most people, the School of Technology should be operated on a 12-hour basis, with classes scheduled whenever they are justified by registration. And this is definitely in the plans for the future.

"But for the present, the school will operate on a strict, six-hour, noon until 6 p.m. basis, with no study halls."

The great gap between the "know-how" of engineers and scientists, and the "know-how" of skilled craftsmen has

Laborers Who Worked Sunday Forfeit Bonds

Four workmen charged by Whitehall Police with unlawfully engaging in common labor on Sunday forfeited $25 bonds Tuesday in Columbus Municipal Court.

Whitehall Attorney Lewis S. Bower represented the city in pressing charges filed by police on July 28.

Bower said that three of the men were doing carpentry work, while the fourth was painting a storeroom.

The men were identified as George M. McNamer and Lawrence G. Brooks, both of Columbus; Amsey V. Hines, Jr., Hilliard, and Donald W. Saffel, Westerville.

Whitehall Mayor Walter B. Moling reported that there have not been any "Sunday Blue Law" arrests over the past two Sundays. Moling said the city will continue to enforce the Sunday closing laws consistent with availability of manpower.

"I Thought A Cleaner Could Remove A Paint Stain"
—Mrs. F. R. G.

Dear Mrs. F. R. G.:

He can. However, if you let the paint stain stay too long, he may remove the fabric along with the stain. Paint stains, like all others, should be removed promptly by a professional. Fresh paint isn't too difficult to remove, but if it remains a week, a month or longer, it has time to "set" and a chemical change makes it almost a part of the garment itself. Then removal is difficult without damage to the garment.

The same is true of all stains. Have them removed as soon as possible by a professional cleaner. Frequently, a "do-it-yourself" job will make it harder to remove. For instance, even if the old idea of removing an ink stain with milk proved successful, you'd still have to remove the milk stain. And if the ink is from a ball point pen, the wetting by milk can cause damage that cannot be repaired.

The best treatment for any stain, any time, is to brush it off lightly and get the garment to your drycleaner as soon as possible. Tell him what happened and watch him go to work. You'll be amazed at his skill, the implements and spot-removing ingredients he has for different stains, fibers and colors. You'll be equally amazed at the results he obtains for you.

long been recognized in our country's industrial structure.

Forging a strong link in communication between our and wil be teaching classes country's trained minds and its skilled hands is the purpose of junior colleges or institutes of technology.

Graduate technicians, schooled to understand some of the "why" in an engineer's design, as well as the "how" that a craftsman knows, is equipped to make the plan workable.

"A technician is a translator," Tatsch explained, "between an engineer and a layman. He interprets what an engineer wants in terms the man on the floor can understand.

"The program calls for a unique instructor. He must be certified by the state to teach at college level, and must also have had experience in industry."

Tatsch's own professional background includes 18 years of industrial engineering in Columbus as superintendent of the Kilbourne-Jacobs Manufacturing Co., methods engineer for Jeffrey Mfg. Co., time study manager for Columbus Bolt and Forging Co., and process engineer for Dennison Engineering.

He has also been a member of the faculty of Ohio State University, director of the Manpower Training program for the State Department of Education and, before being named director of the Columbus Area School of Technology, was coordinator of the Manpower Training program for the Columbus School System.

LETTER REPRINTED

New Crop Of 'Rickeys' Begin School This Year

(Ed. Note: School bells will ring again soon, and for the first time many small children will begin the hazardous experience of crossing streets. The following letter, written seven years ago by Whitehall Mayor Walter B. Moling, and published then, expresses the concern of a grandfather for the safety of his grandson. Its message is as well worth the attention of motorists today as it was at the first writing, for there will always be "Rickeys" starting to school for the first time.)

Dear Driver:

"You don't know my impetuous young grandson, Rickey, who is just six years old and will start his first year of school in a few days.

"You haven't been privileged to see how he can turn suddenly from eager enthusiasm to solemn unconcern to youthful wisdom. No, you couldn't know him or love him as I do —that's why it seems strange that I will soon have to trust his life to you.

"Yes, to you — because in a short while he will march off to school regularly. He'll be crossing streets, playing along the way and around the school. I hoped I was preparing him when I threw in some free advice about the safe way to do these things — in answering his questions about all the wonders of the first grade.

"But this is pretty new to him and he may make mistakes. Rickey isn't irresponsible, yet he is not responsible. For him, the crushing dangers of traffic are not real. I can tell him, but it would be like describing the Giant in the story of Jack and the Beanstalk.

"But you know, and you can watch out for him. You can watch for him as he plays on the way home from school and you see him ready to cross the street. You can be ready to stop if he should dash out from behind a parked car or follow a rolling ball into your path. If you remember how dear he is to me, you will drive slowly through every school zone.

"Since you have been granted the privilege to drive, I have to assume that you will do these things. But will you?

"Will you drive carefully wherever there are children, not only because it is your legal responsibility, but because you care as much as I do that the frightening roar of traffic death—of the Giant — never becomes real for a little fellow who has so much ahead of him to learn?"

Sincerely yours,
Mayor Walter B. Moling,
A Grandfather.

Five Little Birds

This has been a week of anxiety.

Earlier this year we experienced the sad episode of a couple of wrens who built a nest in our strawberry patch and again in the raspberry patch and each time had their young ones snatched up by a marauding blue jay.

Not to be defeated, the couple moved into our garage and built a cozy nest in son Don's football helmet hanging on a wall near the door. Five eggs were laid and five babies born.

Monday the five young ones burst out of the nest like spontaneous combustion and into maturity. Our immediate problem was that of controlling Thomas Cat and removing him for the area until the wee ones are able to navigate for themselves.

Now the summer is brighter. We are happy with mother and father wren and their fine young family.

Garbage—

Shipley said, Whitehall pays .89 for each residential unit, while the contract hauler is permitted to charge the additional rate for back yard pick-up at apartment buildings and other multiple unit dwellings.

Elimination of "exclusive" pick-up rights, Shipley feels will allow commercial customers to seek more competitive bids for pick-up service.

He said the map and schedule requirements could be augmented by mailing of schedule cards to residential users covered by the city contract. The city would assume the cost of such service, he said.

Shipley said any proposed contract should include specific requirements for annual residential unit counts to establish costs for the succeeding year of the contract. He called for a nominal licensing fee for haulers other than the city's contract collector. He said the fee should be to offset the costs of inspections to determine if equipment being used meets specifications and is in safe condition.

If the city continues garbage collection on a contract basis, Shipley said, he would advocate maintenance of the three-year term for any subsequent contract.

Capital University Appoints Gronlund To Executive Staff

Robert B. Gronlund

President H. L. Yochum of Capital University has announced the appointment of Robert B. Gronlund as vice-president in charge of development. He replaces Edward Larson, who resigned from Capital's administrative staff to accept a position with Luther College, Decorah, Iowa.

Gronlund, 37, is a native of Duluth, Minn., and is a former executive with the American Lutheran Church, Minneapolis. He holds a bachelor of arts degree from Wartburg College, received in 1949, and a bachelor of divinity degree from Wartburg Seminary in 1953. He is now a candidate for doctorate at the University of Southern California.

An ordained minister, Gronlund served Newport Harbor Lutheran Church, Newport, Calif., from 1953 to 1956. For the next three years he was executive secretary of the Inter-Church Fellowship, a religious organization for students of Los Angeles City College sponsored by the Lutheran, Methodist and Presbyterian churches.

Gronlund served as assistant to the president and religion professor at California Lutheran College, Thousand Oaks, Calif. from 1959 to 1962. For the past year he has served as director of the American Lutheran Church Foundation at the church's headquarters in Minneapolis.

Yochum said that at Capital he will take charge of the university's $10 million "Decade of Decision" expansion program which includes the $2 million campaign now underway for the Columbus area.

A World War II veteran, Gronlund served with the 89th Infantry Division in the European Theatre. He was awarded the Combat Infantryman's Badge. Gronlund is married and the father of four children ranging in age from three to 11.

Yochum said the new vice-president will be on campus by Sept. 1. Capital officially opens its 1963-64 school year Sept. 3 with a staff meeting.

Price-Support For Corn Crop Loans Announced

Price-support loans for the 1963 corn corp will average $1.11 per bushel in Franklin County, Carl W. Schacht, chairman, Franklin Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, has announced. This loan rate, plus an 18-cents-per-bushel special price-support payment, gives a total price-support rate of $1.29 per bushel for 1963-crop corn in the county. This compares with a 1962 support of $1.24 per bushel.

The chairmen reminded growers that price support on the 1963 crop of corn will be available only to farmers participating in the 1963 feed grain program. The total price support for 1963 will include not only loans and purchase agreements but also the special price support payments. While the loans will vary according to the individual crop's grade and moisture content, the price-support payment will be a uniform 18 cents per bushel on the normal production of the individual farm's 1963 planted corn acreage.

The schedule of premiums and discounts for 1963-crop corn is unchanged from that for the 1962 corn crop.

Schacht also pointed out that this year's program differs from last year's in that all the 1963 production of corn from participating farms can be put under the price-support loan. In 1962, price support was limited to not more than the normal production of the planted acreage.

Farm and warehouse-stored loans and purchased agreements for 1963-crop corn will be available from harvest time through May 31, 1964. Loans will mature on July 31, 1964.

Sawyer Club Needs Members

Tom Sawyer has had all kinds of help while painting that picket fence at the Shepard Branch Library, 2185 E. Fifth-av, however, some pickets aren't quite finished and a few pickets have no paint at all.

Since Aug. 31 is the deadline for Tom's project to be completed, he needs all the help he can get from the boys and girls during the next two weeks. Enjoy books, paint that fence, get a Tom Sawyer diploma and put your name on the honor roll while reading more delightful stories during the balance of the summer.

THINNING WITH AGE
Often the woman past 50 finds her grey or white hair "thinning out." This is a natural process of the human body, just as the greying of your hair itself. That doesn't mean, however, that you must have 'pink spots' showing through! We know how to make the most of your fragile, lovely hair. We'll style it to suggest soft fullness, carefully keeping the softness in the spots where the hair is thinnest. The results? A wickedly wonderful new kind of flattery for you!
SILVER SWOOPING
How lucky, those ladies who find grey tendrils centering in certain areas . . . at a widow's peak, or at the temples. We greet such greying with joy; they help us to create downright drama for you! By accentuating the silver, and deepening the hair around it, we give you great distinction. Beauty is making the best of a feature you know . . . let us show what this can mean to you.
DOWN, BROWN!
Some heads just don't "grey" or "whiten" and the lighter your converted hair shade, the more often this is true. If you were a brownette or brunette, you may find ugly yellow or brown tones in your white hair. It looks like uneven "scorched" shades. Don't worry; just hurry in for one of our miracle-rinses. We'll bathe your hair in pearl, silver, subtle mauve. Your family and friends will say you've never been prettier in all your life! Give it a try by making an appointment.

HERE COMES HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL -- 1963 EDITION

. . . BUT BEFORE KICKOFF, A PAUSE FOR EQUIPMENT, PHYSICALS AND PRACTICE

ALTHOUGH THE opening kickoff of the 1963 high school football season is still better than two weeks away, area coaches and gridders rolled up their sleeves and got down to work last week making preparations for the big Sept. 6 date. High on the list of new business was equipment issue. At left, Reynoldsburg Head Coach Marv Lutz completes a full issue to Baldor senior letterman Bill Bothe (third, left) while Assistant Coach John Thompson and senior lettermen (from left) Tom Spires and Jay Carey look on. In center photo, Doctor John Stephens checks the physical condition of Franklin Heights gridder Mike Long while Falcon Coach Chuck Gilbert checks "A-OK" on the junior guard's bill of health. Last weekend brought the first practice sessions early Friday morning all around the area. At South (picture at right), Bulldog Head Coach Bob Jackson checked out the handoff timing of his quarterback Jerry Robinson, here shown delivering the pigskin to halfback Paul Pate. Area coaches will continue the two-a-day football workouts until school opens, hopeful of selecting a winning combination for their respective lifters. (Photos by Jack Wittenmeier).

Hackman Teams Pace Center AK, LL Loops

After regularly scheduled games in the Jewish Center Y.M.H.A. Slo-Pitch Softball League, Rosati's Market became first champs and tied with Burger Boy in the second round.

If Rosati's defeats Burger Boy in a playoff game, it will become winner of both rounds, thus become league champs. A victory for Burger Boy will force both teams into a championship game.

IN THEIR playoff game against Columbus Steel, Rosati's Market demonstrated superb hitting (42 hits) and fielding as it roared on to a 35-1 win.

The game was marked by a record number of homeruns as Rosati's players hit for the circuit eight times. Every player on the victor's team hit safely at least twice.

Arnie Henden and Pete Blue each had six hits while Chuck Friedenberg socked three homers.

BURGER BOY kept up with Rosati's for the league lead as it won via the forfeit route over Gilbert Shoes.

In the big game of the evening, first round champs Rosati's Super Market allowed Tommy's Pizza to build up a 10-4 lead, but came back to overpower Tommy's Pizza 21-16.

The turning point came after Tommy's staged a six run rally in the sixth inning to come within one run of tying Rosati's. But five singles, three after two were out, provided four runs and insured victory.

Phil Finke led the winners with five hits, one being a triple. Rosenthal had four hits while Len Greenwald went four for six, including a homerun. Cliff Marks and Norm Elg each had three hits.

For Tommy's Pizza, Rick Bender had two singles, a double and triple.

HACKMAN'S REALTY and Seymour's Bakery continued to lead the A&K Divisions after last Thursday's games in the A.K. League. Each team has a 3-1 record with two full weeks of games remaining.

Hackman's downed Muffler King, 14-11, although the losers rallied strongly from a 14-1 deficit. Home runs by Hersh Hausman (who also had a double and single) and by Ivan Lubash with two runners aboard, gave Hackman's a six-run third inning. Sol Zeldin's triple in the fourth with the bases loaded added three more. Herb Meizlish helped out with four singles in four tries.

For Muffler's, veteran Henry Finke had a perfect night with two doubles and two singles.

SEYMOUR'S DIDN'T fare as well as it lost its first game of the second round to Ontario's, 7-3. Ontario's jumped on Ike Cohen's offerings in the first inning scoring four runs with the big blow being Burton Berk's homer with two mates aboard. Meanwhile, Meyer Kravitz handcuffed Seymour's, allowing only Irv Rubin to get more than one hit, a double and two singles in three times.

Dr. Berk for Ontario's also had a perfect day, getting two singles in addition to his four bagger. He was also helped by Herb Ureli, who had a double and two singles.

Wolman's upset Kozy Kitchen in an extra-inning game, 7-6. For Wolman's, Irving Smith's home run in the fourth with two on, and Bob Grad's triple in the fifth with one on accounted for most of Wolman's runs.

Kozy's scored four in the first on triples by Hal Paris and Ben Braff, and scored again on Paris' second triple in the sixth inning.

IN THE TOP of the ninth inning, the winners scored two big runs on two errors and two singles by Bert Riker and Grad.

In the bottom of the inning, Kozy's got a single run on Larry Gordon's single and Braff's double.

Martin's moved into second place in Division K by edging Outdoor Military, 5-3, in spite of Harold Eisenstein's two-run homer for Outdoor.

Jack Gaiser's two singles accounted for two big runs for Martin's. Eisenstein also had two singles for the losers.

IN THE PONY League playoffs, Jetcoat moved into a favorable championship position by downing Capitol Post, 10-4, and the Gold team, 9-6, in the double-elimination tourney.

In other games the Reds lost to the Golds, 11-4, and Capitol Post, 11-4. Jetcoat will play the winner of the Gold-Capitol Post game for the championship.

MACKMAN'S FORFEIT win over Masser combined with Worly's loss to Hamer-off-Smith gained the Realtors the title in the Center Little League.

Playoffs are now in progress between the other seven teams in the loop.

Ram Boosters Meet

The annual Whitehall Rams Boosters Membership Drive will be held Sunday at 1 p.m.

All Boosters, athletes and other interested parties who will be participating this year in all sports, along with cheerleaders and coaches will report to the high school cafeteria at 1 p.m.

Carbon-Copy Browns Preview 1962 Rerun

CLEVELAND, O. — The second-ever pro football doubleheader here Saturday evening was a colossal success as attested to by 83,218 fans who braved chilly winds and sprinkling rain to preview four of the NFL's '63 title contenders.

Oops, did we say four? Make that three since the Browns' home debut was anything but successful. It probably didn't do anything for advance ticket sales either.

THE FACT that the Brownies lost (21-7 to Baltimore) wasn't important. But how they did was.

Fans who were led by Cleveland press propaganda to believe that Blanton Collier's first edition would be different from Paul Brown's swan song effort soon discovered they were in line for a rerun.

Maybe Collier is saving his big salvos for the 'money games.' For Brownie fans we hope so, because the offensive explosion he displayed Saturday came off like a wet firecracker.

EVEN THROUGH our 1943-model Boy Scout binoculars, the '63 Browns' football facts of life were in sharp focus:

1—Cleveland's leaky offensive line will still make Brown quarterback's Jim Ninowski and Frank Ryan poor risks for even the most liberal insurance companies this fall.

2—Jimmy Brown's running mate is still missing. Ken Webb, the latest replacement for a departed Bobby Mitchell, didn't exactly turn any heads. Webb, whose outside sweeps were to make Brown's inside propulsion more prosperous, got off one lengthy run and was heard no more.

3—THE BROWNIES' defensive secondary, known for its crisp tackles after the completed pass, is still sorely inadequate. Larry Benz, for whom the Cleveland tom-toms have been beating all summer, was the unsuccessful defender twice on Unitas' TD flings.

4—Cleveland still doesn't have the 'big' quarterback. Ryan is hobbled with a leg injury and Ninowski is still taking delight in removing his receiver's fingers at the knuckles with his bullet passes.

5—The Brown's 'ten-yard-itis,' a malady which saw Cleveland's offense stall repeatedly within paydirt in '62, appears to be a chronic ailment.

6—COLLIER'S promise of a wide-open offense never came off Saturday. The 'draw' drew losses, Brown's unescorted end jaunts were largely unprofitable and rival defenses will still be wise to stack up for Jim's line thrusts.

In a nutshell, the '63 Brownie season appears long and lean.

Baltimore will go as far as Unitas' passes take them again, and Detroit's defensive line is still one of league's toughest, despite the impromptu departure of Alex Karras.

NEW YORK'S Giants are still all-Tittle. Sputtering through the first quarter with flat-footed Ralph Guglielmi at the reins, the Giants perked up like a scared puppy when Y.A. took over.

Tittle, whose pinpoint passing makes NY's ground game go, hit four of his first six, moving the Giants 80 yards to TD-land as soon as he entered the game.

Bad boy Sam Huff, Jim Taylor's friend, got off to a fast start by banging a pass receiver after an incompletion and then got the razberries everytime he made a tackle thereafter.

THE GIANTS apparently have found their long-needed wing-footed halfback in ex-Michigan speedster Jimmy Pace. Pace, a Bobby Mitchell-type runner, looked convincing against an equally convincing Lions' defensive line.

As for the doubleheader, football's attempt at trading stamps, it's still a long sit on hardwood seats. But then, 83,218 fans can't be wrong.

Although the marathon was approaching its sixth hour before they [illegible] everybody home, halftime breaks were duly adequate, permitting mom time to write home to the kids and dad a chance to grab a clean shave.

Giants Grab WBBA Title With 3-0 Win

Mark Aprile's five-hit shutout earned the Giants a 3-0 win over the Indians and the Major League Little League championship in the Whitehall Boys Baseball Association last week.

The Wolfe boys, Robby and Randy, supplied the batting punch. Robby drove in the first pair of runs in the second inning with a base-loaded single while Randy, who had two hits, chased home the third tally.

THE GIANTS, National Division champs, had to go four games for their playoff win over the American Division Indians. The first game resulted in a 1-1 tie and the Indians won the third, setting up the fourth game victory for the Giants.

GOLF ETIQUETTE—9

CONTROL THAT TEMPER!

CALL IT etiquette or just a simple way to shave off strokes but an even temper is a big asset on the golf course. The rule-of-thumb equation of the links is: 1 poor shot plus 1 temper tantrum equals a second poor shot. The course can be hazardous enough without flying clubs and blue air. Save your high blood pressure and ulcers for the office. You're out there to relax, remember.

Living-Color Feathers— They're For The Birds

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

"There's a robin in the yard and somebody has shot his tail off," was the telephoned plea. Rising to the emergency, I calmed the feminine emotions with the reassuring reply, "He probably hasn't been shot. This is the season for molting and feather replacement for many birds, and the robin has probably shed his tail feathers."

Feathers are a matter of survival to birds, and the loss of flight feathers can be disastrous. But nature usually handles this very well, and only a couple of wing or tail feathers are lost at a time. Only occasionally do you see birds with their tails missing, and these can still fly.

DUCKS AT THIS season, however, are a different matter. They become flightless as the molt progresses, and they resort to hiding tactics during this time. Most birds go along with life pretty much as usual.

There are some oddities in this matter of plumage. The young of several species do not look like the adults, and some males take on the appearance of females.

The bald eagle young wear their immature plumage for between four and five years, during which time they are dark or mottled in appearance. The white head and tail, the marks of adulthood, are slow in coming.

THE IMMATURE male orchard oriole looks like the female, except for a black throat patch, for three years.

Some of the water birds have complete changes of color. The young of little blue herons are white for three years, then they change to the slaty blue of the adult. The white ibis is another, being a brown and white mottled bird until gaining the pure white, black-tipped wings of the fully mature. Spoonbills are white for three years and then become pink. Certain gulls also follow this three-year pattern.

Juvenile plumages, the first to be worn, are often confusing since the youngster in many cases looks so unlike the parents. A young pine warbler, for example, is one of the most drab and indistinct looking birds, and causes many an observer to ponder his field guide.

MOST EVERYONE knows the male indigo bunting—he is a flash of brilliant blue against the green summer foliage. But with the coming of fall and winter he sheds his brilliance and resembles the brownish female.

With such familiar birds as the bobolink and goldfinch (wild canary) we observe seasonal changes even in the adults. The bright yellow and black of the male goldfinch and the striking black, white and buff of the male bobolink disappear in the fall and the two sexes of each species look alike.

Feather replacement is used as a tool by wildlife biologists, because the ages of certain game species can be determined by feather development on the wings. By examination of the wings the biologists can classify the birds into juvenile and adult groups. This is done with ducks, quail, woodcock and doves and the scientists usually rely on hunters to supply the wings for examination.

So much for the robin that lost his tail.

Jets In Final Home Stand, Atlanta 'Showdown' Friday

The Columbus Jets, still clinging to hopes of an International League play-off berth, conclude their current and final home stand with Jacksonville and Atlanta this week.

The Jets conclude a three-day, five-game series with last-place Jacksonville Thursday with an 8 p.m. single game (Jaycees Night).

A CRUCIAL four-game set with Atlanta's Crackers opens Friday evening at 8 with AFL-CIO Union Night. The Atlanta club will provide the opposition again Saturday evening and then help the Jets close out their '63 home season with a big Sunday doubleheader, starting at 1:30 p.m.

The Atlanta series should be particularly interesting since the Crackers are the team the Jets must replace in second place to nab a play-off berth.

Friday night's game will also feature pre-game ceremonies honoring WMNI sportscaster Joe Hill, who is currently in his 16th year of local baseball broadcasting.

Also of interest to local fans will be the Jet's attempt to establish a long-standing home run record.

GOOD WILLY SAYS . . .

'Where There's A (Good) Will–There's A Way'

By JANET MICHAEL

Late one evening a man in his late twenties climbed onto a crowded downtown bus. It had been a long day, going from one place of business to another in search of a job. That day proved no different from any of the rest—he was still unemployed. The reason—he only had one leg.

dr

No one wanted to take a chance on hiring an unskilled, handicapped person. By some strange coincidence, he sat down beside a man using one hand to balance a lunch box on his lap, the other sleeve was rolled and pinned at the seam. They struck up a conversation. The second man was employed by Goodwill, the first man did not even know what Goodwill was. The next day the two went to work together, and for the first time in his life, the man on crutches worked and learned a trade.

This story or a similar one has probably happened in nearly every city in the United States. Still there are hundreds of people who have no concept of what Goodwill really means and how its rehabilitation program works.

A person seeking work at Goodwill must first be evaluated through a series of tests, to determine his potential abilities, followed by a training period at which time he learns a skill. Job demands and pressures must be met in order to compete with the more fortunate people in the business world. Suppose a man choses to be a carpenter. The day he turns out a table that doesn't wobble, has been sanded smooth and neatly painted, he is eligible to take his place in the community as a carpenter's helper.

George Evans, 1331 Edgehill-rd, executive director of the local industry for the past 17 years, said, "Even with as much publicity as Goodwill has had, some things still need to be clarified. Goodwill is a non-profit, charitable organization that trains and employs handicapped people and prepares them for work in the community, and," he continued, "donations are tax deductible."

Items which the agency can no longer accept are gas refrigerators, glass jars, heavy overstuffed furniture, home canned food, hot water tanks, ladders, appliances with motors, pianos, scrap metal, wooden iceboxes, newspapers, magazines and cardboard.

However, in order to further handicapped people in their training and work adjustment programs, the following repairable articles are urgently needed: beds, bicycles, books, business machines, cameras, clothing, clocks, crocks, dishes, dolls, draperies, curtains, gas or electric dryers, electrical appliances, electronic equipment, electric refrigerators.

All types of usable or repairable furniture, household items, ice skates, jewelry, light upholstered furniture in good condition, mattresses, National Geographics, office supplies, photographic equipment, pillows, radios, electric or gas ranges, record players, roller skates, rugs, shoes, sporting equipment, springs, storm and screen doors in good condition, television sets, toys, games, washing machines and wheel toys.

Recently 53 collection boxes were distributed throughout the city, conveniently located near churches and schools, at neighborhood intersections, or in shopping centers, where clothing and small items may be deposited.

For further information concerning work, club tours or for pick-up of articles, write to Goodwill Industries of Central Ohio, 1331 Edgehill-rd, Columbus 12, or call 294-5181.

THE CYCLE OF THE TRICYCLE begins here. Unloading the articles are from left, Ronnie Abdon, Charles Turley and Elbert Jackson. Soon the tricycle will be turned over to another department to be repaired, painted and priced. As soon as it is all shiny and new looking—back to the truck it goes to be transported to one of Goodwill's stores.

"GOOD AFTERNOON, GOODWILL INDUSTRIES," is the sound you will hear when you dial 294-5181. The cheerful voice belongs to Mrs. Clyde (Ruth) Zweifel. Ruth developed polio when she was seven years old, but that didn't stop her from graduating from high school and finding a job. She learned about Goodwill in a newspaper story in 1945 and applied for work. In 1958, she was selected Goodwill Worker of the year. Ruth is married to Clyde Zweifel, a former Goodwill employe.

"50 CENTS," thought Lomina Thomas as she tossed this article into the proper bin. Being four feet, two inches tall has its limitations, but Lomina devised a strong arm and deft pricing ability to meet the requirements of this job. Perched on a stool, Lomina darts through basket upon basket of clothing and determines what each article is worth. Reminiscing a little, Lomina recalled the time she did the twist with "Flippo."

Shoe Prelims For Ox Roast Set Aug. 24-25

Horseshoe pitching will again be one of the sidelights of the fourteenth annual West Jefferson Ox Roast, set for the Labor Day weekend, Aug. 31-Sept. 2.

To enter the Ox Roast competition, players must qualify this weekend at the Rome Horseshoe Club courts, located at Moore's Dairy, 900 Norton-rd, one mile south of Route 40 in New Rome.

QUALIFYING TIMES Saturday are from 1 till 7 p.m. and Sunday from 1 till 9 p.m.

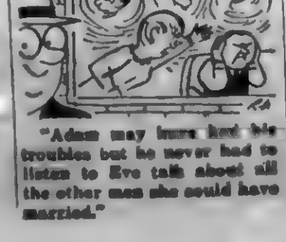
Trophies will be awarded by the 1963 Ox Roast Queen to the first and second place winner in each class and to the highest qualifier on the Rome courts.

J. D. Rhymer of Stoutsville is the defending '62 champion. The horseshoe matches have been a part of the Roast for eleven of its 14 years.

IN EXERCISE

Donald L. Gischler, radarman seaman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Gischler of 1015 Montrose-av, is serving aboard the guided missile frigate USS King which recently participated in a major fleet strike and anti-aircraft warfare exercise conducted by Commander First Fleet off the Pacific Coast.

HAGERTY REASSIGNED



Major John D. Hagerty III of 140 N. Cassidy-av, has arrived at Scott AFB, Ill., for assignment with a Military Air Transport Service unit. Maj. Hagerty, an administrative officer, previously was assigned to Travis AFB, Calif.

NAMED

DR. JOHN STEPHENS, acting county health commissioner since the resignation of Robert A. Evans, county coroner, was officially named to the position Tuesday morning. His main duty will be to enforce county health laws and regulations. Stephens resides at 3945 Clime-rd and operates a private practice at 3016 W. Broad-st.

When the children ask the next time, "What can we do now?" suggest that they go to their nearby Columbus Public Library. Making friends with books is most important in young lives. And books conquer boredom.

"Adam may have had his troubles but he never had to listen to Eve talk about all the other men she could have married."

SEWING, LAUNDRY TAUGHT

Newest Idea In Rehabilitation Is In Store For Women Prisoners

A mistake doesn't have to be final, and once their debt to society is paid, the women in the new Columbus Women's Correctional Institution (directly south of Columbus Workhouse) will find that they have been trained to do many commercial-type jobs.

According to Mrs. Dorothy Mitchell, matron in charge, associated with the City Prison for seven years, the new building is truly feminine in decorations and fixtures and rightly called, "the most modern in the nation."

Women who have never taken up a hem or darned a sock will learn to operate commercial sewing machines, the type used in large textile factories. They will make their own uniforms, towels, tablecloths, sheets and mattress covers.

But the stitching doesn't stop there. The women will also outfit the men's bunks, both at the Men's Workhouse and downtown City Jail.

As for doing laundry, the girls have it. Again, commercial-type machines will be used and all three prisons will have clean clothes, thanks to the girls.

For the first time in the history of Columbus Women's Institutions, meals will be arranged, prepared and served by the girls. This will guide them in economics along with learning the culinary arts.

Upon arising at 7 each morning, the women will dress and prepare for the day's work in pleasant surroundings. Two large dormitories have replaced the commonly thought of barred single cells. Each accommodates 48 women, making a total capacity of 96. The walls are painted in pastel pink and yellow shades, with harmonizing curtains and spreads on the double bunk beds. Individual lockers are provided for personal articles.

Another first, is the planned recreation program to be held out-of-doors in a fenced in area, allowing the women to exercise and to get fresh air and an area of grass and trees.

Movies will be shown at specified times and a television set and combination radio and record player are centrally located.

The new facility, located south of Columbus, on Jackson-pk, (Rt. 104) a half-mile south of Frank-rd, has reached a milestone in modernistic design and rehabilitation program.

Senior Citizens Center

375 McDowell-st.

Senior citizens are looking forward to Senior Citizen Day at the Ohio State Fair on Aug. 29. Many of them are practicing for the play that will be put on to entertain the senior citizens that will be on hand from all over the state.

Senior Citizen Day at the fair was originated by Edna Behmer, one of the staff members at the Senior Center. She plugged for many years to have one day to honor senior citizens, and this was started in 1959. This is the fifth annual show our center has produced for the fair.

Free shuttlebus ride tags will be available to anyone 60 years of age or older attending on Aug. 29. They can be requested in the tent area or at the center ahead of time. This will enable them to see the exhibits with very little walking.

Another nice donation for senior citizens will be free Pepsi-Cola and ice cream from the Westerville Meadow Gold Dairy Products.

Senior citizens will pay 75 cents admission at either gate at the fair, but the tent area is closest to the 11th-av entrance.

The program for senior citizens at the fair will be:

11-11:30 a.m. — Dance Review.

11:40-noon—All-Ohio Boys' Band Serenade.

Noon-1 p.m.—lunch period.

1:30-2:30 p.m. — Senior Citizens Show in the tent area.

Senior citizens may buy boxed chicken dinners at noon, but must buy tickets for the reduced price of $1.25 by Aug. 22 at the center. Arrangements have been made to have the lunch delivered at noon for those who have bought tickets.

Just 15 minutes a day devoted to reading will permit you to complete some two dozen books in a year. Since books are readily portable, chances are good that you can squeeze this brief "reading break" into your daily schedule.

Peace Corps Testing Set

The Peace Corps placement tests will be administered Saturday, Aug. 24, beginning at 8:30 a.m. The tests will be held in Room 204, Tonti Bldg., 34 N. High-st.

The non-competitive examination enables the Peace Corps to place prospective volunteers in an appropriate overseas situation. Everyone interested in becoming a volunteer must take the test, in addition to filling out a questionnaire.

Getting a piece of mind doesn't usually lead to peace of mind.

Must Meet Education Needs

It is almost a sure bet that arguments over the $250 million bond issue to be presented to Ohio voters on the November ballot will generate more heat than light. This is generally the case in debates involving partisan politics.

We would like to offer our comments before the prime issue — need — is submerged in the politically motivated side issues.

Of the $250 million to be asked, $210 million would be earmarked for education — $175 million for higher education capital improvements and $35 million for building programs in needy school districts. The remainder of the bond money would provide $25 million for state parks and management of natural resources, and $15 million for construction of state buildings.

The need for more money to meet Ohio's needs in the areas of public schools and higher education is so obvious that argument on this point is all but nonexistent.

The "great debate" centers on how best the need is to be met. And while the politicians jockey for favorable positions, the innocent children and young adults of our state suffer the dire consequences of delay.

We are not convinced that a bond issue is the best answer to the problem. We are not yet ready to absolve the General Assembly of charges that it was gutless and heartless in failing to take direct legislative action.

We are convinced, however, that a meeting of the needs in the vital areas of public and higher education must no longer be delayed. We are ready to recommend a "yes" vote for the bond issue.

We will continue to hear arguments that the bond issue is a hidden tax, a new tax and an increase in taxes. These arguments do not erase the fact that the need must be met.

If we end up paying more by the "bond" route than we would have by direct taxation, it will still be less than the price we will pay for continued vacillation.

If we do not agree with the attitudes and actions of our legislative and administrative leaders, we can always vote them out of office. Let's not adopt a course that will vote our children out of their rights to adequate educational opportunities.

Hunt Bargains For Best 'Stamp' Use

The question of whether or not trading stamps should be abolished is being discussed this month in the 1,600 Farm Bureau Advisory Councils.

The Farm Bureau Federation has neither endorsed nor opposed the use of trading stamps. But Bureau Director of Information C. Maurice Wieting passes along the following suggestions for those who trade where stamps are issued.

1. Watch for real bargains when you read the supermarket ads.

2. Shop around among the supermarkets for their "specials."

3. While in a supermarket, look for "specials" and other values in terms of price and quality.

4. Accept the trading stamps — as you will most likely do.

5. Use the trading stamps, or give them to your favorite organization.

6. At a gasoline station that offers trading stamps, ask for a cash discount instead of stamps.

Frosting On The Cake

By "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

The "man to the moon" mania is cooling off rapidly all over this country. Informed citizens just can't see $40 billions going up in any such nonsense when they can't make ends meet from month to month now with this insane confiscatory tax robbery.

Increasing millions who are going to vote a year hence with more interest and astuteness than for half a century, are talking about how smart it would be to send a real constitutionalist to the White House, instead of sending some glory grabber to the moon or any other planet.

It is positively uncanny, as one looks back over the last 30 years of political double talk, how much better informed are the real Americans left with us than the so-called Ph.D. geniuses who have harped for too long, "so what? it is only money."

You can bet your almost last dollar that, of course, it is only money, but unless this insane federal squandering of our "hard sweat money" is stopped next year, what is left won't even be money.

Joe Doakes, a pretty decent guy, down through the years got hurt badly in the great depression, for far too long a time and his kids, now adults with their necks in a far worse noose, are waking up to the truth that all of this "pie in the sky" bunk is not doing anything for him at all. Joe is getting wised up through agonizing pain in the pocketbook nerve, as to just what this madness is doing TO HIM.

Compassion

Recall with me the story of Christ's feeding of the multitude recorded in Mark 8:1-9. Four thousand persons have been listening to Jesus for three days and have had nothing to eat in all this time. Christ has compassion on them. He is concerned that if he sends them away hungry, they may pass out on the way home.

James Heil

Christ was a Lord of love, wasn't he? Here is the Savior of mankind, the Son of God, the Anointed One of Israel, concerned about people walking home hungry! We might think that the Christ would be above such things, but we find that time after time Jesus is concerned about the details of life. Whenever he confronts a lost soul, or a tired body, his first thought is to help. He always has time, whether it be for children wanting attention, or for a distraught woman tugging at his garments. Jesus could never rest in the sight of human need. He spent much of his life healing, curing, restoring sight, answering men in their need.

As Jesus expresses his compassion for his hungry followers, it is interesting to see the reaction of his disciples: "How can one feed these men with bread here in the desert?" The reaction: it's impossible! Perhaps they looked at Jesus as if he were out of his mind. Oh, how quick they were to point out the practical difficulties of such an idea.

But Jesus will have none of this. He replies, "How many loaves have you?" The compassion of Christ has now become a challenge: what have you got to offer? And with seven loaves of bread a multitude of four thousand persons was satisfied. The disciples had given of what they had.

This says a lot to me. I often look at the seemingly gigantic tasks facing me and say that they are impossible, they can't be done. I put things off. About those tiresome jobs which seem beyond my capabilities I often say in effect, "ignore them, perhaps they'll go away."

This is evading the challenge of Christ. He asks us for what we have; he expects what we have. The crowd may look overwhelming, and our few loaves of bread may seem insignificant, but Jesus calls to us, "How many loaves have you?"

FOR THE BOOKS

Sculptor M. E. Cook designed and made it. It was dedicated to the children of Columbus in memory of George Peabody Munson. We mean the fountain-statue of Peter Pan that stands on the broad plaza before the Columbus Public Library at 96 S. Grant-av.

During a recent visit, Galvy Gordon, library publicity director, gave us some literature about it. From him and from it we learned much about the system.

Besides the Main Library there are 13 branches in Columbus and Franklin County. They are placed where they serve the most people. There are libraries in county villages, too.

Bookmobiles carry up to 5,000 books each. They make periodic visits to about 100 points in the county during school months, with more stops in summer. They are the only library service to many public and parochial schools in the county and some in the city.

The library owns more than half a million books, 7,500 recordings, about 1,000 educational films, thousands of early and current publications of every kind, has reference rooms, and other facilities.

Since the library is tax-supported, all these services are free to the people of the city and county. All responsible adults may get cards for themselves and their children. Your card is all you need.

Library people are trained for their jobs and are ready and eager to serve you. In this complex age, adults and children need to know more and yet more. Questions? The library has the answers.

The public schools under Supt. Harold H. Eibling cooperate closely.

Corporal Hitler and his Nazis once burned books in Germany so the people couldn't know. In Columbus, the library preserves them so that you may know.

It says here: If knowledge is power, your library is a power house.

FOOD MARKETS

Ohio Farm Products Reach Their Best

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruits — Melons, seedless grapes, peaches, plums.

Vegetables — Sweet corn, tomatoes, all-purpose potatoes, peppers, snap beans.

Meats and Poultry — Fryers (whole), beef "specials," hams, wieners, medium eggs.

Ohio-grown foods offer the best eating of the summer right now.

During the coming week you'll have the opportunity to see these foods at their best. The abundance of colorful vegetables and luscious fruits from local farms will be on display at the Ohio State Fair. But it's equally true in the stores and at roadside markets — variety, good quality and the lowest prices of the year.

Mrs. Franks

Summer vegetable displays are outstanding. In spite of all the grumbling we've heard about the weather, we're having a good harvest. Sweet corn reached its peak in this area last week, but is still in good supply. It's been a wonderful year for beans — green, wax, lima and others — all are high in quality. Tomatoes are much improved in appearance and have unusually good flavor; they should be canned soon if you plan to save some for next winter.

Potato growers in Ohio say there will be a slightly larger crop than last year and that quality should be excellent. It seems to be an especially good summer, too, for salad greens. Green peppers, cucumbers, eggplant, summer and acorn squash add to the endless variety of summer vegetables.

Ohio fruit growers had their troubles from early freezes and frosts this year. However, reaching produce counters in increasing amounts are new crop apples and cantaloupes. The prune plum crop is above average but the grape crop promises to be only about 41 per cent of an average crop. Grape harvest will be late, probably starting in mid-September in Northern Ohio where most of our grapes are grown.

Fruits from other areas are filling fruit bins to overflowing . . . melons of every description, table grapes, nectarines and Bartlett pears, to name a few. There's a record crop of Thompson seedless grapes this year. California had marvelous grape weather so that table grapes —Thompson seedless, Ribier, Red Malaga, Cardinal and others—are 18 per cent above average in yield.

Still available in good amounts, but declining gradually from summer peak, are blueberries, peaches, watermelons and California strawberries.

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Useful Screwballs Are Always Around Us

A friend has sent us a December, 1912, issue of Popular Mechanics. We started through it for laughs.

The nutty ideas. The stillborn "inventions." The wild-eyed money-making schemes. From the vantage point of half a century it is easy to point to the snake-oil and the moon-dreams.

Here's an ad from a New Yorker who says he has a design for a powerful four-horsepower airplane that he thinks can cross the Atlantic. Will someone put up the money to build it?

Here's a Pennsylvania man who has a "flexible steel automobile wheel" that doesn't need a rubber tire.

A Missourian wants agents to sell "a perfect washing machine for $3."

The magazine seems quite excited about a new rat trap called a "Ratapult." Baited with a piece of bacon rind, it features a powerful steel spring and a pneumatic re-winding device. "When the trap is sprung, an arm strikes the unfortunate rodent with enough force to break every bone in its body and hurls the carcass at least 15 feet away so that other rats will not be warned."

A Professor Berthsen of Germany claims he has successfully analyzed the hen's egg, and "by capturing and turning to various useful purposes the nitrogen in the atmosphere" hens will soon be obsolete and eggs will be produced by factories.

And a great new safety device is proclaimed with the invention of a water jacket to go around a motorcycle exhaust pipe. "By actuating a wire on the handlebars a steam whistle not unlike that of a boat is produced." The article didn't say whether the whistle was louder than a 1912-model motorcycle.

But what really jolts you about the old magazine is the number of good ideas. Most of the inventions dreamed up to make the ideas work were grossly impractical. It was a case of where inspiration was way ahead of the technology of the times.

Here is a picture of a thoughtful young man listening to the explosions inside an automobile cylinder by applying a doctor's stethoscope to the block. "It determines the condition of the engine by the sound." Well, of course, it would do no such thing. But maybe some kid who stared at that picture grew up to invent the modern engine analyzer.

The old-time movies hired piano players to play "Hearts and Flowers" during the love scenes and the finale of the William Tell Overture when the rustlers were headed off at the pass. But here comes automation. Popular Mechanics tells of one movie operator who fitted five rolls on a player piano and music suitable to the scene could be obtained by simply yanking a lever. It must have sounded awful, but it was the grandfather of the sound track.

Here's a device for pumping up an air tank on an automobile by utilizing "the jolts in the road." You have a cylinder and piston connected to the springs and as the car bounces down the highway the device fills the tank with high-pressure air "which can be used in re-inflating tires." Of course, the scheme was a failure because it tried to combine two dissimilar problems. But the modern shock-absorber is certainly a cylinder-and-piston and the auto air conditioner uses a compressor run, not by jolts, but, more logically, by the engine itself.

Here's a "noted German metallurgist," Prof. O. Trustredt, who thinks he has detected ore bodies deep in the earth by directing "wireless waves" downward at a slant. The waves, claims the professor, pass readily through dirt and rock but when they hit ore "they are deflected upward through the earth as a mirror casts back sunlight."

This, of course, is utter hokum. The professor was trying too many shortcuts. But a modern magnetometer can, indeed, detect ore bodies, even from an airplane. And sound waves bouncing off rock layers and reflected back to geophones have made possible the seismic geology that enables us to find oil.

"A boon to the motorist," says our magazine, is the speed circulating disc. By observing the time between two mileposts he can turn the device to estimate his miles-per-hour. Ridiculously simple, of course. A smart kid can make one.

But in the cockpit of a modern plane the pilot now thumbs a disc calculator that computes temperature and pressure gradients and gives not only true air and ground speeds but figures wind-correction angles. Just an extension of a good idea.

The extension of a good idea. Good ideas start with dissatisfaction with the status quo. Contented men invent nothing. The locomotive was born of discontent with the horse. To fly, man first had to dream of flying. He dreamed the wrong way for a long while. He kept trying to imitate birds. Then he looked again at the ancient kite and made a glider, and the marriage of the glider to the motor made an airplane.

Ideas that are nutty in one generation become practical in the technology of the next. Perhaps the best thing a modern inventor could do is haunt the musty stacks of old mechanics magazines in the basement of the public library.

Many a forgotten pipe dream is now ready to be born.

Drowning Victim Services Today

Funeral service was held today, Thursday, for nine-year-old Davis A. Scott, 892 Bryden-rd, who drowned in a private swimming pool early Saturday morning.

The youth and two other boys scaled a five-foot-high fence to gain access to the pool owned by Preston Wolfe, 212 Park-dr.

Michael and Howard Sims told police investigators they had been with Scott in the pool and had climbed out when David decided to jump back in. The brothers, of 170½ S. 18th-st, said the victim came to the surface twice before disappearing a third time. Police recovered the fully clothed body at about 12:45 a.m. in nine feet of water, according to reports.

The Franklin County Coroner's Office ruled accidental death by drowning.

Funeral arrangements were by Williams and McNabb Mortuary. Interment was at Evergreen Cemetery.

for the Days AHEAD

Even now trees are being felled, cords of wood cut, in preparation for cold winter days which are sure to come. Woodcutters are preparing for the days ahead, to bring comfort against the cold.

To prepare for our future "cold days," periods of sadness, times of bereavement, and times when we are tempest tossed, begin now to attend church regularly and let God, His Church, and His people help you to meet any situation in life.

"Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the father of mercies, and the God of all comfort; who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God." 2 Cor. 1:3, 4.

Atlas Moving Reports Increase In Business

Atlas Van Lines, Inc., today reported a 16.5 per cent increase in revenue from long distance shipments of household goods during the quarter ending June 30.

William Earl Moore, chairman of the board of United Moving and Storage, Inc., 345 E. Fifth-av, said the 16.5 per cent jump in revenue — $2,667,316 from $2,290,415 in the same quarter of 1962 — is only the beginning of what has been billed as a record summer in the moving business.

"In view of the bright business outlook, there is every reason to believe that expectations of a bigger-than-ever summer bulge in the moving business will hold true," said Moore.

Nearly 500 local moving firms are affiliated with Atlas and make their long distance shipments under Atlas' interstate authorities.

Quarter Races Add New Look At Beulah Park

Something new has been added to the program of racing at Beulah Park where the fall meeting gets underway on Saturday, Sept. 7 and runs through Saturday, Sept. 28.

President and general manager Robert Y. Dienst has announced that on the three Fridays of the fall season, a quarter horse race will open the proceedings, this to be followed by the regular nine-race card for thoroughbreds.

QUARTER HORSES noted for their sheer speed, will race 400 yards on the three occasions. Purses of $300 have been established by Dienst for the first two events and there will be a $500 purse for the third race, in which the top four finishers of the first two races will clash in a "championship" affair.

There will be no wagering on the quarter horses. Some will be ridden by members of the Beulah jockey colony and others by boys who have handled them in competition elsewhere.

Pit Stops

Sunday night race fans were treated to one of the finest supermodified feature events ever run on the Columbus Motor Speedway oval with "Demon Don" Townsend getting the victory.

But for some 22 laps, it was anybody's race as Townsend, Bob Smith, Ali Smith, Neal Sceva and Tod Gibson actually drove side-by-side and bumper-to-bumper with the cheers from the fans drowning out the roar of their engines.

Only superb driving skill on the part of Townsend, who went into the lead on the third-lap, gained him his third feature victory of the year.

THE LATE-MODEL feature was also a thriller with veteran speed-pilot Paul Parks notching his third-straight win and his fifth feature this season.

Last Friday night, Don Gregory took both of the "Monza-style" 25-lap features, his seventh and eighth this year, to earn the "Mid-Season" Championship crown.

This coming weekend the flying-stocks will run a full program Friday night and the super-modifieds, along with the late-models, will return on Sunday evening for a program complete with a feature race in each division.

SATURDAY NIGHT, Sept. 7, MARC (Midwest Association for Race Cars) will bring in a lineup of stars for a program of New Car Races with a 100-lap Championship feature.

These will be '61, '62 and '63 model cars, driven by such outstanding drivers as Jack Bowsher, Jim Cushman, Paul Parks, Dick Freeman, Dick Dunlevy Harold Smith, Ralph O'Day, Iggy Katona and others.

South Side Painter Gets First Taste Of State Recognition

Seeing beauty in things as they are, not as a "distortion in one's mind," Mrs. Lorraine Rogers, 460 Kossuth-st took up oil painting two years ago.

Her first subject was her son, and she did his portrait for the pleasure of self-expression and without thought of exhibition. In fact, when the "show" bug bit her she was ill-prepared, as she has been in the habit of giving away her paintings almost as fast as she completes them.

However, when touring the art festival at City Hall this summer she gave a second thought to her work and with the encouragement of her family entered a marine scene and an autumn landscape in the amateur class of the State Fair.

When she received notice that the "Sailboat" had taken second prize, she was amazed, flattered and burning with enthusiasm to keep on with her efforts.

Realizing the handicap of starting to paint without any technical training, Mrs. Rogers hopes to associate herself with other local artists or join a class in which she can learn some of the basic techniques.

She explained that without any instruction, matters such as mixing colors, which is routine to the more experienced artist, become a major headache for her.

With no serious ambitions to become a professional, Lorraine Rogers has made for herself a hobby from which she draws enormous self-satisfaction, and at which, according to the State Fair judges she is competent.

SELF-TAUGHT, Mrs. Lorraine Rogers was thrilled and surprised recently when notified that she had won second place in the amateur oil painting class at the prejudging of the exhibits for the State Fair. Her art was entered in competition with more than 150 entries from all over the state.

Rickels Furnace Company Installs Two-Way Radios

Rickels Furnace Company, 691 Westphal-av, is adding something new to its fleet of trucks, two-way radio. Each truck will be equipped with a two-way radio which will enable Ray Rickels, owner of the firm, to give better and faster service to his customers. At the present time, there are two service men on 24-hour call, and a 24-hour answering service.

Besides two-way radio, each truck has enough tools so that the repair can be made in one trip, and all of the trucks carry a large inventory of spare parts.

Rickel does 90 per cent of his work on older homes. Jobs in the past have included the installation of air conditioning in the Selective Service Office in the Old Post Office, and presently he is working on four buildings in the university district. Rickels stated that all of his work is custom done, and none of it is pre-fab or already made to order.

Rickels, working with his service manager, Richard Holt, and seven men, supply service to Columbus and all of Franklin County. The company carries a complete line of air conditioners and heating equipment. They also have a 10 and 20-year warranty on all furnaces and burners. There is no down payment and persons can acquire FHA terms.

Do You Know Your Sports?

(Eleventh in a Series)

The popularity of skin diving in this country is largely recent, spurred on by the national publicity heaped on Navy frogmen in World War II. Today more than six million Americans engage in the underwater sport.

The name — skin diving — has legitimate callings, tracing back to past centuries when men dove for pearls, sponges and sunken treasures, in skin only. Then, what is now considered sport was strictly business.

SKIN DIVING proficiency is largely dependent on equipment, which runs the gantlet from fins to complete rubber suits and self-contained breathing apparatus, developed in 1943.

Average cost is: fins—$7; mask—$3; snorkel—$1.50; rubber suit—$40, and scuba outfit (tank and regulator)—$125.

The rubber suits provide enjoyment on a 365-day-a-year basis for rabid enthusiasts who aren't leary of the chilly water temperatures.

SKIN DIVERS in Michigan report that pouring warm water inside their suits acts as insulation, allowing them to swim in a thermos bottle temperature.

The International Underwater Spearfishing Association in Los Angeles reports that skin diving has been a competitive AAU event for 13 years. The event alternates each year between east and west coasts.

A TREASURED LETTER from the Office of the President is read again by 78-year-old Fred Parrett, 1299 Georgesville-rd. The letter sent to the elderly rest home resident thanks him for returning an Air Force payroll check which he found while walking along the road one day.

White House Answers Letter From Area Man

"Dear President,
Enclosed please find a check . . ."

The letter was from Fred Parrett, 78, 1299 Georgesville-rd. It was addressed to the White House, Washington, D.C.

Fred Parrett is a resident of a privately owned rest home operated for elderly persons on Georgesville-rd. Before moving there he lived in the Franklin County Home for 31 years.

One day while walking he saw a crumpled piece of paper laying along the side of the road. He stooped, picked it up and read the name of an Air Force officer typed above several figures and a dollar sign. It was an Air Force payroll check which had never been cashed.

For several days the senior citizen tried in vain to contact the service man to tell him he had found his check. Efforts to reach officials to return the money also failed, and finally there was only one thing that Fred Parrett could think of to do. When you can't deal with employes, go to the boss for results.

Carefully Fred Parrett drafted a letter explaining the situation to the President of the United States. Inside the letter he placed the check, put a stamp on it and mailed it to the nation's capital.

Within a week, a reply returned on stationery with the presidential seal stamped in gold. The letter explained the President was in Europe at that time but expressed the gratitude and appreciation of Mr. Kennedy to Fred Parrett for his prompt attention to returning a payroll check issued to a member of the Armed Forces. It was signed by a personal aide of John F. Kennedy.

Something that will be cherished for the rest of his life by Fred Parrett, the reply from the White House has been carefully placed with the rest of his valuables.

Many years ago Parrett suffered a double tragedy that would affect the rest of his life.

The first was the death of his wife. As the grief-stricken husband was on his way to the funeral home he was struck by a hit-skip auto and seriously injured — an injury from which he never completely recovered.

A successful businessman when the tragedies struck, he was ruined financially by the expense of hospitals, medicine and his injuries, which prevented him from resuming his old place in society.

For 31 years he was a resident of the county home until recently when he was able to move to the Mertie Mae Rest Home on Georgesville-rd.

Today he says he is much happier in the private rest home and feels more independent in his new life. He still likes to talk of the "old days" and sharply recalls memories of a by-gone day.

But assuredly one of Fred Parrett's most pleasant memories is of the arrival of the postman with the snow white envelope stamped with the bright seal of the President of the United States.

Flath Elected To Exec Post

Robert P. Flath's election as first vice-president of the Executive Officers Council of the National Association of Home Builders was announced this week following his return from a meeting in Washington, D. C. Eighty executive officers of Home Builders Associations from 34 states just finished a five-day seminar in the Nation's Capital.

Flath is in his sixth year as executive director of the Home Builders Association of Greater Columbus, which is the 18th largest of 347 such associations in the nation. There are 399 members in the Columbus group which is affiliated with the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) and maintains offices at 42 E. Gay St.

Jack E. Stuart, assistant to Flath, also attended the meeting and an orientation school for new HBA administrators. Flath will assume his new responsibilities at the annual National Convention in December.

Enrollments are still being accepted in the Columbus Area Technician School, to be held at Central High School this fall.

All high schoool graduates, regardless of age, who have had at least one year of algebra and can pass the placement test are eligible to attend.

The two-year college level course will offer associate degrees in the fields of business data processing, electronics and mechanical technology.

Graduates will be qualified to fill such jobs as lab technicians, engineering assistants, junior process engineers, electronic technicians, systems programmer and systems analyst.

Classes will be held each week day, noon until 6 p.m., and cost will be $90 per quarter for residents of the Columbus School District, and $100 for non-residents. There will be an additional cost of approximately $30 a year for laboratory fees and textbooks.

Further information on registration is available from Clint Tatach, director, Columbus Area Technician School, 245 W. Broad-st.

Who Says 'No Time?'

One out of every hundred persons who claims "I just don't have the time to do the reading I'd like to do" is telling the truth both to the world and to himself. (The rest of us are probably just making excuses.)

Did you know there are a couple of dozen books at your Public Library that can help you increase your reading speed, maybe even double it or more, if you follow the step-by-step instructions? Improved reading skills can help you handle more paper work at the office and give you extra time for recreational and educational reading of your own choice.

Most people who say "I have no time to read" are really saying "I have no desire to read." We challenge you to take just half an hour and browse through the fascinating old and new books on the shelves of your nearest Public Library. You'll find that your desire to read has been there all the time and that, perhaps, you had only forgotten the joys and aids of the "wonderful world of books."

PLENTY OF TIME

We spend an awful lot of our waking hours moaning about our lack of time to do the things we really want to do. Actually, you can outwit time—if you know how. Yes, if you can increase your personal efficiency in your daily tasks you can actually make time—time to do the things you want. Whether you are a housewife, a businessman or a what-have-you, you can buy or borrow books that can help you increase your efficiency. Books contain ideas to cut down on time in making beds, in cleaning up the house, and in preparation of meals. They show the businessman how to organize him time at the office, how to work faster and with less effort. The student can cut his study time with the aid of tips found in books. Yes, you can truly outwit time — if you'll take the time to find out how.

Cites Advantages Of Individualized Tutor Instruction

"Individual instruction is one of the very best ways for an adult to get or finish his education," declares Miss Edith King of 321 W. 10th-av, teaching specialist and psychologist. "Let me point out some of its advantages:

"First: The person can begin his education just where he left off.

"In the second place, age is no barrier. The student can progress as slowly or as rapidly as his ability and circumstances permit.

"There are a variety of academic subjects offered. The only ones not included are those requiring laboratory facilities. Further, if a student wishes to perfect himself in one subject, e.g., Arithmetic, he can do so.

"The great advantage is the personal interest and effort of the teacher. Her attention is not divided as in class work. She is there to answer all questions as they arise, to explain all difficult passages and encourage as student needs it.

"It can be carried on in your home and no one need know you are going to school, unless you wish to tell them," adds Miss King, who specializes in individual instruction for all types of subjects on both grade and advanced levels.

"This work is conducted by a State-certified, degreed, experienced teacher and courses can exactly follow standard courses of study.

"The cost of this work is very reasonable when one considers the many advantages it offers. In closing, if one considers what an opportunity individual teaching offers the adult, many men and women should avail themselves of this opportunity."

Further information about individual instruction may be obtained by writing Miss King at the above address or by telephoning her at 299-9466.

WINCHESTER'S 1904 BASEBALL CHAMPS

DIAMOND MEMORIES—PART III

Stolen Bases, Lineup Juggling, Wheat Field Keys To '04 Flag

(Third in a series of four)
By Charles F. Coon

The Franklin County League baseball race ended in a three-way tie in 1904, necessitating playoff games between Worthington, Groveport and Canal Winchester.

But even before the playoff games, the pace for the season had been set by a pair of unusual games.

THE FIRST GAME was an early-season battle (Apr. 16) between Groveport and Canal Winchester. Corwin pitched for C-W, striking out 14 but yielding 13 bases-on-balls. Coon, pitching for Groveport, fanned 12 and walked seven.

The final score looked more like a football game report as Groveport won, 31-12, to hand Winchester what proved to be its only loss of the season.

The most remarkable aspect of the game was Groveport's movement on the bases as the winners stole 23 bases while C-W pilfered none.

LATER IN the same month, Groveport traveled to Reynoldsburg to play a game on the site of the present Waterworks Plant in Reynoldsburg.

Reynoldsburg led, 1-0, when Groveport came to bat in the sixth inning. Needing a baserunner, the Groveport board of strategy instructed Weis (the team's biggest man but weakest hitter) to get hit by the pitcher (without making it appear too obvious).

This, he accomplished and Groveport went on to score two runs. However, the lead changed hands twice more before Reynoldsburg came up in the ninth trailing by two runs.

WITH ONE OUT, the Reynoldsburg team decided to "jump" the next batter in order to put a better hitter at the plate. The out-of-turn batter laid into the ball but his long fly was caught by the left fielder.

Discovering the Reynoldsburg juggling act, the umpire ruled that the man who was supposed to have batted was out as well as the man that batted in his position.

Figuring that the game was over both teams and the spectators walked up the road into town.

HOWEVER, THE Reynoldsburg captain argued with umpire Aldrich of OSU that only one of the batters was out. Aldrich altered his decision and word was relayed uptown.

Both teams and a crowd of spectators returned and Groveport lined up in the field. Coon's first pitch was hit high and foul behind third base and the game ended the second time — this time for good.

The first play-off game was scheduled for May 28 between Worthington and Groveport. Groveport won, 13-8, as Coon fanned 10, collected a homer and a single — and received word that he had won $50 from the Pennsylvania Grit (a Williamsport, Pa. weekly) for guessing the paid attendance of the first day of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis.

IT WAS A different story when Groveport and Coon faced Winchester, however, as C-W collected 14 hits and won 9-8 after Groveport had come back to tie the score with five runs in the top of the ninth.

Winchester traveled to Worthington four days later for a makeup game which could decide the FCL championship. Worthington led 4-0 after six innings but couldn't hold its margin as Winchester came back. The regulation game ended in a 6-6 deadlock.

The score was still tied when C-W's first baseman, LeRoy Kramer, came to bat in the eleventh inning. Kramer hit a ball just inside the right field foul line.

NOW THE DIAMOND was laid out alongside a wheat field where the village school building now stands, northwest of town.

The wheat in this section of the field was almost kneehigh and while the fielder searched frantically for the ball, Kramer circled the bases with the run that earned C-W the win and the championship.

Merchants Aim For City Title

The Eastside Merchants, champions of the Intermediate Knothole League's Eastern Division, will put a 9-0 loop record on the line this weekend when they play the winner of the Bishop Ready-Westside Boys Club game for the City Knothole championship.

The Merchants, who won the divisional title by downing the Peers Club, 7-2, stand 28-11 overall and drew a bye in the first round of the championship playoffs.

A TEAM TROPHY and team medals were presented to the Merchants at a recent party at Johnson Park.

Team members include: Bill Beavers, Jim Belt, Mike Bender, Chuck Crook, Woody Jones, Danny Keene, Bill Puskas, Craig Stallings, Jim Wallar, Jim Huegerich, Blair Zerby, Dick Montgomery and bat boy Bruff Jones.

DICK KEENE serves as manager and Bob Stallings is coach. Dick Montgomery, a 19-game winner this season, will seek his twentieth victory in the championship tilt.

The Merchants divisional title comes in their second year of operation.

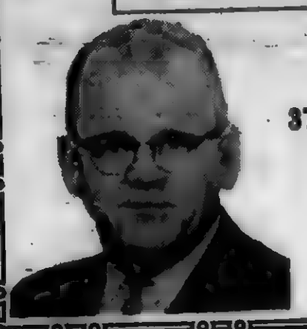
Suburban League Lineup Unchanged; Meet Monday

The South Suburban League, struggling to add at least two more members to its fold by the 1964 football season, held its first meeting of the new school year Monday night at Franklin Heights.

The four member schools—Franklin Heights, Pleasant View, Hamilton Township and Teays Valley—will meet again Monday at 8 p.m. at the same site.

BY THE TIME of the next meeting, the four athletic councils hope to form a consensus of opinion as to which schools should be sent formal letters of invitation to the next meeting.

Preliminary feelers will be sent to those schools to see exactly who might be interested in the possibilities of joining the area's newest league.



A league spokesman reported that five area schools, including Reynoldsburg, have expressed interest in the new loop. The latter school had a representative at Monday's meeting but no commitments were made.

LEAGUE OFFICIALS feel that completion of the new outerbelt will solve distance difference which several of the schools listed as a disadvantage.

The South Suburban League was born last Dec. 13 when Franklin Heights and Pleasant View broke ties with the South-Central League, Hamilton Township requested release from the County League and Teays Valley quit the Darby Valley circuit.

The league hopes to have at least two more teams in its lineup by 1964 and would expand the loop to a maximum of eight teams.

We're Going To Have A Wedding

Comes Sunday afternoon and we're going to have a wedding in our family.

For months now we've all looked forward to it and the household has been a beehive of activity.

There have been the long conversations about the announcements and whom to invite, the maid of honor and attendants, their dresses, flowers, wedding gowns, a place for a reception and a hundred other matters not to overlook a tranquilizer for mother.

Fathers don't have much say in these matters. So far the father of the bride has been given two assignments. He must be at the church on time and be prepared to pick up the bills.

I've found but one man less important than the father of the bride—the father of the groom.

A well planned wedding can be a beautiful affair and one that most young ladies and their mamas look forward to with delight, but if I had my way I'd simplify some of the wrinkles that have become "the way it should be done."

Jokingly of course, I've said that, instead of sending out invitations, it would be a more practical thing to sell tickets to a big streamlined reception with a little more of the floor show flavor and throw out the colored punch and mints. Of course the entire net proceeds would go to the newly wedded couple to get them off to a good start.

This would eliminate another problem—that of whom to invite to the wedding. As it now stands we have to be so careful that people don't get the impression that they receive an invitation just for the sake of a gift in return. And then there's the problem of where to start and where to stop on a wedding invitation list.

Anything more that I might say about streamlining a wedding might get me an invitation to stay home comes next Sunday. Actual-

DOORS OF WHITEHALL'S new elementary school will open for the first time next Tuesday, Sept. 3. The school, as yet not named, is located just east of Hamilton-rd, at 4738 Kae-av, and shares the site with Roosevelt Junior High School.

Elementary Joins Whitehall System; School Starts Sept. 3

Whitehall Schools will reach a significant milestone in its seven-year race against enrollment increases this fall with the opening of its newest elementary at 4738 Kae-av.

For the first time since 1956, all Whitehall students will be studying in conventional school classrooms, with no kindergarten classes held in rented church facilities.

Students in grades one through 12 will report to classes Tuesday morning, Sept. 3, for a full-day session. Cafeterias will be in operation, and lunches will cost 30 cents for elementary pupils and 35 cents for those in high school.

Kindergarten youngsters will begin regular classes on Sept. 9; however, boys will report alone on Sept. 3, and girls on Sept. 4.

Whitehall kindergarten pupils do not necessarily attend classes in the elementary building in their attendance district, but are assigned on a system-wide basis.

They should be registered at Whitehall High School, and parents will be informed of the school's location by mail the last of this week. Those living too far from the school will be transported by bus.

For the past seven years, until the new school was finished this summer, Whitehall School System has rented rooms in churches throughout the city to house the district's 300 to 500 kindergarten youngsters.

"However," School Superintendent Robert Crabbs pointed out, "the 5,650 students expected this fall will fill every classroom in every building. Continued growth in enrollment will again require the district to use church facilities."

The new elementary, designed to house about 520 children in grades one through six, contains 16 classrooms, office facilities, health clinic, multi-purpose room, cafeteria and kitchen.

The building is planned to permit expansion, when future needs indicate it is necessary, with an additional eight to 10 classrooms.

Attendance district for the school is bounded by the east side of Hamilton-rd and Big Walnut Creek, and from the north side of E. Main-st to the south side of E. Broad-st.

Bus stops are approximately the same as they were last

Whitehall Dems Will Hear 'Other' Side(s)

A Republican and an Independent will do the talking and Democrats—by their own choice—will be on the listening end during a unique political meeting in Whitehall. The occasion is the "Candidate For Mayor Night" program scheduled by the Whitehall Democratic Club for 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 5, at Whitehall-Yearling High School.

The speakers will be Republican Mayor Walter B. Moling and William H. (Bill) Holzhause, his Independent opponent in the November mayor's race.

This bit of political irony will come to pass because Whitehall Democrats do not have a candidate for mayor.

"After all," said Whitehall Democratic Club President Lew Oliver, "we are not less interested in the type of mayor we elect just because we don't have a Democratic candidate."

He issued invitations to both candidates to participate

Two-For-One Admission At Ohio State Fair, Sept. 2

Sept. 2, Labor Day, has been set aside as "Labor and Industry Day" at the 110th Ohio State Fair, Governor James A. Rhodes recently signed the proclamation and stated that "all families shall be admitted at the rate of two persons for one admission ticket."

The governor voiced his belief that every Ohioan owes it to himself and his family to visit the State Fair at least once, and preferably several times. In addition, the Buckeye State should pay a special tribute to labor and industry, over and above the national observance of Labor Day.

Fair-goers will be able to see a complete fair on Labor Day this year. Families visiting the exposition's center on the last day of the fair will see virtually the same areas of interest as they did on the opening day.

Bexley's Enrollment Same For Sixth Year

Bexley School District, unique in a year when schools throughout the Columbus area are struggling to absorb the surging population growth, reports figures about stationary for the sixth consecutive year.

The city's 2,620 students will return to classes Thursday, Sept. 5.

School registration, remaining at about the same level, is a true reflection of the city's status.

"There is practically no new residential building now in Bexley," School Superintendent E. D. Jarvis explained. "There can't be — there's no more room."

"We doubled our school enrollment within about six

Four-Year Enrollment Prediction Comes True

Columbus Schools' four-year "guesstimate" of its student population growth, made in 1958-59, has proven so accurate that this fall's enrollment of 98,000 plus, finds housing, teachers and textbooks in adequate supply.

Gauging their needs by the four-year forecast, schools have been able to keep in step with the exploding increase with no additional operating funds. In November the school board will ask for only a renewal of the 15-mill levy.

A new four-year building survey, to be started this fall, will chart the school system's course until 1967.

The 98,009 students returning to school next Wednesday, Sept. 4, will include 5,000 more than last spring, smashing for the 16th consecutive year, all previous enrollment records.

Half-day sessions are planned on opening day, with full days of instruction starting Thursday.

Kindergarten and evening high school classes will convene the following Monday, Sept. 9.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS

Next Wednesday will also mark opening day for all Columbus Diocesan Schools.

Registration figures show an increase of 1927, making a total enrollment this fall of approximately 35,600.

New teachers, schools and textbooks, added in proportion to new students, will swell the system's faculty to more than 3,500, the number of buildings to 144, and textbooks to an all-time high.

Five new schools, opening their doors for the first time this fall are Buckeye Junior High and Moler Elementary in the South Side, Eastmoor Junior High, east, and Valley Forge and Devonshire Schools, north.

Textbooks have received special attention during the past year, and W. W. Miller, assistant superintendent of instruction, reports that more than 58,000 pupils will be using at least one newly-adopted book.

Greatest changes in curriculum are in methods of teaching languages and physics, Miller points out. Emphasis will be on reading, spelling and hearing in languages, including English, and on laboratory work in physics.

Elective courses in consumer economics will be available for all 11th and 12 graders, and junior high grouping programs for pupils of different abilities will continue.

Scheduled school holidays are as follows:

'GIRDLE HARDLY FITS ANYMORE' ...

Capital's Facilities Stretched By Record Enrollment

Capital University's "Decade of Decision" begins to face reality Sept. 3, with its largest-ever freshman class expected.

The 1963-64 enrollment of 1,400 students will be the top mark in the university's 113-year history.

Vice-president of student affairs, James P. Shultz, admits that "We are beginning to stretch a bit. The old girdle hardly fits any more."

Already under construction, with a fall 1964 completion date scheduled, is a residence hall, slated to house 106 women, and a new administrative building, both part of the "decade" plan to provide $10 million of buildings for the 1970's.

Of the 500 new students, 470 will be freshmen with the remainder transfers from other universities and colleges.

Orientation for new students begins Sept. 3. Returning students will be on hand Sept. 8. Classes start Sept. 10.

Among new faculty and administrative personnel are Robert B. Gronlund, vice-president in charge of development. Gronlund, 37, is director of the American Lutheran Church Foundation, Minneapolis.

Also new on the administrative staff are William F. Bomhoff, acting director of admissions, and Gerard Fee, temporary dean of men, replacing John Kirker, who is working on a doctorate at Ohio State University.

New faculty members are:

Davis Memorial Park Plans Ready For Council

PROPOSED PLAN for Whitehall's 16-acre Orton L. Davis Memorial Park will go to council sometime this winter for final approval. Brush in the park is now being cleared away, according to Service Director Robert Mickey, and water and electric lines will be extended into the area in the near future. If plans are approved the park, when finished, will include a large picnic area, several playgrounds, five little league ball diamonds, a little league football field and a softball diamond, as well as basketball, volleyball, shuffleboard, horseshoes and tennis courts, a wading pool and two shelter houses. The park, purchased by Whitehall last year, was named in memory of the late Councilman Orton L. Davis who, before his death early this year, had worked diligently to acquire the park for the city. Evans, Mechwart, Hambleton and Tilton were engineers and surveyors for the project, and Harold S. Schof, architect.

FOOD MARKETS

September Good Time For Food Shoppers

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Vegetables — tomatoes, sweet corn, green peppers, snap beans, squash.

Fruits — watermelons, cantaloupes, seedless grapes.

Meats and Poultry — fryers, steak "specials," ground beef, wieners, ham, medium eggs.

Other — tuna fish, cheese, ice cream.

September's late show of summer vegetables and fruits will offer Ohio-grown goodness until frost catches them. Topping the list of fresh-from-the-garden variety are tomatoes, sweet corn, snap beans, lima beans, beets and cabbage.

Mrs. Franks

Salad greens like onions, Bibb lettuce, green peppers and cucumbers are good quality . . . many of these succulent vegetables like cooler weather and the rains have given them quite a boost.

Do you still plan to do some canning or freezing? If so, the sooner the better, for quality of most vegetables begins to slip when the peak of harvest is past. Tomatoes, from the late crop are good for canning and juice making now as well as for meals, although cool nights has slowed up the ripening. Many varieties of beans are exceptionally good.

Obey That Impulse—Buy A Watermelon

Go ahead and obey that impulse—buy one of the big watermelons you see stacked wherever fruits are displayed. All good things must come to an end—and the end of watermelon season is in sight along with cooler weather. Besides, 28 to 30 pounds of watermelon for around 60 cents will make inexpensive desserts for the Labor Day holiday coming up. Cantaloupes, too, are good buys and many of them in markets now are Ohio-grown. Shipments of Indiana and California melons will also be heavy during September—quality is excellent.

The first Tredonia grapes—the purple ones that look and eat much like Concords—are on roadside stands and Concords will follow by mid-September. Bartlett pears are coming in greater amounts, although the total U.S. crop will be smaller than usual. Some russeting is evident, but this doesn't hurt the fruit. Varieties of apples change rapidly now; early McIntosh are here but the Wealthy is probably still the least expensive apple for cooking purposes. Watch for Ohio's Stanley Prune plums this month. Northern Ohio fruit growers report that the plum trees are a sight to behold in nearly all orchards.

Meats for the Rest of the Year

Meat men say that for the rest of the year, production of red meats is expected to be three to four per cent larger than last year. Most of the increase in supplies of meat in the weeks ahead will be in beef, they say. Although some increase in the general level of beef prices is likely this fall, September prices will be below the high level that prevailed at this time last year. Pork will not be scarce, but neither will it be abundant enough to bring many specials on fresh cuts or a general lowering of prices. The heavy supplies of broilers headed for market in September will give other meat rough competition, thus keeping prices from rising much.

Milk Council Educates For Better Health

The Columbus Milk Council, established in 1931, is a non-profit, health-education organization of the dairy industry. Its purpose is to promote optimum health through the adequate use of milk and its products in accord with current scientific recommendations.

The Milk Council office is located at 1309 E. Broad-st, telephone 253-8769. Separate materials catalogs, project sheets and film lists are available. Requests for printed materials, loan projects, displays, services and films should be directed to this office.

The materials and services are provided without charge to the people of Franklin and Delaware Counties through contributions of the local dairy farmers and distributors.

A portion of the Milk Council health and nutrition education materials have been developed to meet the specialized program needs of consumer groups, such as Senior Citizens, TOPS Clubs and Child Conservation League. Among the materials suited for general adult use are pieces on dental health, on adequate nutrition for youngsters and oldsters in the family, on weight loss and control on use and care of milk and dairy products and for parents-to-be.

Don't Flunk The Course!

How many times have you heard the old saying, "Life is a university?" There's a lot of truth to it, you know. But an awful lot of people are flunking the course.

If you shut your mind to new thoughts, to new facts and ideas, then you're not getting the most out of the university of life. Learning should be a lifelong process. It keeps us young in spirit and thought. It helps us master life's problems as they come along.

If you find that you've been going stale lately—stuck in the same old rut of thinking or drifting aimlessly—maybe you need to grab hold of yourself and start off in the right direction.

The best direction for a person in your shoes is toward your nearest Public Library. There you'll find the books and magazines to put you back on the track. You will find new interests and rediscover old talents. Learning can be fun and profitable, too. Especially if you're learning at your own speed, with nobody pushing you. Use your library card to get more out of living. Use it often!

The Columbus Regional Blood Program of the American Red Cross states that 55,000 pints of blood were collected in 1962.

GOLF ETIQUETTE—10

JUST A FINAL REMINDER...

BEFORE WE shake hands and head for the clubhouse this summer, we'd like to leave one final reminder of golfing etiquette. Flags are for flying so whether you're elated over a birdie or just plain disgusted because that three-foot putt didn't drop, remember to replace that flag so the next guy has the same chance you did at a hole-in-one. As we bid a joyful farewell to our golfing "goof-off" as he takes his poor manners elsewhere, please remember—next time you play golf or another sport, try to give the other fellow the same consideration you'd like to have him give you.

Suburban Fixes Schedule, Installs Officers Tuesday

The four members of the South Suburban League officially ratified the loop's constitution Monday night at Franklin Heights High School and thus committed themselves in writing to the new league.

Installation of new officers and the scheduling of games for the '64-'65 seasons will be the tangible points of new business for the loop's next meeting, set for Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. at Franklin Heights.

THE LEAGUE, composed of charter members Hamilton Township, Teays Valley, Pleasant View and Franklin Heights, will go ahead with only a four-team setup if necessary although a six or eight team loop is desired.

The future success of the loop could possibly hinge on the reaction of a number of schools which are being contacted this week.

If definite commitments are not made by next Tuesday evening, a league spokesman admitted that scheduling could become difficult.

FRANKLIN HEIGHTS' Bill Rogers will be installed as the loop's first president Tuesday. Hamilton Township's Don Vansant will serve as vice-president.

Rosati's Takes Title In Center YYA Loop

In a contest between Burger Boy and Rosati's Market for the second round title, Rosati's came out on top, 12-9, to give it both rounds and the title as Jewish Center Y. Y. A. Slo-Pitch Softball League champs.

It was a close battle all the way with the game being interrupted with injuries and strategy by both teams. Burger Boy broke on top in the second inning, 3-1, as it combined three doubles and a single.

DOWN BY two runs, Rosati's staged its annual comeback as Cliff Marks and Phil Finke singled. Len Greenwald then doubled, scoring one run. Consecutive singles by Norm Elg, Wes Rosenthal, Chuck Friedenberg, and Pete Blue brought across four more runs.

Burger Boy came back in its half of the inning, scoring two runs on singles by Stu Israel and Bill Hymans.

With the score, 6-5, in favor of Rosati's, the champs bats hitting started to boom again as nine men went to the plate. Captain Rosenthal, after hitting a home run in the second inning, drove in two more runs.
ed as it closed the gap to 10-9.

Burger Boy was not finish-

THE TURNING point came for Rosati's at it pushed two more runs across in the last inning. The key blow came when Finke singled to score Blue and Jap Rips.

MARTIN'S MARKET win over Wolman Insurance coupled with Seymour Bakery's loss to Kozy Kitchen put Martin's one half a game into the K Division lead. Hackman Realty is one game ahead of Kozy Kitchen in the A. Division of the Jewish Center A. K. League.

Dick Stein shut out Wolman Insurance with seven hits as Martin's won 5-0. Marty Friedman continued burning up the league with three hits.

Bob Grad and Larry Lawrence led the Wolman hitters with two hits each.

KOZY KITCHEN scored a tie breaking run in the last of the seventh inning to nip Seymour Bakery, 7-6. Hal Paris with two hits, including a home run, and Larry Gordon with a two-RBI round tripper led the Kozy attack.

Ed Baier and Marv Grossmas hit triples for Seymour.

Muffler King found its winning ways as it outlasted Outdoor Military, 10-8. Mort Rising hit a triple and homerun and Henry Finke a triple to lead a 13-hit attack.

MAL ROBBINS and Harold Eisenstein picked up three hits each, including a home run apiece, to pace Outdoor Military.

Hackman Realty defeated Ontario 8-5 to remain in first place in the A Division. Harold Farmer picker up three hits for the winners. Bob Gill had two for Ontario.

WITH THE regular season completed, playoffs were begun between all of the teams except Hackman Realty who earned the title of 1963 Little League champs.

Worly Plumbing drew a bye and will play Hameroff and Smith in the second round of playoffs.

GOING INTO the final game of the Pony League double-elimination playoffs, Jetcoat Corp. and the Gold team will meet in the deciding game.

The Golds beat Capital Post J.W.V., 8-5. Needing the win to stay into contention, the Golds handed Jetcoat its first loss in the playoffs 11-7.

Writer Seeks Fish On Canada Junket

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

MANITOULIN ISLAND, ONTARIO — On the doorstep of our tent is Manitowaning Bay, a rather sizable chunk of water where Georgian Bay ends and the North Channel begins. We haven't fished yet, but expect to tomorrow.

This is a large island, more than 100 miles long. By coming up here for a few days we unexpectedly recaptured a handful of July, for the farmers are just cutting their little fields of oats. On this family camping trip we are mostly exploring around and enjoying the spectacular scenery. This country demands that you take a few days and just sit and look. While not far in miles, this is a long way from central Ohio.

I DO NOT believe you can get to Manitoulin in a single day from your area, except by air. The shortest route is up the Bruce peninsula, crossing into Ontario at Port Huron north of Detroit, to Tobermory and then taking the ferry to the island. There is a ferry leaving Tobermory at 7 p.m., which docks at South Baymouth at 10 p.m., but you would miss the scenery and a most interesting boat ride.

There are seven campsites on Manitoulin, all of them private as there is no government park on the island. We are staying at one called Green Acres, which is about six miles south of the village of Little Current.

This is a new camp in its first year of operation, and has an ideal location with campsites in the trees bordering a large beach. The owners, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Dunlop, are new at the camping business, but are most friendly and helpful. They have even told me where to fish in the morning.

THE FISHING here is apparently good. All the campers I've talked to have had plenty of fish to eat. I do not expect to set any records, but the reputation of this area (Columbus) is in good hands. The largest fish caught in recent days was a 12-pound pike taken by Robert P. Walcutt, 91 N. West-st, Westerville. Walcutt checked out just a day or so before we arrived, so I'll have to call him when I get home to see how he caught such a nice fish.

Pike seem to be one of the main species here, and I have seen several being cleaned in the six to 10-pound class. Trolling spoons and drifting large perch minnows seem to be the accepted method of catching them. Good stringers of smallmouth bass and perch are also in evidence.

According to Burton Dunlop, the best fishing chances for a newcomer to the area are in two inland lakes near here. Bass and Pike Lakes are nearby, and Bass yielded a 29-pound muskellunge last weekend. The call of the big water is too much, however, and I'll be fishing around the islands in this end of the bay.

I'll give you a report next week after we are back home.

How long has it been since your child saw YOU reading a book? Your example is most important in this business of reading. You'll find reading matter to fulfill your every need and taste at your nearby Public Library.

Tax Dept. vs. Athlete Or Long Division Revisited

The poor underprivileged athlete, who has been categorically listed among the victims of the long form for as long as we can remember, has now been taken under the wing of the Federal Government.

While most of the Washington analysts were keeping their eyes on test-ban treaties and Haitian uprisings, a couple of weeks ago the tax-burdened ballpalyer slipped in the back door with a 40 million dollar special tax relief package.

THE PROPOSAL, which would enable ballplayers to average their taxable income over a five-year period in computing their tax donation, will save the "strike-it-rich" kid from suddenly finding himself in the high bracket after a lean income period.

The remedy was explained to us thusly: Joe Doaks is earning $10,000 per year for the last four years. His income suddenly shoots up to $100,000. Instead of paying tax on the full 100 thou, Joe totals his five-year earnings, divides by five and then pays out taxes on $28,000.

But how about the strapping, 18-year-old bonus kid right out of high school who poured cement and filled ice-cream cones for his livelihood.

MORE THAN LIKELY, he hasn't been filling out a form, so his average can't be figured retroactively. The tax boys must then look into their crystal balls and speculate.

If the kid gets his bonus in a lump-sum figure and falls flat on his BA face the next season, who makes up the difference?

We had always given the tax boys more credit for foresight. If they think they've got problems now, picture the situation in five years when the big slugger sits down with the government score keeper.

"WHY THE BIG difference in income indicated here in column four?"

"Well, I was benched because I was watching too many strikes and I batted only .216. I had to take a cut in salary."

"Yes, well that should have been entered in column four A. What's this here about 1966?"

"I started out with the Athletics but I got traded for $35,000 to the White Sox. But they sent me down to Indianapolis. The commissioner ruled that the trade was illegal so I wound up with Seattle on the coast."

"THOSE FIGURES should have been inserted on the back of page 3." What's this in the added income column?"

"There was this shaving cream ad I did but they cancelled out after two weeks 'cause I was sent down. The bubble gum people sent me a contract but that runs thru 1970."

"Let's see, divide by six years — What's this here about gambling? You can't average an income on gambling."

"The general manager said I was the biggest gamble his club ever made."

"WHAT ARE ALL these figures here?"

"Those are my batting averages for the five years. Look at '67. I was really hitting the cover off the ball and — hey where ya' going? Don't you want to see the rest of the figures?"

Of course, maybe we shouldn't be so hard on the system. After all, it also lists authors as liable to "average." Authors should include sportswriters and everyone knowns we'll take all the help we can get.

BITS OF WIT (T)—

In case you've been scoffing at our little 'Golf Etiquette' series this summer, consider this:

Disabling golf injuries increased by 3,000 to a total of 18,000 in 1962, the Nationwide Insurance Co. reports.

Better than 10,000 of the injuries occured when the victim was hit by a golf ball, with an additional nine percent felled by swinging clubs.

HEAT PROSTRATION got to ten percent while overexertion sent another seven percent to the club house feet first. The remaining percentage was attributed to golf cart accidents.

Although the rate was only seven per cent, insurance officials warn that the increasing popularity of the carts plus the recklessness of their drivers might easily result in a sharp upturn in disabling accidents in this area.

Some days it just doesn't pay to get out of bed.

THE 'FEARLESS' ONE

STARTING NEXT week, the 'fearless' one will once again begin his weekly forecasts of future predictions on area high school football results. With a new crystal ball (which looks strangely like a football), the splendid swami determinedly declares he will better his 141-59-6 record of 1962.

Grid Previews Next Week

With the opening high school kickoff just better than one week away, you're probably wondering who's playing for your favorite eleven this fall and who's on that '63 schedule.

We'll have the answers to all your questions next week when the Hartley Newspapers' sports department presents, "High School Football Preview—1963" with all the news and the names who will make the news during the upcoming grid season.

Also on tap for the fall season is the return of the "Fearless Predictor" who has dusted off the old crystal ball for another try.

Look for "Football '63," next week in this newspaper!

Optimists Seek Opponents

The Hilliard Optimists request games for their eighth grade team this fall.

The Hilliard team, composed of boys who are basically 13 years of age and weigh between 85 and 130 pounds, will play any area eighth grade team, small junior high team or even a freshman team if its size is reasonably equal.

THE ADVISABILITY of any scheduled game will be decided by the Optimist organization.

The games would be scheduled for either Saturday or Sunday.

Any parochial or public schools interested in scheduling games with the Optimist team should contact either Jim Daniel, 554 Scioto-Darby Creek-rd (TR. 6-4501), or Glenn Brockmeyer, 150 Linda-rd (TR. 6-7592).

BULLETIN

Don Clayton, president of the National Professional Putters Association, announced last night, Wednesday, that the 1964 championship tournament will be held in Columbus.

The three-day tourney on the July 4 weekend will have $30,000 in prize money, the most ever offered. Site of the tourney will be either the Putt-Putt course on Hamilton-rd or the proposed 72-hole course in Upper Arlington.

Tom Rohm, manager of the year, put in a bid for Columbus at the national convention in Kingston, Jamaica.

What's Goin' On At The ~~Pool Hall~~ Billiard Parlor?

TAKING A BREAK from their daily chores as housewives, these four women (above) find the quiet and comfort of the billiard parlor an ideal mid-day setting for "getting away from it all" for awhile. From left to right are: Mickey Schoenbaum, 2808 Fair-av; Mrs. Paul Callif, 28 S. Roosevelt-av; Mrs. Sherwood Walker, 672 Kellner-rd, and Mrs. Sidney Levoff, 2653 Fair-av. Instruction is important to the beginner. Billiard parlor managers like Max Friedman (below) demonstrating the proper cue grip to Mrs. Levoff, provide the know-how for the ladies, who seem to learn quickly and try harder to improve than men.

Ladies Bring Respectability, New Image To An Old Sport

I got the word the first time I ever talked with Max Friedman about "pool." ("We don't call it pool anymore, it's billiards.")

What Max was really saying was that the game with the 15 balls and six pockets has and is undertaking the biggest reformation since Professor Harold Hill paraded his 76 trombones through the streets of River City.

IN A WORD, respectability has come to the billiard parlor.

Max, who manages Buckeye Billiards at Sullivant and Demorest-avs on Columbus' Hilltop, has opened a new insight into the game.

Along with other billiard parlor operators all over the country, he is trying to erase the stigma of the old time pool hall by enticing the public with plush, family-type surroundings in his establishment.

GONE IS the spittoon and smoke-filled parlors with the back room "hot wire" for the horserace gamblers. In its place are lines of attractive tables resting on wall-to-wall carpeting.

The billiard parlor's new face is not exactly a unique approach. The sport of bowling made the same transition, exchanging its unsavory "alleys" for ultra-modern, air-conditioned luxury "lanes."

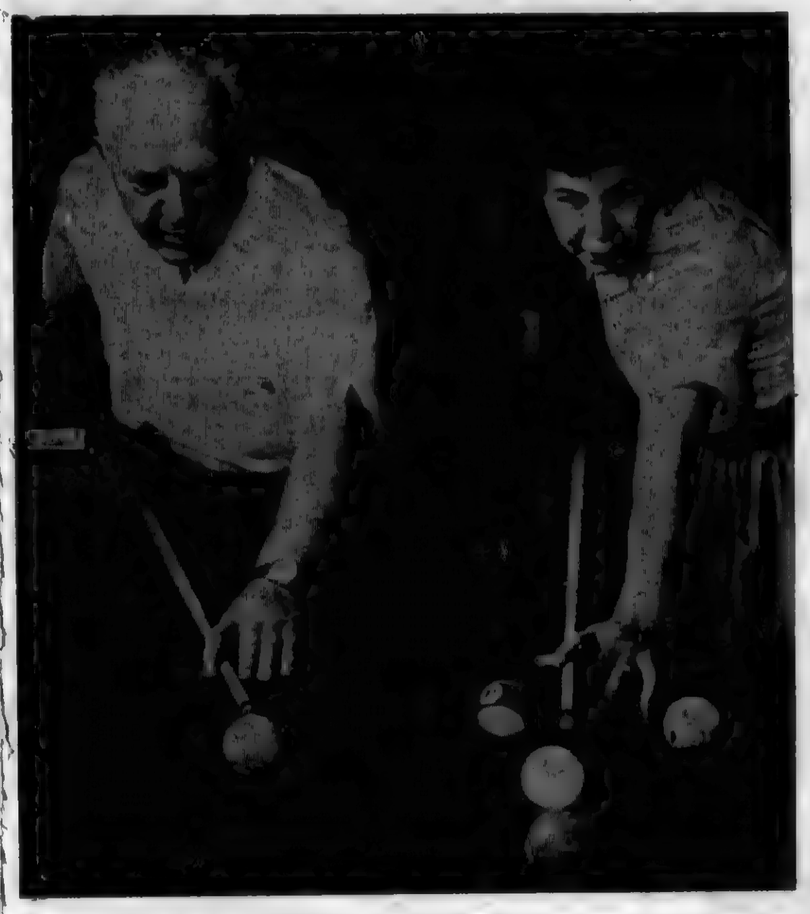
Today bowling is the greatest participation sport in the country and the invasion of the gentle sex has largely made it so.

Bowling lanes themselves, like Lincoln Village Lanes where some of the pictures on this page were taken, have hopped on the bandwagon and installed billiard tables in line with the policy of giving the public exactly what it wants.

LIKEWISE, BILLIARDS' attempt to woo the female is guided by the same hope which nurtured pin-spilling. Make the game suitable for the lady and then sit back and count the profits.

All over the country, women have fallen in love with the game. The reason is simple enough. It's cheap, it's competitive and it's less demanding than other sporting outlets for the housewife who has a busy home schedule.

And the kids are no problem. Many billiard parlors have TV sets or playroom facilities to keep the small-fry entertained while Mom pockets a two-railer.



INSTRUCTIONS are provided for beginners, and managers are encouraging the formation of leagues along the same lines as those at the bowling lanes.

It's hard to tell where the gals will pop up next. First it was the golf course, then the bowling lane, and now the billiard parlor.

But the fellows don't seem to mind having the little lady along for a little competition and business hasn't been better. So, if you're thinking this new "invasion" by the female is just a passing fancy, better guess again. The gals look like they're here to stay.

LADIES' AID? — The old billiard crutch isn't as popular as it might have been in the past. The gals, who go all out to sink that tough shot, take every possible advantage to get a good line on the ball as Vickie Plew, 3307 Norton-rd demonstrates at the right. The rule is to keep one foot on the floor but as has always been the case, the ladies are sometimes allowed certain concessions.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES —Gambling and all other unsavory aspects of the old time pool hall have disappeared forever in the "new-look" billiard parlors. Management gets the word across in no uncertain terms as picture at right points out. Equipment is also a part of the game of billiards. High heels are fine evening dress but they aren't much help at the billiard parlor. Heels and purses are exchanged for flats and cue-stick when my lady steps up to shoot.

Story By Jack Wittenmeier
Photos By Harley Groom

CLOSE-UP VIEW — Little Sue Callif gets close-up if not unobstructed view of mother's shot for eight-ball in game of rotation. The problem of what to do with the children has been licked by many billiard parlor proprietors with the introduction of TV for the kids. Others have converted storage space into playrooms which keep children happily occupied while mother concentrates on difficult job of sinking tough bank shot.

It Went In . . . So Near, Yet So Far . . . Concentration

St. Joseph's Guild Sponsors Tournament To Aid Children

A King Pin Tournament, sponsored by St. Joseph's Guild, will be held at Fiesta Lanes, 1291 W. Lane-av, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 28 and 29. The proceeds will be used to assist exceptional children at the Columbus State School.

Bishop Clarence Issenman will roll the first ball to get the tournament under way at noon. James Steer, of WTVN-TV will be master of ceremonies.

The tourney will be in three divisions—Men, Women and Junior. Single game donation will be $1.

Churches and civic groups have been invited to sell tickets and receive a percentage of all sold for their own treasury. Tickets are available from St. Joseph's Guild members and most civic groups.

St. Joseph's Guild for Exceptional Children was organized two years ago to assist the chaplain of the State School, Rev. Ralph Karl.

The exceptional children have unusual educational needs and require special health programs. They depend upon the chaplain and St. Joseph's Guild for glasses, crutches, dentures, corrective braces, particular clothing, good grooming articles and other items not furnished by the state.

The guild also furnishes volunteer members to assist with the teaching and education of these children.

Accept Students At Evening H.S.

Registration dates for the fall semester at Evening High School are Thursday evening, Sept. 5, and Monday evening, Sept. 9, according to an announcement just released by G. B. Newton, principal.

This school provides adults and older youth the opportunity to expand and review their education to enrich life and to increase their employability through a wide variety of courses.

For detailed information you should call CA. 4-3243 or stop at the school, 75 Washington-blvd., across the street from the Veterans Memorial.

Senior Citizens Center

275 McDowell-st

Senior Citizens always looked forward to Fridays and the afternoon programs planned for their interest.

During August they were suspended for vacations, but September has an interesting variety of programs planned.

McGuffey readers are familiar to most senior citizens in this area, and they bring back nostalgic memories. The program at 2 p.m., Sept. 6, will be conducted by a committee of McGuffey students, Kenneth Abbot, Mrs. Mertis Reese and Chalmers Parker.

Secretary of the local McGuffey Society, Mrs. Anna Clark, will conduct a spelling bee using words from the readers.

Members are urged to bring a favorite poem or story from a McGuffey Reader.

Jackpot Reaches $187; Money Contest To Close

With $187 in the jackpot the Hartley Newspapers Confederate Money Contest is drawing to a close.

No new money will be added to the jackpot after this week. In the meantime, some lucky subscriber to one of the Hartley Newspapers could win the entire amount of $187 if his copy of this week's paper contains the special stamp showing the $5 Confederate Money emblem.

It looks exactly like the one printed in this column on one of the inside pages in one of the display ads.

If your paper contains this emblem in special color bring the entire paper to Hartley Newspapers office, 2465 W. Broad-st. in person before noon next Monday. To win the entire jackpot the reader must be a paid subscriber to one of the Hartley Newspapers. If not, the "5" can be turned in for $5 in Confederate cash which can be spent with any place of business advertising in one of the Hartley Newspapers this week.

If the jackpot is not claimed this week further announcements will be carried in next week's paper.

The far-flung readership of Hartley Newspapers was brought to light this week in a letter received from Gary Shively, son of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Shively, 3584 Smileyrd, and enclosing a section of July 3rd paper containing a $1 Confederate stamp which entitles him to one Confederate dollar. Gary is with the Air Force near Madrid, Spain.

14th Annual Ox Roast Set For This Weekend In West Jefferson

This weekend will mark the opening of the 14th annual Ox Roast on the high school athletic field in West Jefferson. Scheduled for three days, beginning Saturday, Aug. 31, the annual affair will feature free shows, rides, games, a queen contest and dozens of activities for the entire family.

Sponsored by the West Jefferson Community and Businessmen's Association, the proceeds from this year's three-day event have already been earmarked to help pay for new lights which have been installed on the West Jefferson High School Athletic Field. More than 4,000 pounds of ox meat will be served to visitors.

SATURDAY

On Saturday night the program will officially get underway at 6 p.m. with the Ox Roast Parade. This procession, which will form at Twin and Pearl-sts, will include pets, queen contestants, floats and area bands.

From 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. trophies will be awarded to the winning softball teams. This will be followed by the preliminary and final judging of the queen contest at 7:30 p.m.

Saturday activities will be completed with a free record hop, featuring Stan Robinson of WLW-C TV.

SUNDAY

Sunday will begin with a candy hunt for youngsters from one-year-old to 10 at 2 p.m. This event will be followed by a free band concert from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.

The West Jefferson Ox Roast Junior Olympic Games will begin at 3:30 p.m. on the athletic field. Contests are open to young people from 10 to 15 years old.

Featured races will be a sack race, crab race, straight legged race, 100-yard dash and half-mile race. The physical fitness tests include pull-ups and set-ups. The skill category will include the football kick, softball throw and basketball foul shots.

Everyone wishing to enter the junior olympics should be at the park to sign up between 2:30 p.m. and the beginning of the contests at 3:30 p.m.

Evening activities will begin at 7 p.m. with a free variety show. This will be followed by a free record hop from 9 p.m. until midnight featuring Jerry Raisor of WLW-C TV.

MONDAY

The Labor Day program will be in session all day with rides and programs available for all members of the family.

Beginning at 4 p.m., Ox Roast sandwiches will be served by members of the local business organization. Nearly twice as much meat as last year will be available to patrons visiting the field.

From 4 to 6 p.m., Clay Eger from WLW-C TV will conduct a Hootenanny featuring groups from area colleges and universities.

CHILDREN' PSYCHIATRIC HOSPITAL NOW HAS POOL

DETERMINED EFFORT of the Eastern Sertoma Club and the support of many interested in the project added up to a new wading pool for Columbus Children's Psychiatric Hospital this summer. Club members sponsored a showing of a Kenley play, and ticket proceeds were used to build the pool. Jess Vizgi, associate producer of Kenley Players, at left, and Walt Pillow, program director of the hospital, inspect the pool and talk to the youngsters.

Manpower Agencies Unite To Retrain Workers For Jobs

A challenging concept in adult education is being utilized in the provisions of the Ohio Worker Training Act and the federal Manpower Development and Training Act.

National, state and local educational, business, labor and employment people have recognized and are attempting to meet the changes in technologies and the needs of business and industry with the demand for more highly trained workers.

In both training acts procedures are established to provide training for skills needed and also to aid in the problem of employment for persons who, because of unneeded or underdeveloped skills, have been unemployed and in some cases forced to become recipients of welfare or other assistance.

Local Programs

The Ohio Worker Training Act passed by the 104th General Assembly in 1961 provides for local training programs as may be needed in a community to fill gaps in local business and industry. Courses offered are usually of a type that can be accomplished in a relatively short time, ranging from two weeks to one year. Trainees must be unemployed to qualify for training.

The local Ohio State Employment Service is responsible, under the guidance of an advisory committee, for the determination of the actual need for a specific course of training, for the selection of trainees, and for the effort to place trainees in employment after training. The local school boards are charged with the responsibilities of establishing the content and administering the instruction of any program.

Final approval for establishment and for financing OWT programs is by a state central committee headed by the administrator of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

Here in Columbus, several training programs have been accomplished. Under the Vocational Education plan of the State Department of Education and the local public schools, courses were established for training maids and custodial-housemen for the hotel-motel field and typists and stenographers to fill shortages in the clerical field. Courses were considered successful with placement of approximately 70 per cent of those trained.

The federal Manpower Development and Training Act, which became effective July 1, 1962, is administered under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Department of Labor. Local schools and public employment services, as well as other agencies such as Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training, serve in communities to establish needs for specific programs and for setting up such courses. An advisory committee made up of business, labor, educational and civic leaders aids in these activities.

The MDT programs differ from the OWT in that courses under MDT not only provide training but may pay the trainee an allowance while he is in training. Actual amounts of payments may vary, with the present maximum of $42 per week for a period of up to 52 weeks. Additional payments for travel and/or subsistence could also be made to trainees required to live or travel out of a local area to receive training. Recent figures show Ohio to be the third ranking state in offering of training programs under MDT.

Current Courses

Several programs are now underway or have already been completed while still others are under consideration for establishment within the MDT framework. Completed courses include auto service attendant and mechanics and welders. Courses are currently being given for typists, bookkeeping machine operators, machine tool operators, and for retail food stand manager (legally blind).

Proposed for the near future are courses for electronic mechanics and for waiters and waitresses with repeated training programs for auto service station attendant mechanics, welders, stenographers and typists.

Meeting Challenge

Applicants who may be interested in training opportunities in the clerical or sales fields should register at the Clerical-Professional and Sales office of the Ohio State Employment Service, 74 E. Gay-st. Those interested in training courses in trades for manufacturing or service lines, including hotel, restaurant and other retail services, should register with the OSES Industrial and Service office, 309 S. Fourth-st.

The Ohio Worker Training Act and the Manpower Development and Training Act are both indications that positive action in adult education and training is a necessity. Dramatic changes in our economic picture have thrown a challenge to all of us in the community. Education and training of our local labor force to meet this challenge is proving to be a step in the right direction.

TRANSFER SOUGHT

The Ohio Department of Liquor Control has announced it is processing D-2 and D-3 permit transfers from Tanas Treneff, Tony's Grill, 1374 Parsons-av, to 1374 Parsons, Inc., Leonardo's, at the same address. The permit allows sale of high-powered beer and wine for on-premises consumption and carry out and wine or spirituous liquor by-the-glass till 1 a.m.

C-W Preens For Parade

Someone should have put the people down in Canal Winchester wise.

They're residents of a sleepy little village that hasn't changed much since the days of the old Erie Canal and shouldn't get any ideas of grandeur.

But no one did, and evidently they just didn't know any better.

So, do you know what they've done?

They got together and have put together a Labor Day celebration that would make the efforts of many a city a hundred times Canal's size look sick.

They haven't left out a single ingredient of what it takes to make a big, loud, colorful and spectacular festival. Queens and barbecues, dances and baseball games, history on parade and music on the march — take your choice—they are all yours.

They've really shot the works, and for miles around Monday the people will roll into town.

When the aerial bomb whistles through the air at 2 p.m. sharp, Guy Bigum, town marshal, will lead off the parade, followed closely by the American Legion color guard and the Mount Vernon Civil War Drum and Fife Corps.

As the 87th Fighter Interceptor Squadron shrieks through the skies, the nationally acclaimed drill team from Lockbourne AFB and a Marine Corps unit will parade.

The streets will be filled with a mile of floats alone, bands and drum corps and a gleaming display of more than 50 antique cars.

Competing for spectators' attention with the almost professional clowns of the Columbus Shrine will be four local business men who "have really let their hair down." There are, understandably, no plans to reveal their identity.

According to usually reliable informants, the local Lions Club will have to be seen to be believed, and other equally uninhibited groups, both local and imported, such the the Bexley Hillbillies, will be at their best.

The three queens, Little Miss, Junior Miss and Miss Canal Winchester, will be chosen at the pool Sunday afternoon and wear their crowns Monday.

From noon on the school grounds will be the site of the Booster-sponsored concession stands with the odor of barbecued chicken, beef and pork filling the air.

After the parade is over, putt-putt, the Little Leaguers and the amusement booths at the school are guaranteed to keep everyone in a carnival mood until the fireworks begin at dusk.

Boy Scouts will be in charge of parking, and all committee members wearing white jungle hats will be ready to direct spectators to the nearest parking area.

The parade route will be closed to parking from noon until 3:30 p.m. The area east of the swimming pool has been set aside for parade viewing from their automobiles for those unable by age or infirmity to join the crowds lining the streets.

Price-Support For Corn Crop LoansAnnounced

Price-support loans for the 1963 corn corp will average $1.11 per bushel in Franklin County, Carl W. Schacht, chairman, Franklin Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, has announced. This loan rate, plus an 18-cents-per-bushel special price-support payment, gives a total price-support rate of $1.29 per bushel for 1963-crop corn in the county. This compares with a 1962 support of $1.24 per bushel.

The chairmen reminded growers that price support on the 1963 crop of corn will be available only to farmers participating in the 1963 feed grain program. The total price support for 1963 will include not only loans and purchase agreements but also the special price support payments. While the loans will vary according to the individual crop's grade and moisture content, the price-support payment will be a uniform 18 cents per bushel on the normal production of the individual farm's 1963 planted corn acreage.

The schedule of premiums and discounts for 1963-crop corn is unchanged from that for the 1962 corn crop.

Schacht also pointed out that this year's program differs from last year's in that all the 1963 production of corn from participating farms can be put under the price-support loan. In 1962, price support was limited to not more than the normal production of the planted acreage.

Farm and warehouse-stored loans and purchased agreements for 1963-crop corn will be available from harvest time through May 31, 1964. Loans will mature on July 31, 1964.

Deserted Cars Sorry Plight

In an age when the automobile is often considered a member of the family, the number of abandoned steel "children" increases. Unlike their human counterparts, however, these "children" are not protected by law.

These steel and chrome orphans, once adopted from a Detroit assembly line, rust and cower among the weeds in back yards, on city streets and alleys, in country fields, and even in shopping center parking lots.

Capt. A. B. Cook, head of the State Highway Patrol Investigation Service, states that the patrol allows a motorist 24 hours to reclaim his car if he abandons it along ordinary state and county right-of-ways.

Should the car be left on a limited access highway, however, it will be carted away in a matter of hours, unless its owner gives explicit information to the patrol as to exactly when, shortly thereafter, he intends to remove it.

A vehicle rusting on a neighbor's property presents a more difficult removal problem. The esthetic aspect, the fact that the car is an eyesore, is not a ground for legal action. There are, however, two means by which something can be done in certain situations.

If the car is being dismantled, the owner could be warned that he may be violating the district zoning ordinances. Frank R. Reda, first assistant Columbus city attorney, states this is the usual way of getting unsightly cars removed from neighborhood property. Continued violation can lead to heavy fines and a possible workhouse sentence, especially if sale of parts stripped off the cars can be proved.

Disposal of an abandoned car is sometimes difficult, sometimes relatively simple. The procedure used depends upon where the car is located. Here are some examples of what can be done.

After being parked on a street, alley or thoroughfare for 24 hours, Columbus police will remove a car upon receipt and verification of a complaint. If the owner wishes to retrieve the car, it will cost him $10 for towing and $1 for each day the car is impounded.

When a vehicle is parked on private property without the owner's permission, removal is simple but costly. The owner has the right to phone a private wrecking service and have the car towed away.

Laws governing the disposition of vehicles deserted along county and state right-of-ways are basically similar to those governing the removal of motor vehicles from city streets.

Secondly, it is possible that the vehicle is a health hazard. This is true "in about one per cent of the cases," says Dr. Robert H. Adams, Deputy Health Commissioner of Columbus Board of Health. He denies that there is any real evidence to prove that battered old cars are the harborage of rats, the breeding places of mosquitoes, or special oasis for the growth of irritating weeds.

There's an optimistic note, however. The Columbus Board of Health doctor cites the fact that often a health officer's visit and an appeal to the person's sense of community spirit and neighborhood pride can persuade him to have the wreckage carted off.

How does one start action in getting a junker removed from another's premises in your neighborhood? Columbus residents should phone the city prosecutor's office at the police station.

In rural Franklin County, excepting where there are local law enforcement officials, you should contact Mrs. Thelma Hardy of the Franklin County Rural Zoning Office in Columbus.

Both offices will determine if there is a justifiable complaint and advise the best course of action.

RETIRED TO THE COUNTRY is this Buick off Parsons-av in Columbus' South Side. The car slid off the road last winter. Vandalism has made removal difficult and costly.

AUG 1963

Bless Those Salt Mines!

Labor Day can hardly be termed a day of rest from labor. It is, for most of us, a day away from labor by which we earn our daily bread. But a day of rest? Hardly!

Labor Day is double-header baseball games, the last "official" family picnic and the trip back from "grandma's" house. It is the end of a long, exhausting but enjoyable weekend.

Labor Day represents the final "big day" of the season for the amusement parks and resort areas. It is the last fling before the trek back to school, and the beginning of the end for a summer that has been very easy to take.

Labor Day—for those directly concerned with the laboring man, the union movement and the national economy — will show a serious, somber face. Brave words on both sides of the labor-management issue will again far outweigh courageous deeds.

And, sad but true, it is safe to predict that the Labor Day weekend will be a very unsafe time on the nation's highways. Despite warnings and pleadings, hundreds of Americans will have marked their last holiday on earth.

But for most of us, the day after Labor Day will be one of the most welcome days of the year. We can get back to our jobs and begin to recuperate from doing too much of what we thought would be relaxing.

AMF Off Key

Representatives of the American Federation of Musicians have aptly demonstrated that there is such a thing as "legal shakedown." They have forced Ohio State Fair management's agreement to a $3,403 contract whereby musicians will NOT play at an event where they are neither needed nor wanted.

Operators of the annual horseshow at the State Fair have switched from an orchestra to an organist for background music. Orchestras, they say, frighten the animals, while organ music has a soothing effect.

When informed of the change, the union representatives hit back—low and hard. Their edict, in effect, was this: "If you don't sign a contract for the horseshow, we won't furnish musicians for the nightly grandstand show." The fair management had little choice but to capitulate.

As a result, 11 musicians will attend each performance of the horseshow. They will not work. But they will be paid.

We commend to the attention of the musicians' union representatives two appropriate quotations. Grover Cleveland said: "A truly American sentiment recognizes the dignity of labor and the fact that honor lies in honest toil."

"Honest labor," said Thomas Decker, "bears a lovely face."

But a shakedown (legal or otherwise) is ugly and "a truly American sentiment" will surely recognize this non-musical performance as a flagrant abuse of responsibility and trust.

Labor Day: When Working Is Fun

With nearly 70 millions of steadily employed workers and our approaching a gross NP of 500 billions, it's about time for many of the constant crabbers to change their tune.

Thirty years have gone by since we started to dig ourselves out of the "great depression," which was worldwide and not the fault of Herbert Hoover, as then so loudly proclaimed by the un-thinking.

If the late and great Al Smith had been elected in 1928, he too would have been unhorsed by this cyclonic and devastating "psychological tailspin" that ended an era of 100 years of orthodox expansion and development of the only free people in the history of the world.

This "hectic interlude" has lasted longer than anyone was willing to believe. More people got hurt more terribly for a longer period than ever before in our entire national existence as a free people.

Then a generic morale boost became a glimmer on the horizon of despair. No other people ever behaved as marvelously as our masses behaved in those years. There were only two food riots and millions of families got together and ganged up on all the trouble, doing the best they could with what they had left.

It is to their everlasting credit that all genuine Americans—regardless of color, class, creed or race—rode out the terrible strains day by day and we survived as a free people while the rest of the world really sank into anarchy and panic.

You just can't keep the American people down forever. It is time for work to become important and private enterprise be allowed to make some money and keep more and more of it for the real "common good." If our persistent professional Socialist hell-raisers don't like the American Way of Life, why don't they go to Russia or China and make a security bargain with slavery? You don't see anyone getting "crushed in the rush" for the boat, do you?

Sees Little Public Support For Wilson-rd Extension

To The Editor:

At a city council meeting July 29, the Holly Hill Civic Association requested the defeat of the proposal to extend Wilson-rd from Broad-st to Sullivant-av for traffic reasons. Other immediate property owners likewise opposed this extension for an excellent reason, the "quick-take" legislation for land acquisition. All points were well taken and council refused to pass these proposals.

It seemed that although many good points were brought out as to why a road should "not" be so constructed, there were no apparent reasons "for" such a move.

On the surface, it would appear that a road from Sullivant to Broad at Wilson would be ideal to alleviate the burden of traffic on such side streets as Demorest, Wicklow and Southampton. It would look like an ideal easy access to our own area for a straight shot to the Great Western Shopping Center.

It is the personal desires of just a few to ultimately link Wilson-rd with Alkire-rd. This point alone would lead you to believe that a master plan is in the offing, but this only looks good on paper. Secondly, you have two schools which someday will serve Holly Hill and Georgian Heights and probably part or all of the Westgate Manor Apartments. Where would this road be, constructed—right in the school yards between the areas served and the schools!

The extension would run through the most populated area on the Hilltop.

There is no public support to amount to anything for such a road. Only a select few and possibly some heavy industries which would have a shortcut truck access to southern routes and, of course, the shopping center which will have even greater competition with the advent of two more large discount centers on Broad-st, west of Georgesville-rd.

We understand that already the city has paid several thousand dollars for a survey for the first leg of this road, which in itself is a waste and only a token of what will have to be spent from all the funding authorities, city, county and federal.

We would be the last to ever stand in the way of progress, but it is obvious that progress is not being made or even attempted in this misconceived nightmare of concrete strips which is trying to be shoved down the public's throat as a "planned program."

We feel that great foresight was shown by the city council in turning down this ignominious plan. We are sure that support can be gained by those who will be the recipients of this highly impractical super highway. We feel it necessary for the safety and welfare of our children to enlighten officials at all levels of government and the public of the hazards which will confront us if we stand idly by and let such a demon be born.

Defends 'Rights' March

To the Editor and the Citizens of Columbus:

August may well be the month that the nation may some day look back upon as the time when responsible individuals recognized the urgency and necessity that promoted the most unique demonstration of the human spirit this nation has ever known. When the American Negro begins his walk to the Capitol this Aug. 28, he should be carrying with him every American's hope.

He will be a living symbol of the historic struggle of mankind. Since man first came out of the caves of ignorance into the light of reason and understanding he has had to be forever on guard to better himself and his community lest he should fall prey to those near him who stood ready to deprive him of his God-given rights.

The time is here when we must — individually — take a stand. We must respect all men's opinions and beliefs as do the foundations of this country—so I am just asking you to declare yours. I am hopeful that you will write to your senators and representatives urging them to support strong Civil Rights legislation.

Civil Rights today is not just a term — it is a must. The future of our community, as well as the future of this nation depends upon the attitude the American people take toward this noble cause.

We in this community must begin immediately to prove to all our citizens that this nation will no longer tolerate the disgraceful attitude that a portion of our citizens are subjected to daily. I am sending this letter to you with the sincere hope that you will join with me in promoting the dignity of the human soul.

Guest Pulpit . . Home Should Be Center Of Loyalty, Service

Ephesians 2:1-4: For he is our peace, who has made us both one, and has broken down the dividing wall of hostility.

We are a people alienated from God and separated from each other. This can be portrayed most vividly in our family situations. If we could look honestly at ourselves we would see that we do not really listen, understand, or accept our husband's wife's, children's points of view. Rather we impose our own upon them.

Robert Parr

When we use the home as just a place to eat and sleep it becomes like a cold hotel. When all that is talked about or thought about by the head of the house is "Where can I get that extra dollar" the home becomes like a business concern. The children get to know an executive rather than a father. Mothers and fathers no longer take time or responsibility to educate their children.

When there is no time given to recreation within the family, the recreation goes on, even though undirected. In school the children are told to read good books that will expand their horizons—will let them grow intellectually. When they come home all they can find to read is a comic book or a sex magazine.

In Sunday School the children are told that they should read the Bible and have daily devotions. But when they get home everyone is too busy in the long day to take five or ten minutes to enrich their spiritual growth. We find that we are alienated from each other in our families. Do we really make recreation, music, literature, or church a part of our family life?

As a parent you go to the edge of the swimming pool, sit in an easy chair and say "Go on!" When we expand this principle to every other area of our life, it is no wonder that so many children fail to realize the wonder and beauty of great music, great art, great literature, and especially of great faith. Too many of us are sitting at the edge of the pool saying "Go on!" instead of getting into the water and saying "Come on."

God has made marriage and the family and the home the center of society. As we read the Ten Commandments we note that the middle commandent deals with the home. Numbers one to four are related to loyalty to God. Commandment five deals with the home, while numbers six to 10 relate to service to our neighbors.

Thus we find even in the comandments that the home is the center of our loyalty to God and service to our neighbors. Theology and ethics are brought together in the home or not at all.

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Negro Student Capacity Vital Question

Do Negro students, on the average, turn in a lower academic performance than white students because of inherent differences in capacity?

Or can this be blamed on poor environment and social deprivation brought about by white bigotry and intolerance?

These are bald and brutal questions. But perhaps the welfare of both white and Negro children in America demands that we have the honesty and the courage to find the answers.

Jones

A few weeks ago Federal District Judge Frank M. Scarlett turned down an injunction suit brought by parents of a Negro child to force the integration of schools in Savannah, Ga. In his opinion the judge cited the testimony of various witnesses.

First was Dr. R. T. Osborne, professor of psychology and director of the Student Guidance Center at the University of Georgia. He said that the city of Savannah since 1954 has been giving the California Achievement Battery and California Mental Maturity Test to all students in the sixth, eighth, tenth and twelfth grades. The first tests reading comprehension, vocabulary and mathematic reasoning. The second is an I.Q. test, i.e., correlation between mental and chronological age.

In reading, according to Dr. Osborne, Negro students averaged two years behind white students at the sixth-grade level and dropped to three years difference at the 12th grade. In arithmetic at the 12th grade the average white pupil in Savannah was working just above 11th grade national norm, but Negro pupils were at the 8th grade level. In I.Q. at the 10th grade white children tested an average of 103 and colored children 81.

Similar test results all over the nation are generally conceded even by the strongest advocates of integration. But, they point out, reading comprehension, ability to handle numbers, and even I.Q. itself are affected by home environment. The child brought up in surroundings where dinner table conversation is puerile, where vocabulary is sparse, where there are no books, etc. is not likely to be as stimulated mentally as a child raised under greater sophistication.

But another witness in the Savannah case doubted if environment could make as much difference as the tests showed. Dr. Henry E. Garrett, emeritus professor of psychology at Columbia University, asserted that the spread shown in the Savannah tests is equ'd in the North. He claimed that "the differences are greater than can be spanned in a single class" and that it would be necessary either to drop the level of achievement to a point where education would be ruined for the average white child, or to raise it to a point where the average colored child would be frustrated and left far behind.

Dr. Ernest van den Haag, professor of Social Philosophy at New York University, tackled the theory that integration will diminish race tensions and race consciousness among children. He said:

"Studies made of actual intermixing of groups in classrooms confirm the predicted result that an increase in cross-group contacts increases pre-existing racial hostility rather than ameliorates it. This group tension is greatest where obvious group identity criteria exist, such as physical appearance or variations in learning rate. Such groupings prevent a class having a natural homogeneity, multiply disciplinary problems, and decrease attention to study."

But what about the superior Negro youngster, the one who may rank well above the white average? If you assume that the pace in all-Negro schools will be slow isn't it unjust to subject any superior child, white or black, to such environment?

Not so, said Dr. van den Haag. In a Negro school the superior Negro becomes a leader in a group with which he will always be identified. Put into an overwhelming white school this identity is lost and the faster achievement pace will diminish his own accomplishments. Worse yet will be the effect on slower Negro children in their own schools. Not only will they be deprived of their ablest classmates, but the sense of inferiority will be heightened by the fact that only the smartest can move in with the whites.

Now it must be noted that Judge Scarlett is a Southerner, that several of his expert witnesses were Southerners, that, however honest and sincere their testimony, they may have unconsciously tried to rationalize deep-seated prejudice. The integrationists can also muster distinguished expert testimony to the effect that there are no inherent differences between the races.

But we had better learn the truth quickly, because the truth will soon be apparent for all to see. It will not be changed or covered up by orthodoxy on either side, by the smug assumption that the Negro never can achieve equal performance, or by the emotional rebuttal that to even entertain the suspicion of inherent differences is to plead guilty to bias and anti-Christian thinking.

Significant tests can be made — tests comparing Negro and white children of equal economic status in areas where segregation has never been practiced.

If it can be proven that differences vanish, the American white man has a lot of atoning to do. If differences won't, we may be on the way to the ruination of many school systems — a tragedy to children of both races and a source of steadily increasing hatred.

We'll never gain anything by snidely claiming that what isn't so is so.

UP IN THE AIR

The traffic plane project in Columbus is a joint effort by individuals and organizations to serve the public in trying to help sovle acute traffic problems.

The plane, a Helio Courier, is taken up during morning and evening rush hours by one of three pilots employed by its private owner. It is based at Don Scott Field. In about an hour the 85-mile flight covers all parts of the city at 1200 to 1500 feet altitude. Sometimes guests are invited, and this observer was happy to be one on a recent morning flight with Officer Don Gallagan and Pilot Ronald Wright.

One of three regularly assigned police officers is always aboard. They are veterans in traffic work. Their primary job is to observe traffic conditions and to report to police headquarters. Also, every few minutes, they are switched over to WBNS radio for broadcast to the public.

The officers are Sergeant Frank Peterfy of the Traffic Bureau; and from the Public Information Office, Don Gallagan and Steve McDonald.

The program is underwritten by private commercial interests, including a casualty insurance company and a food store chain.

Three people know what they are doing and do it well. No one will ever know how many vexed motorists are saving time and tension by heeding what they hear from the traffic plane.

It says here . . .

Knowledge sometimes saves trouble.

To A Flower Girl

This past week I ran across this little poem by Otta Louise Chase which so aptly describes our "flower girl."

Littlest girl in the wedding,
You're wide-eyed and winsomely sweet,
Fair as the flowers you're spreading
To cushion the happy bride's feet.
Littlest girl in the wedding,
Time rushes rapidly by,
In a trice it is you who'll be treading
That aisle where the bride's flowers lie.

Why do we wait till a person's gone,
To send him flowers galore?
When a single rose would have meant so much,
If we'd taken it to his door?

SURE HANDS OF THE SURGEON

A child walks... an arm is straightened ...a growth is removed... these and many other things are the result of the fine work of the surgeon. This is an occupation and a labor worthy of appreciation.

A star... a new born baby... the world itself... these and many other things reveal God to us. "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork."

Psalm 19, 1

God has wrought a great work. Let us show our love and appreciation by worshipping him in Church each Sunday

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH ..... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

BUSINESS REVIEW

IN SCHOOL

Army Capt. Robert D. Morrow, son of Mrs. Marie E. Morrow, 1711 Niagara-rd, is attending a six-month career course at The Ordinance Center, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. The course prepares officers for duty as field grade officers, and career assignments in the general staff. He is a 1950 graduate of Northeast Catholic High School in Philadelphia, and a 1954 graduate of the University of Pennsylvania.

Leslein Named Representative

George E. Leslein, 476 Virginia-cr W., has been appointed a district representative for Lutheran Brotherhood, fraternal insurance society.

He is serving North Columbus, Worthington and Westerville as an associate of the Columbus area general agency of Lutheran Brotherhood, which has headquarters at 1785 Kenview-rd. Paul L. Gemilere is the general agent.

A native of Columbus, Leslein attended Bexley High School and Ohio State University. He served in the Air Force. Before joining Lutheran Brotherhood, he was associated with the Borden Co., Columbus.

Leslein is a member of Faith Lutheran Church, Columbus, and is married to the former Linda Huiss of Columbus.

ENTERS BLISS COLLEGE

Moling & Associates Offers Security Guard Service

Moling & Associates, Inc., 2427 E. Main-st, was formed to give the best possible investigation and security guard service to all types of businesses.

Most people think that the security guard's only job is to keep persons from stealing merchandise. This is only part of his job and as Richard Moling, president and general manager of the firm points out, most of his guards are responsible for looking after machines, making bank runs, and keeping a constant check on the plant and store fire system. Many people's lives depend on the responsibility of the security guard and he should know how to handle any emergency which might arise.

Moling & Associates is one of the largest investigation and guard services in the country. Moling, with a staff of about 100, has broken the organization into two districts—Northern and Southern Ohio—and has recently moved guards into Indiana.

Some other services offered by Moling are lie-detector tests, finger-print service, photography (still and movie), and trained investigators for every need.

Moling also said that his firm is insured and bonded, has international affiliations, and is never closed. The firm is a member of the Ohio Association of Private Detective Agencies, and a member of the Associated American Detective Agencies.

Cites Advantages Of Individualized Tutor Instruction

"Individual instruction is one of the very best ways for an adult to get or finish his education," declares Miss Edith King of 321 W. 10th-av, teaching specialist and psychologist. "Let me point out some of its advantages:

"First: The person can begin his education just where he left off.

"In the second place, age is no barrier. The student can progress as slowly or as rapidly as his ability and circumstances permit.

"There are a variety of academic subjects offered. The only ones not included are those requiring laboratory facilities. Further, if a student wishes to perfect himself in one subject, e.g., Arithmetic, he can do so.

"The great advantage is the personal interest and effort of the teacher. Her attention is not divided as in class work. She is there to answer all questions as they arise, to explain all difficult passages and encourage as student needs it.

"It can be carried on in your home and no one need know you are going to school, unless you wish to tell them," adds Miss King, who specializes in individual instruction for all types of subjects on both grade and advanced levels.

"This work is conducted by a State-certified, degreed, experienced teacher and courses can exactly follow standard courses of study.

"The cost of this work is very reasonable when one considers the many advantages it offers. In closing, if one considers what an opportunity individual teaching offers the adult, many men and women should avail themselves of this opportunity."

Further information about individual instruction may be obtained by writing Miss King at the above address or by telephoning her at 299-9466.

Hanna Paint Co. Celebrates Successful Diamond Jubilee

PRESENT at the drawing of 75 winners of Starfire Keepsake diamond rings at the Hanna Paint Manufacturing Co. office were, left to right, Billy Maxted, dixieland jazz band leader; Kacy Jones, executive vice-president of Hanna Paint Co.; Dean Miller, radio, TV and screen star, and Clark Smith, sports commentator.

"The Hanna Diamond Jubilee was a most successful celebration for both the company and its dealers," said Kacy Jones, executive vice-president of the Hanna Paint Manufacturing Co.

The executive stated that company sales had increased 17.5 per cent for the first five months, compared to a national increase of four per cent.

In addition, the introduction of the special Hanna Diamond Jubilee white outside house paint, a first for the company both product and price-wise, proved most successful in every respect.

During the celebration the firm also awarded 75 Starfire Keepsake diamond rings. Jones attributed an increase in store traffic, significant to the Hanna Paint dealerships, to the promotion. "There were thousands of entries for the drawings in every Hanna trading area."

Krieger was also named a winner in the Ford Motor Company contest for high sales performance on new Ford cars and trucks during a 60-day period. He and his wife will travel to Hawaii for a week's vacation with all expenses paid. The couple leaves Aug. 25.

New Columbus Insurance Co. To Open Offices

A new fire and casualty company, licensed by the Ohio Department of Insurance last week, has selected Columbus as the site of its home office and will begin operations around Nov. 1.

E. F. Landthorn, executive president of the Automobile Club Insurance Co., Columbus, was elected president of the newly formed Save-T-Risk Insurance Company at a meeting of shareholders held this month in Columbus.

Under the charter granted by the Secretary of State, the company, officials said, has broad fire and casualty powers. For the present time, however, it will concentrate on full coverage automobile policies.

The company will specialize in issuing low cost merit-rated automobile policies by direct mail to Ohio residents with good driving records. Landthorn said, "The purpose of our company is to provide quality insurance to responsible policyholders at minimum cost by utilizing modern merchandising methods and permitting the motorist to save through safety." Home offices will be located at 3181 W. Broad-st.

New Downtown Dance Studio To Open Sept. 9

Stella Becker has announced that her studio at 209 S. High-st will open Friday, Sept. 9.

Classes will be organized as follows: Children from the age of four are enrolled in the pre-school class for training in children's ballet, tap and dance exercises; other classes are grouped according to previous dance experience — beginners, intermediate, junior, senior and advanced—through high school and college age.

A class for business girls will also be offered, as well as a ladies' dance exercise class.

Ballet is stressed since it is the foundation for all types of dance. The Cecchetti or Italian, French and Russian are given in graded classes according to age and ability. For teenagers there is modern jazz and ballet, and also the latest style in tap dance.

The studio is located downtown, close to all bus lines and ample parking. Further information is available by calling CA. 4-0822.

Citizens Invited To Park Council

Anyone interested in the betterment of the community is invited to attend the meeting.

'Touch Of Indianapolis' Set For State Fair Track, Sept.2

Local racing fans who have always had the urge to visit Indianapolis Speedway and see the fast Memorial Day "500" will get to see a modified version at this year's 110-th Ohio State Fair.

Scheduled for tops in racing thrills on Labor Day, the 50 mile "Buckeye State 100" Championship Race will see several Indianapolis "500" veterans traveling at a two-mile-per-minute clip to take home the trophy and a share of the $5,000 prize money.

A SPECIALLY - PREPARED surface on the track in front of the grandstand will remain virtually "dust-free' throughout the 100-lap grind.

Special equipment will gently disc, grade and bank the entire track surface. Then a liberal flow of calcium chloride will be worked in to this loosened top surface, assuring State Fair management of a dust-free race.

Time trials for qualifying heats will be run at 10:30 a.m. with the championship race getting underway at 4:30 p.m. Early entries include a host of speedway veterans, indicating that the State Fair's first "Buckeye State 100" race will be hotly contested from start to finish.

Registration At Dance Studio To Begin Sept. 12

The Georgia Gay Studios of dance, 776 E. Whittier-av, and in the American Legion Hall on Zettler at Livingston-av, are accepting students for the fall season.

Classes are offered in ballet, tap, toe, modern jazz and acrobatic dancing. Students may enroll by calling HI. 3-[illegible]13 or 237-7521. Miss Gray will be at the American Legion on Thursday from 3 to 5 p.m. for new registrations and personal interviews.

Instruction begins at the Whittier studio on Sept. 9 and at the American Legion on Sept. 19. Classes are personally taught by Miss Gay.

With long winter evenings ahead, remember that there is no companion like a good book. Librarians at your Public Library will help you select books on your favorite subjects or by your favorite authors.

Hints Out On Theme Of Floats

With the theme of "Our American Heritage Living Pictures of Our Past," every street in town has entered a float which will be interspersed with those of church and civic organizations.

A sneak preview of the titles of these projects which have been built with cloak and dagger secrecy should titillate the imagination of all.

A few bring a quick visual image of treasured bits of American history, such as the "Spirit of '76," "Iwo Jima," "Spirit of St. Louis," "Landing of the Pilgrims" and the "Wright Brothers' First Flight."

But how will "Let Freedom Ring Forever," "The Freeing of the Slaves" and the "Pioneer Spirit" be portrayed?

And what about "WPA Days," Mountain Dew" and "Young Love"?

Certainly there will be a steamboat involved in "Fulton's Folly," but will a chestnut tree be spreading in "The Village Blacksmith"?

The floats will be judged on closeness to theme, workmanship, originality, color coordination, visual impact and adequate identification of street and title.

Do You Know Your Sports?

(Last in a series)

One of the few uniquely American sports is the game of volleyball, enjoyed today by more than 20 million people, both men and women, in this country.

The game, number one conditioning sport for American businessmen, was originated in 1895 by a YMCA physical education director in Holyoke, Mass. for men of middle ages and over.

IT'S POPULARITY increased until today when it is listed as an entry in the Pan American Games with Olympic recognition just around the corner.

The game, played with two opposing teams of six players or less, has a reputation for being slow and somewhat dull.

Volleyball, however, which demands quick starts and stops, jumping and twisting, can be played as fast as the competitors wish to make the game.

THE SKILL IN the game involves well-placed serving ponents with teamwork all-important for victory.

Strictly an aerial game, points are scored when the ball is served over a net and hits the floor inbounds or after the defensive team fails to return the ball over the net in no more than three attempts by striking the sphere with palm or fist.

Points can be scored only by the serving or offensive team. When the serving team fails to return an exchange, its serve is forfeited. A game is won when one team scores 15 points but the winning margin must always be two points.

VOLLEYBALL COURTS, which can be constructed both inside and out, run 30 by 60 feet, halved by a net three feet deep with the top of the net eight feet of the floor.

Inflated rubber or leather balls, 26-27 inches in diameter and weighing 9-10 ounces, range in price from two to 20 dollars. Nets, stakes and poles cost from five to 60 dollars.

The U.S. Volleyball Association is located at 301 E. Martin-st, San Antonio, Tex.

Beulah Park Opens Sept. 7, Special Features Planned

Many special features will mark the 19-day fall race meeting at Beulah Park, starting Saturday, Sept. 7 and running through Saturday, Sept. 28.

As usual the highlight of the autumn season will be the running of the $10,000 added Ohio Championship at a mile and a sixteenth. The race is set for Saturday, Sept. 21 and it will be the nineteenth running.

DURING THE final week of the meet, there will be two other specials to attract the fans. First running of the Beulah Kindergarten Handicap for two-year-olds is scheduled Wednesday, Sept. 25 with a purse of $3,000 hung out for the first year performers who will go five and a half furlongs.

Finally, on the last day of the meeting, the second running of the Beulah Park Special will be staged at a mile and a sixteenth and with a $4,000 purse established.

The Special is limited to horses which have started twice at the meet for a claiming price of $1,500, and thus it offers a rich opportunity for the ordinary plater who is the background of the sport.

President Robert Y. Dienst has set 2:15 as the daily post time except on Fridays when the first race will go at 3 o'clock.

Quarter horse races on Fridays, will be held at 2:15 prior to the regular program.

Motorcycle Races Sept. 8 At Fairgrounds

Sunday, Sept. 8, the Ohio State Fairgrounds half-mile flat track will be the scene of the 15th annual Ohio State Championship motorcycle races.

This year the races will be sponsored by the Golden Arrow Motorcycle Club of Columbus, in cooperation with the Central Ohio Heart Association "Heart Fund."

TOP EXPERT, amateur and novice riders from all over the country will be in for the seven-star program that will have purse money of $2200.

There will be ten events, topped with the 10-lap (five-mile) Championship feature for Expert A.M.A. licensed competition riders of Ohio only.

All events, outside of the Championship feature, will be open to any and all A.M.A. licensed competition riders.

TIME TRIALS will begin at 10 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 8, and the races will get underway at 2 p.m. that afternoon.

There will be no advance sale of tickets, but the ticket offices, at the fairgrounds, will open at 7 a.m.

General admission tickets will be $1.50 for adults while children, under 12, will be admitted free. Grandstand seats will be $1.00 for both adults and children.

Tickets On Sale For Agonis Fete Planned Sept. 18

The Agonis Club's annual kickoff dinner for the OSU football team will be held at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 18, at the Grandview Inn. It will be the only public appearance of the entire 1963 Ohio State Football team and coaching staff.

As he has done in the past, coach Woody Hayes will introduce his probable starting line-up for the Sept. 28 opener against Texas A & M in Ohio Stadium.

THE BUCKS will be in their third week of fall practice when they gather at the Grandview Inn so Hayes should have a pretty good idea by that time who will comprise the nos. one and two units.

Lenny Dee, one of the nation's most accomplished organists, will share feature billing on the program and provide the musical entertainment immediately following the dinner hour festivities.

The annual kickoff dinner was a complete sell-out last year so the general public is advised to get their tickets early. The $5.00 tickets are on sale at Dunhill's and Richman Bros. Central Ticket Office downtown, the Gloria Restaurant 2193 Riverside-dr, and Carl's Knotty Pine, 1765 W. Third-av in Grandview.

Francis "Moose" Machinsky, outstanding tackle on Ohio State's 1954 national championship team, and longtime Agonian Bernie Hodapp are co-chairmen of the '63 kickoff dinner.

Pit Stops

Super-modified speed-pilot Bob Smith snared his third feature win of the season and Paul Parks, driving a '60 Ford in the late-model division, made it six features for the year and four-straight in Sunday night's races at the Columbus Motor Speedway.

This week the flying-stocks will be back. Friday night and Sunday evening the Williams-rd oval will hold the Labor Day Championship races for both the super-modifieds and the late-models, with a big championship feature in each category.

TIME TRIALS both nights will begin at 7 and the first race will start at 8 o'clock.

In the raceway's game of "Total," for the fans, there will be $500 in cash Friday night for those who can pick the first five, in order, in the stock feature.

On Saturday night, Sept. 7, the MARC new cars, 1961 through 1963 models, piloted by such stars as Jack Bowsher, Jim Cushman, Paul Parks, Ralph O'Day, Harold Smith, Dick Dunlevy, Mike Klapak, Iggy Katona, Dick Freeman and others from Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan and Illinois, will be at the Southside oval for a program, complete with a 100-lap championship feature.

LAST FRIDAY night Sonny Pencil of Urbana grabbed his second feature of the season. He beat out Don Gregory, Jim Woods, Whitey Dodson and L. T. Cornette.

Women Voters League Seeks Informed Citizen At Polls

The League of Women Voters is engaged in adult education with a distinctive purpose. Through study and discussion, it seeks to inform its members to the end of active participation as citizens. Then, through its organization and its individual members, it seeks to promote the informed and active participation of all citizens in government.

In a recent speech, Mrs. Robert Phillips, president of the League of Women Voters of the United States, said, ". . . as more and more citizens become knowledgeable, the more the very fabric of self-government is strengthened."

The League of Women Voters of Metropolitan Columbus is an organization open to all women of voting age in the community. A five-dollar annual dues fee brings the member regular newsletters on the local, state and national affairs of the League. Likewise it gives the member the opportunity to vote or express her opinion on current and future studies the League undertakes.

Topics Studied

The metropolitan Columbus League counts some 450 women as members. These members are organized into 15 units, of a geographic or meeting-time character. The units operate as monthly discussion meetings where the progress or the results of specific study topics are presented and assessed. The intensive study required to present a topic for such discussion is undertaken in separate groups which any member can join.

For the League year, 1963-64, particular topics for the LWV of Metropolitan Columbus include two on the national governmental level (1.) the U.N. and (2.) the foreign economic policy; one on the state level (Ohio finance); and two at the local level (1.) public welfare and (2.) local government structure and organization.

Any woman interested in membership in the League of Women Voters is invited to contact Mrs. Sidney Voris, membership chairman, at 235-3833.

WWI Veterans To Meet Sunday

Veterans of World War I, Barracks 461, will meet at Veterans Memorial, 250 W. Broad-st, Sunday, Sept. 1, 2 p.m., in room 201.

The Auxiliary will meet in room 203 at the same time.

Plans are being made for the national convention to be held in Detroit, Sept. 22 to 26.

"A husband can easily become his wife's favorite author—by writing checks."

Anti-Defamation League Offers Three Year-Round Education Aids

The Anti-Defamation League was organized in 1913 by B'nai B'rith, America's largest and oldest Jewish fraternal order, to cope with the then prevalent pattern of anti-Semitic stereotypes on the comedy stage of vaudeville.

In the half-century since its inception, ADL has broadened its scope and approach into a multi-faceted program of human relations and inter-religious education. The league maintains 25 regional offices throughout the United States.

The Ohio-Kentucky office is located in Columbus, maintaining several services for the use of organizations in this community. Adult organizations in Columbus are invited to avail themselves of the following ADL services:

AUDIO-VISUAL LIBRARY — A total of more than 100 titles of films, filmstrips and recordings on human relations subjects is available for loan, with only a nominal charge for postage and handling, to all interested groups. Requests for materials should be submitted at least two weeks prior to desired date of showing to insure availability.

PUBLICATIONS LIBRARY — The ADL publishes more than 100 books and pamphlets on the subject of human relations. A complete line of materials is stocked in the Columbus office to service requests, from the immediate area, for such materials, promptly. Some of the authors of ADL's publications are Dr. Benjamin Spock, Gordon Allport, the Overstreets, William O. Douglas, Ashley Montague, Charles P. Taft and John F. Kennedy.

SPEAKERS — At no cost to interested groups, the ADL provides qualified speakers either to accompany a film, or independently, on human relations or inter-religious subjects. Especially recommended is the "Rumor Clinic," an audience participation program dealing with the subject of rumor and how it is transmitted.

In addition to these year-round services, the ADL, in cooperation with three other volunteer agencies, has, since 1958, been co-sponsor of an annual five-day Institute on Human Relations. The institute, held under the auspices of the College of Education and the School of Social Work at Ohio State University, invites the attendance of interested individuals from the field of education, social work, public service, industry and labor. Institute scholarships are available through B'nai B'rith and other sponsors.

Inquiries regarding ADL's Adult Education service and Institute on Human Relations are invited. Complete listings of the league's resources and information on speaker services may be obtained by writing to Anti-Defamation League, Dept. AE, Suite 610, 82 N. High-st, Columbus 15, Ohio.

EASTERN DIVISION of the 1963 United Appeal residential campaign will be headed by, from left, Mrs. John W. Vorys, 2389 Bryden-rd, vice-chairman of the residential drive, with area chairmen, Mrs. John Arbuckle, Mrs. Jack Wolin, Mrs. Fullerton Miller and Mrs. Beverly Cox.

Leaders For UA Campaign Named In Eastern Area

Mrs. John W. Vorys, 2389 Bryden-rd, vice-chairman of the 1963 United Appeals campaign, has announced four area chairmen for the Eastern section of Columbus and Franklin County.

Mrs. Vorys has appointed Mrs. John Arbuckle, 4131 Abbey-ct, to head the Suburban East Area. Mrs. Jack Wolin, 1449 Severn-rd, is the area chairman for Berwick; Mrs. Fullerton Miller, 385 N. Parkview, heads the Bexley drive, and Mrs. Beverly Cox, 671 Kimball-pl, is Mid-East Area chairman.

Mrs. John Arbuckle, Suburban East Area chairman, is the mother of three children. She is on the board of the YWCA, the personnel committee of the "Y," is a member of the Board of Women's Association at the Broad Street Presbyterian Church, and is a representative of the United Church Women.

Whitehall Plan New Kiwanis

Representatives of the Kiwanis Club of Eastern Columbus are meeting each week with men from Whitehall who have expressed interest in Kiwanis activities, for the purpose of building a new service club in that city.

A spokesman for the Eastern Columbus club, Robert S. Rosencrans, secretary, said the prospects for starting the Whitehall club appear very good. He is confident the needed 25 members will be available, explaining that 25 men must be enrolled before a charter can be obtained from Kiwanis International.

Two meetings have been held with interested Whitehall men who have already expressed a desire to form the new club.

The Eastern Kiwanis delegation is headed by James S. Leonard, 811 Francis-av, president, and E. E. Emswiler, 694 S. Cassingham-rd, chairman of the new club building committee.

The next meeting to organize the new club has been scheduled for 7:45 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 3, at Howard Johnson's Restaurant, 5000 E. Main-st. It will be a breakfast meeting.

Whitehall area men interested in learning about Kiwanis activities are invited. No prior reservations are necessary.

Whitehall Water Project Under Way

Traffic will be maintained along E. Broad-st in Whitehall as city-hired contractors install 30 water service lines from the trunk line to a point behind sidewalks.

The project, awarded to the Granite Construction Co., Columbus, on low bid of $8,274, is scheduled for completion by Sept. 9.

The work is being done in advance of a resurfacing project let to bid by the Ohio Department of Highways on Tuesday. The resurfacing of E. Broad-st will extend between the west to east corporation lines of Whitehall.

Apparent low bidder for the resurfacing work was N. J. LeCrone Construction Co., Columbus. The firm submitted a bid of $65,356, covering the 1.68-mile section in Whitehall and an additional 3.44 miles of resurfacing in State Rt. 62. Ohio Highway Department estimate for the project was $76,400.

It is expected that the official award of the contract will be announced by the department in about three weeks.

Whitehall has agreed to pay 20 per cent of the total cost of the resurfacing project, including engineering and contingency expenses.

General revenue funds of the city will be applied to two per cent of the city's share of the cost plus the cost of work at intersections. Benefiting property owners will be assessed for the remaining portion of the city's participation.
